Vol. LXXXIV. NOVEMBER 27, 1909. No. 2176

PERHAPS the most interesting real estate news of the week is the announcement that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is really going to lay out an eighty-foot street opposite the Concourse of the station, and running from Thirty-third to Thirty-fourth street. This street will provide an additional means of access to the station and will greatly facilitate the movement of the vehicular traffic towards and away from the Terminal. It is probable, also, that the company can afford to surrender the 80x200 feet, required for this street without any loss to itself. It owns very large frontages on both Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets and opposite the station, and the increased value of the remainder of the plot resulting from the frontage on the new streetway will be sufficient to compensate the company for the cost of that part of the property which will be turned over to the public use. The whole incident is a lesson in the way street improvements could almost, if not quite, be made to pay for themselves, provided the city had the legal power to condemn the property immediately adjoining that needed for a new street, and provided the cost of condemnation proceedings to the city was not unnecessarily increased by wasteful and unscientific methods. When the Pennsylvania Railroad Company secured the right to build a Terminal at Thirty-third street and Seventh avenue, a wise and far-seeing city government, possessed of sufficient powers, would have behaved in the following manner: It would have foreseen both the need of abundant access to the new station and the congestion of traffic which would take place in Greeley Square as a result of the business development of the neighborhood. It would, consequently, have purchased all the property between Seventh avenue, Sixth avenue, Thirty-fourth and Thirty-first streets; and it would then have prepared a general plan of street improvement, which would have provided both for convenient and sufficient access to the station and for the needs of future traffic across Greeley Square. Then the rest of the property would have been re-sold to private individuals in plots adapted to the needs of the neighborhood, and at prices which would have reimbursed the city for the expense of the operation. The actual course adopted has, of course, been precisely the opposite of the one suggested. The city authorities were partly unable and partly unwilling to take one single step for the purpose of preparing the street system of the neighborhood for the additional demands which would be made upon it. They allowed seven years to pass, during which the value of real estate thereabouts increased by leaps and bounds, and when finally they tried on the eve of the opening of the station, means to widen one street between Seventh avenue and Greeley Square, the cost had become so great that they shrank from the undertaking. Moreover, such a widening would necessarily have been an extravagant procedure, both for the city and the individual property owners. The city would have been obliged to purchase the needed twenty feet on each side of the street at a high price without obtaining any compensation from the increased value of the remainder of the street. At the same time, the residue of the lot not in the hands of the individual property-owners, would have been so reduced in size that it could not have been used to the best economical advantage. In this way everybody would have suffered by the process of appropriation. The city would have paid top prices, and obtained the minimum of benefit. Individual property-owners would have been left with mutilated and comparatively useless lots on their hands. And the total expense would have been huge. On the other hand, the action of the Pennsylvania Company shows how a much better result could have been accomplished at a much smaller expense. In planning for a new street from Thirty-third to Thirty-fourth street, it paid individual property-owners good prices, while real estate was comparatively cheap. It reaped the advantage of the subsequent increase of value, and can now throw away 16,000 square feet of space, and improve the accessibility of the station with but slight, if any, cost to itself.

IT is a singular fact that retail merchants have not as yet shown any sufficient appreciation of the advantage of securing locations in the immediate vicinity of the Pennsylvania station. The real estate on all the avenues and streets leading towards the Terminal has, of course, long been held by speculators. They have been asking prices which may have looked stiff to a retail firm which had no means of estimating the probable future value of a location near the station; and the consequnce has been that only two or three leases or purchases have as yet been reported on the part of the class of people who will eventually use the property. Yet nothing is more certain than that ultimately retail firms will have to pay higher prices for the property they need than those hitherto demanded by the speculators. There can be no doubt that the streets and avenues immediately in the vicinity of the station and leading directly thereto will contain as good sites for retail stores of a certain kind as any which can be found in Manhattan. Seventh avenue between Forty-second and Thirty-fourth streets will be better adapted to retail trade than is Forty-second street between Broadway and the Grand Central Station. The side streets between the Terminal and Greeley Square will lead from a square that will become the most important centre of business in the middle region of Manhattan to the largest railroad station in the largest city in America. There is no telling, consequently, how high the values of well-situated real estate near the station may climb. It will not be until somewhere between five and ten years after the station is opened that the final level of values will be reached, because it will take at least that much time to develop the traffic in Long Island tributary to the station, and to develop, also, the business advantages of Greeley Square and its neighborhood. The celerity of this development will depend partly upon the date on which the Public Service Commission will allow the city to have the benefit of a lower West Side Subway. But although the ultimate level of values will come slowly it will undoubtedly be, when it does come, as high as anything else of the same kind to be found in Manhattan. The dominant characteristic of the real estate development of Manhattan during the past five years has been the gradual appreciation of the most advantageous retail sites in the Borough by business men who needed them, and at hitherto unprecedented prices for that class of property. The explanation of this movement is that the Middle District of Manhattan is now assuming a comparatively fixed distribution of business usage. The retail trade will not continue to creep uptown as it has done hitherto. It will be held to its present locations by the need of remaining accessible to the millions of people living on Long Island and New Jersey. But in this process of appropriation the streets leading to the Pennsylvania station have hitherto been neglected and their gradual appropriation for business purposes and at record prices will be one of the most conspicuous facts of the real estate market during the next year or two.

THE Record and Guide pointed out last week that Broadway, west of Central Park, was violating real estate precedents in Manhattan, because it was destined to be an important business thoroughfare, while at the same time remaining the site of the largest and most expensive apartment houses on the West Side. It should be remarked also that Park avenue to the east of Central Park, is also violating a real estate precedent in Manhattan—the precedent which has prevented an avenue from being desirable for a combination of expensive private residences and apartment houses. Of course, there are thoroughfares like Madison avenue, which are lined for a part of their distance both with handsome dwellings and with fine apartments; but in this and in other similar instances what is really taking place is a process of substitution. Madison avenue is merely changing from a residence to an apartment house thoroughfare, and if a conflagration were to destroy the existing buildings thereon, they would be replaced almost exclusively by apartment houses. On the other hand, the effects of a similar conflagration on Park avenue would be different. The land would be re-improved in part with residences and in part with huge apartment houses. It is a very desirable avenue for residences, because it is much quieter than Madison avenue, less expensive than Fifth avenue, and affords more air and sun than any of the side streets. On the other hand, its great width makes it peculiarly desirable for apartment houses which can be erected to a greater height on Park avenue than they can be on Lexington, Madison or Fifth avenues. It is for this reason that two new co-operative apartment houses are now being erected on that thoroughfare. In all probability the further improvement of Park avenue will proceed in both of these directions. In the fifties and sixties apartment houses will predominate. In the seventies individual residences will be most numerous. In the eighties the pendulum will probably swing back towards apartment houses. But on no part of the avenue, until the tenement blocks are reached, will any one type of building exclude its rival.

HOW much longer will the old Astor House survive? The recent purchase of adjoining property on Vesey street by William Waldorf Astor does not mean that it will soon be torn down, because, as we pointed out last week, it has recently been leased for another five years. It is at present by far the oldest hotel of any importance in New York City—in spite of the fact that it was the first hotel of any importance to be erected in New York City. It has survived equally important successors and rivals, such as the Fifth Avenue, the Clarendon, the New York and the Broadway Central, and probably the Gilsey House; and there is good authority for stating that it still remains a fairly profitable property, even at its existing ground value. At the same time we imagine that its owners would do well to build on the site a modern building before many years elapse. The Astor House is the one plot in the vicinity of the present post-office which would be peculiarly available for a new post-office. The Federal Government really needs it for the purpose; and if New York had been fairly treated by Congress it would have already been purchased by the nation. If its owners do not look out, however, something of the kind may eventually happen. The existing post-office is so inadequate and inconvenient in every respect that it will have to be superseded eventually; and when it is superseded, the Astor House is likely to be appropriated for the purpose. On the other hand, the erection of a modern office building on the site would probably make the property too expensive even for the Federal Government and might lead to some arrangement whereby the Government could occupy part of the new building for its own necessary purposes.

REPORTS OF BUILDING PROJECTS are multiplying as the year draws to a close. A splendid array of work is coming forward. Until this present week the weather has been ideal for outside work, and if the coming winter is as favorable on the whole as the last one a lot of new work will get an early start. As yet, the advance reports are more significant than the plans actually filed. One of the verified announcements of the week is that an apartment house will be erected in "Millionaires Row"—upper Fifth avenue—where apartment houses have not been supposed to go. It therefore represents a social victory for the apartment house, and is a new and striking indication both of the growing appreciation for apartments by millionaires and of the high standard of construction to which these houses have attained. Another type of construction that is becoming popular with New Yorkers is represented by the announcement that Mr. Howard Gould is to erect a large country house at Port Washington, on the Sound. One more "sign of the times" is the extraordinary number of churches that are being planned and erected all over the Eastern States. The number of new factories that are being built is also large.

WAIT TILL PLANS ARE APPROVED.—Section 121 of the Tenement House law prohibits anyone from beginning the construction, alteration or conversion of a tenement house or building or any part thereof until the plans have been approved. It seemed to be necessary that an example should be made of somebody, and an East Side contractor was consequently assigned for violating the law, in that he proceeded with alterations without approved plans. It appears from the testimony that his men were working even after the contractor had been ordered to stop work on the building. Mr. O'Sullivan represented the Corporation Counsel and the Tenement House Department.

WHO ARE THE BURDEN-BEARERS?

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Mr. Edgar J. Levey in his letter published last week, in regard to the effect of taxes on rents, says that when, in the late campaign arguments, it was asserted that the burden of taxation fell upon the rentpayers, "obviously the home-dweller, the flat or tenement dweller, was in mind; not the lessee of a store on 5th av, or the tenant of a Broadway office building who may live in New Jersey."

He says further that, as to stores and office buildings, it may be admitted that the burden of increased taxation must be borne chiefly by the landlord, but "to the dweller in a 4-sty Brooklyn flat, the increase in taxation inevitably means increased rents."

It seems to me that these statements are contradictory; that the fact that the lessee of a store on Broadway may live in New Jersey has no bearing on the effect of increased taxation upon his store property. He must do business at that location in order to make a living; and if there is any place where the increased tax would fall on the tenant, it is in the case of a man who cannot move without sacrificing his livelihood.

On the other hand, the dweller in the Brooklyn flat is precisely the man who can easily remove to the commuting areas of New Jersey, if the landlord attempts to raise the rent of the flat for any other reason except that the privilege of living in Brooklyn is really becoming worth more money. And, in that case, the landlord does not wait for an increase in the tax in order to raise the rent.

Mr. Levey says that if taxes are increased, a builder "must feel assured of getting back the net additional annual charge by increased rents or he will not build." The illustration should have been carried one step further. If he cannot get back the additional charge in that way, he may still build provided he can get a sufficient reduction in the price asked for land to come out with a profit.

In my letters I believe that I have proven the fallacy of the assertion recently made during the campaign that "High taxes make high rents," and, conversely, that "Low taxes make low rents." Mr. Levey's letters have been very intelligent and interesting, yet he has failed to convince me, as well as others, that the assertions quoted above are true.

EDWARD POLAK.

A SIGHT TO SEE!—The waking up at nightfall (5.30 to 6.30 P. M.) of New York's "Rialto" on the East Side, when the great crowd of the proletariat surges through every east-and-west street, from Canal to 14th, is one of the sights of New York.

Men, women and fourteen-year-old children walk shoulder to shoulder from stoop line to stoop line, going home to supper and to do the evening shopping. No need to widen the sidewalk for these (reversing 5th avenue's innovation of widening the driveway) they simply absorb the sixty-foot streets from side to side, and the horse and truck that has the bad luck to meet this homeward-bound human tide, simply stays "put" during its flood.

Were the investing real estate public to follow income-producing property as they are led to follow speculative promises, "rises for a sale," Eldridge st with his wholesale woolen district, and Hester st, with its retail dry goods, would not be left to the purchasing power of the growing pocket-book of the "stranger in the land"—fast as he is growing to be a citizen, and absorbing quietly the good things in realty of this day and generation, as did John Jacob Astor (senior) in the century that is past. New York will soon no longer have a north-and-south line of trade and travel only, but, like London, an East Side and a West Side—and the East Side will equal and outstrip the West.

OUTGOING OF ANOTHER OLD RACECOURSE.—Men are tearing down the grandstand of the Morris Park racecourse. New York has got through with it and needs the room for house-building. The handsome clubhouse is to be skidded up to Pelham Parkway somehow and made over into a hotel. Then Morris Park avenue will be cut through the course, and presently the Fidelity Development Company will have another sale of lots on the premises. Still on the guardrail in front of the disappearing grandstand, painted in black, is the word "Finish." After the horse-racing stopped, automobiles used to fly around the course, and this year there were exhibitions of real flying machines at the park. The horse seemed slow in comparison with the later whizzers. But that which has befallen Morris Park comes to every such place in time, so far as New York is concerned. Eventually the city overspreads them. The Park was laid out and owned by Dave Hennen Morris, and was sold by him in 1906, to the Fidelity Development Company. In September of that year three hundred lots were disposed of at public sale, the McVickar Galard Realty Co. acting as auctioneers.

—Comptroller Metz is advertising for sale, "at the request of the Bridge Commissioner," all the buildings standing in Manhattan within the lines of property acquired for the Manhattan approach to the Manhattan bridge.

CONSTRUCTION.

ESSENTIAL PRINCIPLES OF A BUILDING CODE.

How It Should Be Written, and How Amended — The Authority Building Superintendents Should Have—Objections to a Board of Appeal.

By LAWRENCE VEILLER.*

NO piece of local legislation as a rule approaches the importance the enactment of a proper building code. Upon the soundness of its provisions depends to a large extent the future character of every city and the prosperity, health and social welfare of its citizens. Upon the wisdom with which it is drawn will rest the determination of the city's future growth, and the manner of that growth.

Affecting as it does so closely the homes of the people, their places of labor, of public assemblage, of recreation, it becomes of vital importance. Building codes must necessarily vary in different cities, and be adapted to the needs of each locality, but certain essential principles govern all of them.

SHOULD BE CONCISE IN FORM.

In the first place they are for practical use by builders, architects, plumbers and mechanics. The first requisite is therefore clearness. What the law intends must be quickly and readily understood. They should, too, as far as practicable, be concise in form. Their provisions should be expressed in short separate sentences, not in long involved paragraphs. Precision is of vital importance. All terms should be carefully defined. On the other hand, such laws must be so drawn as to stand the test in the courts. In a word, they should be as if written by laymen for laymen, and yet at the same time so carefully drawn that every word has its exact legal value and says neither more nor less than is intended.

The great and vital thing overshadowing all others in importance, is that there shall be uniformity of treatment for all persons affected by its provisions. There must be no discrimination between individuals, nor any opportunity for such discrimination. Affecting, as it does, vast property interests, it must be based upon foundations of justice and fairness.

And yet, it is at this point that most building laws fail—viz., in their treatment of the granting of discretionary power to the enforcing officials. Every architect and every builder will tell you that he is in favor of discretionary power. That it is essential, that the building industry is a constantly changing one and that building laws cannot be rigid. There must be flexibility to them or the building industry will suffer; the architect must have free play for the exercise of his originality. If you question him, however, he will admit that it is in the exercise of this discretionary power that municipal corruption lies.

In this subject is wrapped up nearly everything of importance in a building code. There is little use in providing with minute care for the thickness of walls of certain heights, the methods of building firestops, the way in which plumbing shall be vented, if at the same time you give to your enforcing official the power to change all these requirements in his discretion.

Even with honest public officials, large grants of discretionary power are unsafe. They inevitably lead to favoritism, discrimination, arbitrary use of authority, and nullification of the legislative intent.

TENDS TO NULLIFICATION.

A striking illustration of the last-mentioned effect is found in the experience of New York City some years ago. In 1895 it was provided in the Tenement House law enacted in that year that no tenement-house erected after that date should occupy more than 65 per cent. of the lot. This was the clear intent of the framers of the law. They, however, added a clause to the effect that where the light and ventilation of a building was materially improved, the Superintendent of Buildings might permit a greater percentage of the lot to be occupied, but in no case more than 75 per cent. In a word, they departed from their original purpose of definitely limiting the amount of land to be occupied, believing that the enforcing officer might be permitted to use his judgment and permit a larger proportion to be covered in special cases.

Now, what actually happened? Within a year, every tenement house that was erected occupied the full 75 per cent. of the lot. No one even thought of covering any less, and from the very nature of things, nothing else could have been expected. If one architect presents a plan for a new building and the Superintendent of Buildings permits him to occupy 75 per cent. of the lot, a competing architect a few weeks later in submitting his plans will demand that he too be permitted to occupy as much. So gradually every architect insists upon his right to cover as much of the lot as his predecessors have done.

Arbitrary use of authority as a consequence of these vague grants of power seems to spring almost immediately from it. Heads of bureaus and their subordinates quickly learn to stretch the law beyond all reasonable limits—and when called to account by the protesting citizen invariably fall back on the answer: "This is a mater that is within the Superintendent's discretion." Sometimes it is, often it is not.

There is much misunderstanding about this question of discretionary power, not only as to what it is, but as to the necessity for it, and the position of architects, builders and others in the building trade in favor of large grants of powers of this kind cannot be successfully sustained. Their contention, however, that building codes should not be too rigid and that they must have sufficient elasticity to provide for the changing developments in the building industry, with the discovery of new processes and new materials, is absolutely sound.

One, however, does not involve the other. It is entirely feasible to provide sufficient elasticity to permit the use of new material and new processes as these develop, without at the same time vesting in the enforcing officer the power to modify and set aside every provision of your building law. The granting of such power breaks down every principle of sound government. From time immemorial it has been recognized that enforcing officers should not also be legislative ones.

Moreover, in most cases there is no necessity of vesting discretionary powers in the Superintendent of Buildings. The practice grew up originally in New York City at a time when New York's Building Code was an act of the Legislature. Under these conditions it was inconvenient, and sometimes impossible, for owners and contractors to wait nine months or a year until they could amend the law in the legislature, and because of this situation the Superintendent of Buildings was given the power to modify the law.

This situation does not exist, however, in many cities. Most building codes are local ordinances, adopted by the aldermen. In most cities the aldermen generally meet about once a week and it is very easy—if some provision of a building law is wrong—to secure the necessary amendments to it through the regular legislative channels. No hardship is thus involved.

HOW BUILDING CODES SHOULD BE AMENDED.

This is the only way in which building codes should be amended—namely, by the legislative bodies which enact them, not by administrative officers. Most important of all, however, is the fact that when a code is amended in this manner, the code is amended generally and affects all citizens equally. The public also is aware of what is going on and knows what it has to expect. It is also in a position to make known to the local legislative officials the reasons for or against any proposed change, and bring to bear upon them the full force of public sentiment.

How different this is from the other process of permitting one man, the Superintendent of Buildings, in camera, to set aside or suspend the operation of some provision of the law in the interests of some particular builder, architect or contractor. What rich opportunities for favoritism and graft such methods open up!

NEW YORK SETS THE STANDARD

for the entire country in its building laws. There is probably no American city which has not a building code that is modeled on the New York statute. This is naturally so. The problems of building that occur in that great metropolis have to be worked out satisfactorily there, and it is only proper that other cities should take advantage of the experience of the larger community.

Unfortunately, however, New York's Building Code (not only the proposed one but also the present one) is a whited sepulchre. Anyone reading it would gather the impression that it is a carefully drawn series of provisions, providing in minute detail for the manner in which buildings shall be constructed in that city and safeguarding the public interest at every point. Apparently, it is. But the value of these seemingly carefully drawn provisions is vitiated by the fact that the Superintendent of Buildings is given a general blanket power to modify or set aside every provision of the code at his pleasure, at any time, and this power is limited in no respect, the conditions under which it may be exercised are not prescribed, nor is any publicity provided for his decisions; they do not even serve as precedents binding upon the department in similar cases. What is more important than all, his acts are not reviewable by the courts. In addition to this general power to set aside the law, it will be found that the Superintendent of Buildings has in numerous sections all through the code been given the power to modify those particular sections.

A BOARD OF APPEAL NOT FAVORED.

On the other hand the situation is not to be met by creating some board of appeal with power to overrule the decisions of the Superintendent of Buildings. This brings about even greater evils. It means division of responsibility, with all that that implies; it means that the head of the department ceases to be the head. A superintendent who desires to escape responsibility and to permit some form of construction in a given case which he is not quite ready to stand for publicly, because of his fear of the consequences, readily appreciates the value of "putting up" a proposition of this kind to a board, the members of which have no individual responsibility. On the other hand, an honest Superintendent of Buildings should not have his decisions, which are sound and in the interests of the public, set aside and reversed by a board without responsibility for the administration of the department.

The way to meet the situation is to give the Superintendent of Buildings FULL POWER TO ENFORCE THE LAWS, NOT TO MAKE THEM; to have his decisions final, subject to review only by the courts; to create no board of appeals, to permit no modification of the law except by the law-making bodies. This satisfies every situation, except that it does not provide for the changes that are constantly going on in the building industry and the development of new processes and the use of new materials. There is one sure, simple and satisfactory way to meet that situation:

Provide a board of men to pass upon building materials and building processes; require that whenever anyone wishes to introduce the use of a new material or a new process the matter shall be submitted to this board; that prolonged and properly supervised fire and strength tests of new material shall be made under the board's supervision, with complete records kept of the results; upon approval by the board of these materials they shall then become legal, and when once used in one case may be used in the future in similar cases. A further requirement for complete publicity with regard to the records and actions of such a board will in every way meet the situation.

Powers to be given to a body like this should be limited strictly to the passing upon new materials and new processes, and the board should be made up of disinterested members of architectural, building and engineering professions and the various trades interested in and competent to pass upon these subjects. The members should be appointed by the mayor of the city, preferably from lists submitted by the leading professional and trade societies; they should receive fees for each meeting they attend and should be removable by the mayor at any time. By no other method will corruption be eliminated from our building departments.

To sum up: Building codes should be DEFINITE, CLEAR and PRECISE. They should afford no opportunity of discrimination between individuals; they should encourage the use of new materials and processes, the development of the city, the building up of property and should protect at every point the health and welfare of the community.

ST. JOHN'S CATHEDRAL.—Workmen have finished waterproofing the temporary dome of the Cathedral on Morningside Heights. The openings under the four great arches have been enclosed by temporary concrete walls, and the four walls have been crowned by a dome made of thin tiles. Finally, the tiles, in turn, have been laid over with layers of black waterproof roofing felt and plastic cement. The roofing work was finished this week, but the masonry of the dome was done in August. The dome is constructed entirely of 6-inch brick tiles, one inch thick, and 15 to 18 inches long, according to the Guastavino system. The space beneath this dome, called the "crossing" and measuring 122x122 ft., will now be available for use as a temporary house of worship. The crossing is but the central space from which the cathedral will develop, one arm after another being provided until the whole edifice is complete. The four great arches are to disappear, to be covered up by the growth of other structural parts, but their function of bearing up the central tower and spire is more important than their visible impressiveness.

NEW INTEREST IN HOBOKEN.—Some New York investors find that Hoboken at the present time measures up pretty well to their ideas of a good place to make a real estate investment. The new 7-story "Terminal Building," built of reinforced concrete, and which will be ready for tenants next week, is an instance. New Yorkers will be able to locate it by a great electric advertising sign for an insurance company, which it will carry. The officers of the company are: B. N. Duke, of the American Tobacco Company, president; R. B. Arrington, of the same company, vice-president, and Ernest L. Sawyer, of Brooklyn, secretary and treasurer.

VENTILATION OF BUILDINGS.

Owners Must Comply With the Regulations of the State Factory Inspector, Regardless of How They Make Their Leases Read.

A DECISION rendered in a test case this week by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court clears the pathway of the State Factory Inspector in his fresh-air campaign against the owners of buildings used in whole or in part for manufacturing purposes, unless the case shall be appealed. The statute requiring that "proper and sufficient means of ventilation" shall be provided in factories was recently strengthened by making the "owner, agent or lessee" responsible, instead of the lessee alone.

As the installation and maintenance of ventilating machinery of the capacity required by the Factory Inspector's regulations is an expensive operation, owners were remonstrating against the severity of the requirements and the legality of the Factory Inspector's proceedings against owners, rather than tenants, when a test case was made up between Mr. Amos R. Eno and the State Department of Labor, whereby a stipulated set of facts was submitted to the Appellate Division. This is the case in which the Court has now rendered a decision. The law reads as follows:

"The owner, agent or lessee of a factory shall provide in each workroom thereof, proper and sufficient means of ventilation, and shall maintain proper and sufficient ventilation; if excessive heat be created or if steam, gases, vapors, dust or other impurities that may be injurious to health be generated in the course of the manufacturing process carried on therein, the rooms must be ventilated in such manner as to render them harmless, so far as is practicable."

The Eno case was taken to court to test the question whether the owner or tenant of the building is liable for the statutory penalty when the lease definitely specifies that the tenant shall keep the premises in such order as may be required by the Board of Health, the city ordinances or any other legal authority.

It appears from inquiry among owners that their claim is that the usual amount of heating radiation in lofts is insufficient to take care of the large quantity of fresh cold air that would be introduced by forced ventilation, and that the cost of heating the fresh air introduced would increase the average cost of heating the building about three hundred per cent., without counting the cost of installing and operating ventilating machinery.

In this particular case the court was asked to determine whether the owner is liable for any statutory penalty. Both parties admitted and agreed that if the question was decided in the affirmative the State should have a judgment of ten dollars a day for two days, and if in the negative the owner of the building should have a judgment to the effect that he is not liable to any penalty and dismissing the proceedings. Huntington, Rhinelander & Seymour are the attorneys for the defendent, Mr. Eno, as owner of the buildings 427 to 431 West Broadway. Pending the decision in this case the State factory inspectors' activities were less pronounced. Owners of factory and loft buildings, tenants and engineering firms were all interested. The Court says:

When it is admitted that the subject matter of the acts in question comes within the exercise of police power by the Legislature, it was for that body to determine the most efficacious way to insure its enforcement. It was determined that when an owner of a building turns it into a tenant-factory as defined by law, that owner should be held responsible in defined particulars for the observance of this health law, and by specific provisions has conferred upon him opportunity and power to observe these provisions by right of entry and, if necessary, dispossess proceedings.

"It has in terms also made the tenant responsible. Whether the public officer charged with the enforcement of the law should proceed against the owner or the tenant or both is a matter of administration of the law with which the court has nothing to do. It is no answer for one person who is made responsible by law for an existing condition to say that another person is also responsible and should be proceeded against."

Insufficient ventilation under the labor law as amended to July 1, 1908, was the charge carrying a penalty after notification of $10 per day. Mr. Eno contended that the ventilation should have been provided by his tenants. Josephson Brothers, with whom he had a lease, requiring them to comply with the requisition, regulations of the Board of Health and labor laws.

M'ADOO TUNNEL WORK.—It has been promised by the McAdoo interests that the new stations at Twenty-eighth and Thirty-third streets, Manhattan, will be opened next May, which will be the means of adding greatly to the traffic between New York and Jersey City. Work on the Railroad ave extension to Summit av in Jersey City is progressing rapidly, and it is probable that the Henderson st station will be ready by next May at the latest. It is understood to be the belief of President McAdoo, according to the Jersey City Journal, that in the first year of complete operation the trains will carry almost 100,000,000 passengers, instead of 77,000,000 as originally estimated. The capacity of the system, with eight-car trains operated on a one and a half minute headway, is placed at 220,000,000 passengers a year, and when working up to that capacity the surplus applicable to dividends should be more than $5,000,000 a year.

WHAT DEMAND FOR NEW BUILDINGS?

Percentage of Occupancy in Various Sections—New Houses in the Bronx 90 Per Cent. Rented—Midtown Opportunities.

THANKSGIVING week is considered an appropriate time to note the state of the building market with regard to the evident requirement for more residential and business buildings. This can be judged in part from the percentage of occupancy of existing apartments and loft buildings in the sections which are having the most activity.

Midtown real estate is enjoying activity, expanding with the increasingly rapid reconstruction of the section. Row after row of dwelling and tenement houses are disappearing and business buildings are taking their places. Lofts in the section below the Pennsylvania station and west of Broadway are reported to be running well at good prices. In 25th and 26th and 27th sts, between Broadway and 6th av, values are approaching $4,000 per foot front. This value can easily be sustained, it is said, with lofts 50x90 renting readily at $3,500. A firm of brokers active in the sections, Messrs. S. B. Goodale & Son, state that the most recent tendency is toward an equalization of the values in the blocks on 25th, 26th and 27th sts, between 6th and 7th avs, to more nearly approach the values in the same blocks between Broadway and 6th av.

"On 28th and 29th sts the effect of the car tracks is as yet problematical," said Mr. Goodale this week. "The bad effect of these tracks as regards shipping is probably exaggerated, and will be somewhat compensated for by the increased prominence of these streets when proper car service is installed. Building in 7th av has been retarded by a scattering ownership of small parcels and the fulfillment of the real destiny of the avenue as a street of sixteen to twenty story loft buildings covering block fronts and one-half block fronts is still in the future. The new lofts in the 4th av section are renting in a satisfactory manner and will be occupied by lines of business of a very desirable character, including white goods, neckwear and upholstery goods.

NO CHANCE OF OVER-BUILDING HERE.

"There is little chance of either section becoming even temporarily over-built. These sections do not depend upon new firms or new business to occupy their rentable space, but draw on the almost unexhaustible reservoir of business already in existence in the lower sections. Builders are justified in expecting success for their operations by considering an unbroken list of successes made by other builders in these sections. In the building of steel loft buildings in these sections foreclosures or broken-down operations have been unknown for some years.

THE NEW PUBLISHING HOUSE CENTRE.

"Above the Pennsylvania station the section between 7th and 8th avs, between 35th and 40th sts, has been marked as the new publishing house centre, and in addition there is a feeling that loft buildings for clothing and for miscellaneous trades will also invade these streets. Lofts in 5th av, between 23d and 42d sts, are necessarily held at high rentals and can only be occupied by lines of business of the highest character. Some vacancies have been carried during hard times, but these are now rapidly disappearing."

ON WASHINGTON HEIGHTS.

In the central and lower Washington Heights sections, apartments are reported to be well rented, notwithstanding the vast amount of building that has been concentrated into a brief period of years. It is said, however, that reports reach the Heights vacancies in old apartments in the Bloomingdale and Harlem sections, caused by the large exodus to the Heights.

Frederick Zittel & Sons, of 140th st and Broadway, expressed the opinion this week that the demand in that section was for apartments of seven, eight and nine rooms each.

IN THE BRONX.

Mr. Edward B. Boynton, president of the American Real Estate Company, when asked this week if houses were well occupied in the Bronx, gave it as his judgment that the percentage of occupancy throughout the Bronx was about ninety per cent.

In the Westchester av and Southern Boulevard district, where the American Real Estate Company is building most largely, the percentage of occupancy is higher, running from ninety-five to one hundred per cent. Ten new aparement buildings erected during the present year by this company, completed for occupancy September 1, and containing 165 apartments, were fully rented by October 15. Taking the rental properties of this company as a whole in this district, there is about five per cent. of vacancy. It will thus be seen, as compared with the city as a whole, that the renting in the A-RE-CO district of the Bronx is on a very satisfactory basis.

Apartment buildings constructed in this district by the Gaines-Roberts Company and the Bates, Oesting, Jr., Company have been rented as rapidly as completed. Three buildings completed on Fox st by Bates, Oesting, Jr., Company for fall rentals are fully occupied, and this is also true of ten buildings on Southern Boulevard and eight buildings on Hoe av built by the Gaines-Roberts Company.

Mr. Boynton says there is unquestionably an opportunity for further building expansion. Nearly all of the houses built during the past season have been rented and sold as fast as completed. The market is sufficiently strong to warrant further operations. The district offers opportunity for the building of 6-sty elevator and 4 and 5-sty non-elevator apartment houses.

Mr. J. Clarence Davies says that in over twenty years' experience he has never seen better conditions for new houses in good and accessible locations. Mr. Davis said this week: "The opportunity for the builder in this section is better than at any previous period in the history of the Bronx, as the demand is greater than the supply of both elevator and medium priced apartments and two and three-family houses. The percentage of occupancy in new-law houses under our charge is 95. We have fewer vacancies than at any time in the last four years."

IN HONOR OF THE LATE CHARLES F. McKIM.

In the New Theatre, on Central Park West, on the afternoon of Tuesday, Nov. 23, a large gathering of ladies and gentlemen representing fourteen societies of art, architecture, letters and sciences, besides many other citizens, listened to eulogies by distinguished men of the late architect, Charles Follen McKim. It was the most impressive occasion of the kind that we can remember, and appropriately held in the most beautiful place in this country dedicated to Art. More than a thousand persons were present. A former President of the American Institute of Architects, Mr. George B. Post, was the chairman.

Addresses were delivered by Hon. Joseph H. Choate, Hon. Elihu Root, Mr. Robert Peabody, of Boston, and Mr. Walter Cook; and appreciations by Prof. H. Langford Warren of Harvard University, Mr. Joseph H. Benton of the Boston Public Library, President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, and Mr. John R. Cadwallader of the New York Public Library. Resolutions were read by Prof. William M. Sloane, and anthems were sung by the Mendelssohn Glee Club.

On the stage were Cass Gilbert, president of the American Institute of Architects (vice-chairman of the meeting); Arnold W. Brunner, president of the New York chapter of the same body (also a vice-chairman of the meeting); Theodore Ely, representing the American Architects of Rome; J. Pierpont Morgan, representing the Metropolitan Museum of Art; John W. Alexander, president and representative of the National Academy of Design; E. H. Blatchfield, president of the National Society of Mural Painters; S. Grant La Farge, president of the Architectural League of New York; A. Augustus Healy, president of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences; Eugene Heffly, representing the McDowell Association; Austin W. Lord, president of the Society of Beaux Arts Architects; Prof. J. R. Wheeler, of the faculty of Fine Arts of Columbia University; Herbert Adams, representing the National Sculptors Society; Prof. H. Langford Warren, representing Harvard University; President Nicholas Murray Butler, representing Columbia University; Joseph H. Benton, representing the Boston Public Library; John Cadwallader, representing the New York Public Library; Pros. William M. Sloane, Frank Miles Day, Daniel H. Burnham, Hamilton W. Mabie, William R. Mead, Robert W. De Forest, Daniel C. French, John M. Converse, Seth Low, Henry Rutgers Marshall, Donn Barber, Andrew Carnegie and Austen Fox.

The orations by Mr. Choate and Mr. Root were masterpieces. Mr. Choate related the following reminiscences.

"His buildings soon arose here and in many other cities, marvels of simplicity and beauty, honors came fast upon him, but all this he bore with the simplicity of a child and the modesty of a woman. When he came to London to receive from the British Institute the royal gold medal, perhaps the highest recognition of his standing which was conferred upon him, he was all of a tremble. I had to accompany him to what he thought a terrible ordeal. Then when he began to receive the congratulations of his friends here in America he cabled back, 'I still wear the same hat.'

"The members of the famous firm he founded, McKim, Mead & White, were like brothers, heart to heart, brain to brain, sharing their triumphs together. I remember that at a great banquet given in McKim's honor once a speaker was proceeding to give to McKim all the credit for the architectural merit in the Madison Square Garden structure. McKim interjected the one word, 'White,' and it was the only word he spoke at that banquet."

—A real estate operator said this week, while discussing the future development of the upper East Side, that the year 1911 in his opinion would witness wonderful changes around the Manhattan approach to the Queensboro Bridge. This territory is to bound to be a busy retail centre where small stores will thrive. He expected, he said, to see many office buildings rear their lofty walls in the vicinity owing to the accessibility of the area.

THE ECONOMY OF A LOCAL REPAIR DEPARTMENT.

By JOHN H. FEDELER.*

THE most important matter, to my mind, which will reduce the cost of repair and operation in a large building is the system under which it is managed. I want to propose to you a system I operated with—how you may do your own repairs, and still have time to spare.

There should be two separate offices in a large building. The making of leases, investigation of new tenants, collecting of rents and paying of bills should be attended to in one office, for which the agent, owner or manager is responsible.

The superintendent should have a separate office, and be held responsible for the renting of the offices, the engineer's force, the janitor's department, the maintenance and repairs of the building. The superintendent is the man who is best able to judge of the requirement of his tenants; he is closest to them; in the best rented building the manager or superintendent generally made it so.

The idea of separate departments is also economy. If you have a number of small tenants, there is always a large number who do not like to part with their rent. It seems to hurt them to pay up, and when they do so they invariably have a complaint to make of some sort. If they are then referred to some other office to lodge their complaint, they will forget it unless such complaint is justified.

The superintendent should select his assistants. The janitor should hire and discharge his own men. Every man or woman under him has his or her duties to perform. Complaints with reference to the cleaning of offices are sent to the superintendent, who investigates and lays the blame where it belongs. The janitor orders his material through the superintendent.

Here again our method of accounting is very simple. An order is made out on the agent or dealer. A copy of this order remains in the order book. After the goods have been received and the bill presented, the amount and cost of the material is written on the original copy, and the date the bill has been approved for payment. This copy is then torn out of the copy book and filed, so that each of the various items or material are kept together, and an easy access can be had to any previous order. This is very handy when you wish to find out how much you pay for, where you got it before, and how much is used for any given period of any material.

Once every year I make a copy like the following: each line contains the name of a material we carry in stock, and by purchasing a monthly supply, I am able to check up with the previous year whether there has been any waste. This list does not include any material used for repairs. [A form exhibited].

The engine room is in charge of a chief engineer; as the changes in this department are not frequent, I generally investigate a prospective employee and then send him to the chief for approval or rejection. My relation to the engineer force is that of a consulting engineer. All repairs and purchases are ordered through my office. A superintendent can best serve his object if he carries an engineer's license; it is, however, not essential. The consumption of coal and oil per day and month is kept on file the same as before mentioned.

Every hour the steam pressure, the load in amperes, and the number of engines running is marked down. If you want to adopt a log which will tell you at a glance the condition of your engine room, the following description will serve you. If you want to have a simple log, here is something that I have examined and found very efficient. For instance, I have a big book. I have a piece of canvas on that so that when the engineer puts his hands upon it he won't soil it. One page is used for the day run, and the other page for the night run. The pages are arranged as follows: [A form exhibited.]

This form represents the day run. The two pages facing each other will do for one month. You see under every hour I have got three small separate columns, which gives me the amperes, number of engines running, and the pressure of steam. This table will show you at once when your coal bills are getting larger.

It is easy to note how you may compare one day with the other, and in practice you can see by the variation in the electric load how the days are gradually getting shorter or how a larger consumption of coal during any period is accounted for by dark weather, etc.

The repair department is under my personal direction. Where in a small building one man can attend to many different classes of repairs, in our building we have a first-class carpenter and cabinet maker, who can also make keys and repair door checks. An electrician to attend to electrician's repairs and constructions. A plumber who also does all kinds of pipe fitting. A plasterer who can lay tile and brick and build plaster block partition. An elevator machinist to do all elevator work. A helper who can mix mortar, trim an arc lamp or paint, and from four to ten painters, as may be required at the time. All these may be used in an emergency for roping an elevator or in case of fires, etc. All complaints are sent to the superintendent's office where an order for the work is made out and the duplicate filed. These slips are a great help to a superintendent in laying out the work for his men.

The efficiency and economy of a repair department depends to a great extent upon local labor conditions. If a contractor can hire labor as cheap as you, you will hardly be able to compete with him on contract work. The cost does, however, not always play the most important role for the convenience is so great in a well organized local repair department that other matters are not considered. They can be called upon in case of fire and flood or other emergencies.

In my case the matter of cost was of greatest importance, and wherever the labor conditions are similar to those in New York, I believe the work of carpentry, plaster block partition, building, painting, tile repairing, plumbing, steamfitting, roping of elevator cars, electric wiring, etc., can all be done cheaper and better by a local repair force.

In New York there are always men with families who prefer a good, steady position, with less pay, than a job now and then, with union wages.

SOCIETY OF BEAUX ARTS.

At the annual meeting and dinner of the Society of Beaux Arts Architects, at the Hotel Brevoort-Lafayette Monday evening, the following officers were elected:

President, Donn Barber; vice-president, Charles W. Ewing; recording secretary, A. B. Trowbridge; treasurer, Joseph Howland Hunt, and corresponding secretary, John V. Van Pelt.

Executive committee, Donn Barber, A. B. Trowbridge, James Otis Post, Harvey W. Corbett, Charles W. Ewing, Edwin H. Denby, Austin W. Lord, William W. Bosworth and Joseph Howland Hunt.

Paris prize jury, Lloyd Warren, chairman; Donn Barber, Harvey W. Corbett, Edward L. Tilton and James Otis Post.

It was announced that Robert Bacon, the newly appointed Ambassador to France and former Assistant Secretary of State, had promised funds, amounting to about $2,000, for the next Paris prize, which provides for two years' study in the Ecole des Beaux Arts, in Paris.

Last year's Paris prize was paid for by J. Pierpont Morgan and the prize for the year before by Andrew Carnegie.

A DEPARTURE IN THE TRAINING OF TEACHERS OF INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION.—The demand for competent teachers of industrial arts has led Teachers College, Columbia University, to plan a series of night courses, by which young men men who have a first rate technical ability in the trades, such as woodworking or machine-shop work, can prepare themselves for the profession of teaching. These courses are being offered at night in the School of Industrial Arts of Teachers College, covering mathematics, drafting, design, woodworking, machine-shop work, industrial chemistry, industrial history, methods of teaching industrial arts. A three years' course of night work will enable an expert mechanic, otherwise qualified, to gain a diploma as teacher of industrial arts. For those interested in hand-wrought metal, Columbia University announces four free lectures on November 29 and December 6, 13 and 20 at Havemeyer Hall.

THE EDISON HOUSE.—A "poured" concrete house! Precisely so, Mr. Edison says. He is going to pour the concrete through a funnel like water, as if he were moulding a statue, all at one operation. Take away the mould and find a house complete from cellar to chimney, wall friezes, bathtub, stairs, porches, everything—except doors and windows—of fireproof, verminproop and everlasting material. He has made concrete run like water through a sluiceway. The crushed granite in the liquid did not settle at all, because they used clay and soda in the mixture to act as colloid. Mr. Edison will not ask royalties on the patent, but will issue licenses to build the houses at not more than 15 per cent. profit. In the matter of the concrete house, Mr. Edison is moved by a sincere desire to make it possible for small wage-earners to have a house they can call their own. For ten years or more the higher cost and the necessarily high standard of small house construction in the country has driven a larger proportion of families into rented apartments than ever before. Mr. Edison's idea is that they can be emancipated again.

By December 31 the electrification of forty miles of track, on the Long Island Railroad, on which work was begun this year, will have been completed, and more than 140 miles of road will be ready for the operation of electric cars. On June 1, 1910, the lines will be in full operation, and by that time work will be well advanced on the electrification and double tracking of the entire North Shore division of the road from Winfield Junction to Flushing, Whitestone, Malba and Whitestone Landing, and from Whitestone Junction to Port Washington. A site for an immense sub-station to supply power for this division has been secured at Winfield. Before the end of next summer the road will be carrying passengers from the entire North Shore territory direct to Manhattan.

THE NEW CHURCH AT FORT WASHINGTON.

The Chelsea Methodist Episcopal Church, in course of erection in one of the most attractive neighborhoods on Washington Heights, will be a conspicuous feature from every point of view, situated, as it is, near the highest part of the ridge. It will be seen from all converging streets and from the Hudson River. It is particularly fitting that a building of this monumental character should be reared at this particular point, as it lends a distinct and pleasing variation from the class of buildings to which most of those to be erected in this neighborhood belong.

The Chelsea Church is not a new organization. For over half a century it did a great work in the lower section of the city whose name it bears. Many of the most conspicuous preachers of the Methodist Church have served in its pastorate. The old church building it still owns is located in 30th st, between 8th and 9th avs. The coming of the Pennsylvania R. R. station to the neighborhood so affected its congregation and membership that it became necessary to move, in order to survive. This valuable property is now for sale. Several large offers have been made for it and refused. Hence the completion of the new structure is momentarily halted, awaiting the necessary funds which will be soon forthcoming from the disposal of its downtown holdings. The present pastor of the church, Rev. A. E. Barrett, has held several successful pastorates in the city, and his enthusiasm, resources and inspiration, it is believed, will be largely instrumental in securing for this grand old church in its promising new field a success in the future that will eclipse even the glory of the past.

THE "CHELSEA M. E. CHURCH." Bannister & Schell, Architects.

The edifice as designed by the architects, Messrs. Bannister & Schell, will be an interesting modification of the Tudor development of Gothic. The tower will rise to a height of 112 ft. above the curb level, and the building is being constructed of a beautiful light granite. The trimmings, being of terra cotta, are still lighter in tone, making a pleasing contrast.

The edifice faces Fort Washington av, and covers a plot having a frontage of 85 ft. on Fort Washington av, and a depth of 138 ft. 5 ins. on 178th st. The principal entrance on Fort Washington av is to a vestibule about 2 ft. above the curb level. This vestibule, with staircases at the northerly and southerly ends, extends across the whole front of the building. So far only the basement is finished, and the following particulars are taken from the plans.

The main auditorium is reached by a short flight of marble steps from each end of the vestibule, as above stated. The congregation, entering, will pass first into an assembly-room, which may be shut off from the auditorium. This assembly-room, which has a seating capacity of 100, opens directly into the main auditorium, which is to have a seating capacity, exclusive of the galleries, of 540. A gallery will extend around three sides of the auditorium and will have a seating capacity of 430, making a total seating capacity for the church proper of 970.

The pulpit arrangements are those usual to the Methodist Church, the choir space providing for a chorus of 40 and a quartette, and the position of the organ manual is such that the organist may have supervision of the choir, the level of the choir platform being about 3 ft. above the pulpit platform. The lecture-hall, on the level of the main auditorium, has a seating capacity of 290, and with the classrooms opening into it, a capacity of 130 additional. The gallery of the lecture-room has a class-room capacity of 160, and there is a Bible class-room and also a ladies' parlor.

Access to the main floor of the Sunday school is by means of short flights of stairs from two entrance vestibules on West 178th st. Rear stairs are also being provided from the main floor of the Sunday School to the basement of the building. We note in the plans that there are three flights of stairs extending to the gallery of the Sunday School. The pastor's study is at the junction of the Sunday School building and the gallery of the main church, having a frontage on West 178th st. All of the sections and rooms named are at a level of about 10 ft. above the curb level on Fort Washington av.

The basement of the church has a floor level at the average level of the curb on West 178th st, so that the basement becomes a most important factor in this edifice. The social room in the basement has a seating capacity of 650; it also has a large platform and has rooms opening into the main room for a complete social arrangement, such as a kitchen, service-room, dressing-room and hat and cloak room. In the rear of the main social room is the basement of the parish house, which contains a lecture hall having a capacity of 220, two classrooms having a capacity of 60 and an infants' classroom having a capacity of 150. This basement to the parish house has practically a level entrance from West 178th st.

The cellar of the building is particularly well lighted, having a broad area opening to West 178th st and large areas on the northerly and westerly sides also. Here will be a large gymnasium and bowling alleys, a workshop and classroom for manual training, and the usual space required by boilers, machinery and vaults. The third story of the parish house contains a complete modern apartment for the pastor.

WHERE BUILDING MATERIALS ARE NEEDED

The Present Market in Its Entirety—A Report of Every Building Operation in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx.

AN AID TO ALL SALES DEPARTMENTS

AN AID TO ALL SALES DEPARTMENTS.—Plans have been drawn for new buildings to be erected at the locations given below; details as to cost of the new construction, the names and addresses of the architects and the owners are included in each item. This building news represents new construction, including alterations about to be commenced, in the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, plans for the work having been filed this week in the Department of Buildings. The official plan number in each case is given at the end of each paragraph.

Building contractors and building material firms may be assured that the information herein given includes every building enterprise of every sort and description contemplated in the two boroughs. The news is absolutely complete, irrespective of cost, including both the highest and the lowest grade of operations. By carefully following the news printed in these columns weekly, contractors and building material firms can possess for their sales departments absolutely reliable and absolutely complete information as to new projects.

HOW TO USE PROFITABLY.—It is hardly necessary to do more than indicate the many ways in which this information may be used.

Architects, owners and contractors can be solicited personally for orders.

Trade literature can be distributed with the certainty of reaching its destination.

Buyers can be apprised of the values of materials and equipment.

Time should not be allowed to elapse in the prosecution of the work of salesmanship. Steps should be taken immediately to handle each case. Even orders not obtained in any single case frequently prepare the way for subsequent sales. Records should be kept of each of these "possibilities," and the results of work done tabulated. Figures will be thus obtained that will throw considerable light on the efficiency of sales methods in operation.

It will not be necessary for us to point out in detail how much information a well-informed building material firm or contractor can easily READ INTO THESE NEWS ITEMS, a constant repetition of which in our columns would only take up space without any equivalent advantages. For instance, the instructed reader does not need to be told what the average equipment would be for, let us say, a seven-story brick and stone loft building, 25x75, costing $35,000, to be built on East Broadway. Plainly an elevator is inevitable; steam heat is inevitable; fireproofing is quite problematic, considering the cost. Everyone can figure that lumber will go into such a building, and a certain amount of rough trim, plastering, window sashes, hardware, plumbing fixtures, etc., etc.

Moreover, it will be understood that as the information that we publish is of an early character, the details of construction and equipment are probably open to a good deal of discussion with the architect and the owner. Red brick might be substituted for white brick, limestone for terra cotta, or vice versa, one type of elevator for another type, and so on throughout all the elements of construction equipment and finish. These points will naturally be very closely followed by an aggressive sales department. Here is where salesmanship, the price and value of a firm's materials will count. THOUGHT AND AGGRESSIVENESS IN THE USE OF THIS INFORMATION THAT WE FURNISH WEEKLY WILL PRODUCE BUSINESS. Don't forget that the entire market for your goods in the two boroughs is here, placed under your eyes, not for reading, but for ACTION. Follow up the news!

No architect has yet been selected, and the owners have not had time to decide upon details, as they purchased the property only on Tuesday of this week from August Belmont. It can be taken for granted that it will be an elegant house, but it will be rather conspicuous in that section, owing to its surpassing height, there being nothing but private dwellings in that part of the avenue. James Knox Taylor, supervising architect, Washington, D. C.

NEW HAVEN.—No New Haven firm submitted a bid for building an extension to the post office. The New Haven builders, after looking the prospect over, decided that there was too much "red tape" in it for them, and that they did not care to bid. Brief and Personal.

Thanksgiving.

A short week.

All holidays should, somehow, have been made to come at the beginning or end of the week, preceding or following Sunday.

The best year since 1906, a period of recuperation from the last panic, but not a year entirely full of good times. Next year is expected to be all to the good.

The firm of Young & Groenberg, architects, has been dissolved and Mr. Harold Lawrence Young will continue the business in the same offices, at 1328 Broadway. Telephone, 4576 Murray Hill.

H. Otto Wittpenn, of the firm of Houghtaling & Wittpenn, 44 East 23d st, took his oath of office for another term as Mayor of Jersey City on Tuesday without any ceremony. He was sworn in by the City Clerk, Michael L. Fagan.

The Waterproofing Co., 147 East 35th st, has secured the contract to waterproofing, with hydrolithic cement, the building for the Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills, at New Orleans, La. The architects for this building are Stone Bros.; contractors, Jefferson Construction Co.; both of New Orleans.

The Thompson-Starrett Company raised flags at the highest points of the Gimbel Building last Saturday. The building has a height of 150 ft. above the street level, and it extends 40 feet below grade. Meanwhile the Thompson-Starrett Company will hurry the balance of the steel erection all over the lot, in order to meet the schedule date of December 1 for finishing the superstructure, which will be an unparalleled record for rapid steel assembling.

At the regular meeting of the board of directors of the Thompson-Starrett Company, at 51 Wall st, on Monday, Vice-President and General Manager Louis J. Horowitz read a report on earnings for the six months ended October 31, 1909, and an additional report showing that the company is at present engaged on the largest and most profitable volume of business in its history, having some fifty building operations under way in various cities from the Atlantic Coast to the Pacific Slope. The directors then declared the regular semi-annual dividend, at the rate of 8 per cent., on the common stock of the company, and in addition thereto a dividend of 16 per cent., making a total of 20 per cent., payable on the common stock Jan. 3, 1910, to stockholders of record at the close of business Dec. 15. When this dividend of 20 per cent. is paid the stockholders will have received dividends at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum from the time the stock was issued to date.

The Federal Tile Company, No. 131 West 24th st, is issuing to the trade a folder which for distinctiveness is bound to attract attention. It is in three folds and represents a young business man, pointing out the reasons why the claims of this company should be considered before finally placing orders for marble work. The folder embraces several rudimentary conditions which must be observed, it says, to insure proper work. They follow: "The foundation is the base of all work. If the foundation is poor, the finished work will be poor. Foundations for floors should be made of sand and Portland cement, wire lath should be used as a base for wall tile, and the same should be coated with sand and cement. The proper way to prepare for tile—either wall, ceiling or floor—is to let the tile contractor do the same; then he is absolutely responsible. Don't give your tile work to a firm that employs cheap men. Good union men always command their price, and are not to be found in a cheap shop."

—The Witney-Steen Co., of 135 Broadway, has the steel skeleton of the 16-sty Firemen's Insurance Company's building in Newark up to the 7th tier.

McCrum-Howell Co. Increases Stock.

The McCrum-Howell Co., Park av and 41st st, New York, N. Y., manufacturers of "Richmond" boilers, radiators and enameled ware, with two plants at Uniontown, Pa., and one at Norwich, Conn., have increased their capital stock from $1,200,000 to $3,000,000.

The entire increase of preferred stock was purchased by Gavet & Porter, Boston; George H. Burr & Co., New York; Farson, Son & Co., Chicago, and Scully, Painter & Beech, Pittsburg, whose favorable attention to the company was attracted by its progressive methods, wonderful growth and recognized quality of its output.

The bankers represented in this purchase of stock recently made a visit to Uniontown, for an inspection of the plants of the company located there. In the party were Mr. Porter, of Gavet & Porter; Mr. Spaulding, representing Farson, Son & Co.; Mr. Painter, of Scully, Painter & Beech; Mr. King, of the St. Louis house of George H. Burr & Co.; Mr. Fosdick, of their Boston house; Mr. Crandall, of their Chicago house, and Mr. Burr himself.

The visiting bankers were most favorably impressed with the size of the plants, the evidences of good management, the thorough organization and efficiency of the men and manufacturing equipment.

This increase in capitalization was authorized at a recent meeting of the stockholders, at which time it was also authorized that the dividend rate on the preferred stock be increased from 6 per cent. to 7 per cent.

The foundry for big tubs in the enameled ware plant will be lengthened 120 feet, with a new foundry half that size for lavatories. The foundry at the radiator plant will also be extended so as to increase the production materially. The company was not able to take nearly all the business in radiation offered it this year, although its capacity was increased one-third only a year ago. The contemplated increase will add about one-fourth to the capacity. The proceeds of the increase of stock will be used to anticipate a bond issue which has not matured, and also provide additional working capital.

Lime Making in 1908.

Lime production in the United States in 1908, in common with other industries, decreased in both quantity and value of output. Many plants that had closed in 1907 remained closed during 1908, and some plants ran only part of the time or with diminished force.

The lime made in 1908 amounted to 2,766,873 short tons, valued at $11,091,186, a decrease of 325,651 short tons in quantity and of $1,565,519 in value from the production of 1907.

VALUE OF LIME PRODUCED IN THE UNITED STATES, 1897-1908:

1908	11,091,186

In 1908 Pennsylvania ranked first in both quantity and value of output, and Ohio, Wisconsin, Missouri, and Maine followed, in the order named.

The largest use of lime is that for building; the next largest is that for fertilizer. Considerable quantities are used by paper mills, chemical works, sugar factories and tanneries.

The production of hydrated lime, a comparatively new industry, requires large operations, and many new hydrating plants were established in 1908.

An advance chapter from "Mineral resources of the United States, calendar year 1908," has just been published by the United States Geological Survey and may be had by applying to the Director of the Survey at Washington.

Whale Creek I. W. Adds to Plant.

Title passed on November 23 on fifteen lots situated at Moultrie st, Meserole av and Humboldt st, Greenpoint, Brooklyn, whereby the Whale Creek Iron Works, Andrew N. Peterson, president, and William K. Ross, secretary, will expand their already large establishment. These lots will give the works an area of more than one and a half city blocks or over 100,000 sq. ft. A new addition has been built to the company's bronze factory and four improved furnaces have been installed. The urn for the Prison Ship Martyrs' Monument, which weighed 20,000 lbs., was manufactured and erected, it will be remembered, by this concern, which has several other very important contracts on hand, among which is material for the Hartford State Library and Supreme Court Building, at Hartford, Conn.

The Chicago Cement Show.

At the drawing on Oct. 29 for space at the third annual cement show to be held at Chicago on Feb. 18-24, 1910, the entire main floor and annex in the big Coliseum was taken and over thirty concerns were unable to secure space at al. This is the only instance where the entire available exhibition space has ever been taken so far in advance of the time of the show. About 185 companies had filed applications before the first drawing and the 50,000 sq. ft. of floor space was assigned to 150 of these. Space will be provided for the overflow in an "annex."

BUILDING MATERIAL AND EQUIPMENT

Peevish Building Material Market.

The building material market was peevish and fluctuating this week, due to stormy weather on Tuesday and Wednesday and to the holiday on Thursday. The effort to catch up yesterday with incoming cargoes and piled-up deliveries on some jobs was not altogether successful and large amounts of materials will remain at a standstill until the first of the week. A summary follows:

BRICK—Sales quick; supply heavy.
CEMENT—Dull and inactive.
LIME—Sales normal; prices firm.
LUMBER—Firmer.
PIG IRON—Sales small; prices steady.
STEEL—Less active.
SLATE—Structural demand better.
STONE—Cutters busy; prices firm.

Storm and Holiday Tie Up Market.

The storm of the early part of the week, the holiday on Thursday and a generally fretful condition of the building material market combined to check the consumption of brick this week and to hinder contractors in their efforts to hurry jobs through before winter sets in. The attempt made yesterday to catch up with incoming brick cargoes and to consume other material delivered on jobs during Tuesday and Wednesday was not sufficient to even up conditions, and the blockade, if such it may be called, will run over to Monday, anyway. Sales for this week were a little below normal, but prices held firm at the figures quoted last week in this department. Yesterday they were somewhat stronger and the market seemed to be strengthening for a slight raise. The yards up the river are sending down a little more brick than usual for this time of the year, but few of the dealers are stacking, most of the cargoes being absorbed on jobs. Last week's transactions show that not only are these cargoes being taken, but that the sales have actually exceeded the number of arrivals. The official figures follow:

Heldover, Nov. 13, 24; arrivals, 86; sales, 89, leaving 21 on hand at the docks on Nov. 22.

NEW JERSEY TAKING LARGE QUANTITIES.

Reports from Washburn Bros., Sayre & Fisher Co., Cook & Genung and other big distributors across the river, show that New Jersey is taking exceptionally large quantities of common brick for this time of the year, and this in spite of the fact that the number of permits issued in the various leading Jersey cities have fallen off within the last few weeks. Discussing this matter at the Builders' Exchange, this week, one gentleman said that it was undoubtedly due to contractors hastening work in the suburbs and to the general practice of dealers to stack in anticipation of much higher prices early next year. Builders over there were fixing to be prepared to take new business on sizeable contracts during the winter, should it be an open one. This condition held true in nearly all classes of building material, stone being one of the exceptions.

RARITAN RIVER HARDS IN DEMAND

Raritan River hard brick is still in demand, both in this city and in New Jersey. Brooklyn also is taking a large quantity. Big shipments are going into small Jersey towns, for instance, New Brunswick, Elizabeth and Perth Amboy, where big operations are in progress, this company's yards being within easy lighterage distance. They are holding firm at $5.75 to $6.

Cement Feels Depressed Market.

The depression in the building material market had its effect upon Portland cement this week. Rosendale held firm, with satisfactory sales, while Portlands were generally dull and inactive. A representative of one of the smaller companies, speaking of the situation this week, said, regarding the output and consumption for 1909, that it undoubtedly would exceed the figure for last year and of 1907. The output for last year, he said, was 51,000,000 barrels, an increase of 6 per cent. over that of the year previous, while the output for this year probably will exceed 60,000,000 barrels. In all three years there has been a productivity, he said, larger than the consumption, causing a congestion at many points, resulting in surplus stock being dumped at sacrifice, as has been the case in this city during the early spring and summer. He said that it was his belief that another advance in price was nearer than most people were inclined to admit.

No long-term contracts are being taken, but spot sales are numerous, though not worthy of special comment. There seems to be a better feeling among the local agencies, due to a more optimistic undertone.

Pig Iron Remains Quiet.

The market for pig iron remained quiet this week, with sales generally small. Prices are firm at last week's quotations. Local foundries were reported as light buyers, but the transactions were commonplace. Southern iron is somewhat easier, owing to the attitude of southern interests toward the market. Steel-making iron had a uniformly good call and negotiations are readily entered into wherever the iron is offered for sale. On the whole, consumers are well supplied. Heavy products are quiet, but the demand for lighter material is fair. Nearly all the current business for the eastern section is confined to small lots for early shipments, upon which slight premiums are being demanded and obtained. Both iron and steel bars are being offered on the basis of 1.50c. Pittsburgh or 1.60c. tidewater for future shipment.

Steel Market Less Active.

Nearly all the current steel business in the eastern section is confined to small lots for early shipment, upon which slight premiums are demanded. This includes bars, plates and shapes. Jobbers here say that the situation is normal. The principal business of the week was for railroad equipment, the amount of structural business being reported at just sufficient to sustain the advances reported in these columns last week.

Some independent manufacturers of sheets who can make early deliveries on blue annealed are offering to take business on the basis of 1.80c. for No. 10 gauge, which is $1 per ton higher than the Steel Corporation price for late deliveries, or within 90 days from receipt of specifications. Last week the American Sheet and Tin Plate Co. was operating 169 mills.

The demand for wire products, as stated at the offices of the American Steel and Wire Company, was much improved. The announcement of the reported deal between the Triangle Mesh Reinforcement Department and the Berger Manufacturing Company for sales privileges for the metropolitan district was confirmed this week.

FABRICATORS REPORT GOOD BUSINESS.

Fabricators in this city and vicinity, Levering & Garrigues, Radley, the Hay Foundry and Iron Works, and the American Bridge Company, especially, report great improvement in business and aver that from contracts now in hand the indications for a busy early spring are exceptionally good. They are far ahead of last November's tonnages, they say.

Lime and Plaster Firmer.

A generally satisfactory condition exists in lime, as sales for this week were reported normal and a good inquiry for sizeable contracts was in hand. Wall plaster is doing well. The opinion expressed by one of the city's biggest plaster agents is worth repeating:

"The production of wall plaster is considerably larger than ever before, but, owing to a great expansion in the industry within the last three years competition is fierce and prices have been more or less demoralized. This you can see for yourself in this city. It is unfortunate, too, just at a time when a recovery is being made from the depression and upon the eve of a history-making year. Locally consumption is very large, but there is practically nothing in it for anybody but the distributer, and he gets a mighty small look-in."

Firmer Market for Lumber.

The week's analysis of the lumber market shows a slightly improved condition. Those companies having their yards in the suburbs report an increasing business, and the requisitions that are being received from retailers are not only larger, but terms are much better, showing a good feeling in the trade. Prices are holding firm. Hardwoods maintain a tardiness as to available quantities, while softs are still backward in improvement.

The Lumbermen's Club of New York met at headquarters, 6 West 24th st, a week ago Wednesday, when the annual dinner was held. Speeches were made by prominent men in the business and there were a number of guests present from southern districts.

These figures cover only wholesale prices to the trade on well manufactured graded stock, classified by the inspection rules now in operation. Because of terms of sale, etc., it is impracticable to quote retail prices.

Slate and Stone in Good Demand.

Slate, especially structural, was in good demand this week, several large contracts for this grade being signed for local and out-of-town jobs. Stonecutters are taking more business and the wholesalers report increasing requisitions. Prices remain firm, the demand being mostly for limestone. Granite was more or less quiet, the opinion being general that the activity in this stone is practically over for this year. Marble is steady, large quantities going for interior work in the Bronx and in the outskirts of Brooklyn.

Cement Brick in Mill Construction.

Although cement brick (or concrete brick) construction is still in its experimental stage, enough is known to demonstrate that under favorable conditions it may be a strong competitor of clay brick in both price and appearance.

The extensive use of cement brick by the Plymouth Cordage Co., of Plymouth, Mass., has demonstrated several valuable facts. For the construction of a new mill, which has an aggregate wall length of nearly one-fifth of a mile, almost two and one-half million cement bricks were made upon the ground.

The mixture used in the major part of the work was 3 parts sand to 1 part cement. A few bricks were made of 4 parts sand to 1 cement, for lightly loaded walls. The brick used on the outside of the buildings had a facing (⅛ inch thick after compression) of 2 parts fine sand and 1 part cement, with the addition of 2 per cent. waterproofing (by weight) to the cement. Enough water was used to make a mortar of such consistency that it would hold its shape under compression, without flushing water to the surface so as to cause the mortar to stick to the plates. No definite percentage can be given as to the amount of water, as that is governed largely by temperature and atmospheric conditions, but the average amount was about 8 per cent. Care in curing the brick (that is, constant wetting), will overcome to a large degree any minor weakness which is theoretically developed by a "dry mix."

THE WEEK.

ALTHOUGH the week was broken by a holiday, leaving only five days in which to transact business, the reports from the brokers' offices show a week's business well up with the average.

There were over half a hundred sales, several of them of more than usual interest. Among the latter was the sale of the property at the intersection of Broadway, 66th st and Columbus av, by the estate of Francis Crawford. Also, the sale of the plot of six lots at the corner of 5th av and 81st st, upon which, the buyers state, they will erect a 12-sty apartment house.

Washington Heights furnished its usual list of deals, there being sales of five apartment houses and three vacant plots, representing fourteen lots.

While the midtown section continues to be well represented, there are more sales reported this week west of 7th av than between Broadway and 7th av. Park av, north of 59th st, also figures in the week's news, in the sale of the plot of 100x75 at 588 to 596.

South of 14th st there was only one sale reported.

At last the domain of the Vanderbilts on 5th av has been invaded by business; the southwest corner of 5th av and 53d st has been leased to Brewster & Co. They will alter the building and occupy the same as a wareroom for the sale of automobiles and carriages.

THE AUCTION MARKET

SALES in foreclosure were the only kind at the Vesey street salesroom this week, and the plaintiffs were the buyers in all instances. Bryan L. Kennelly, Herbert A. Sherman, Joseph P. Day, Samuel Marx and Charles A. Berrian were the auctioneers.

On Wednesday next the estate of Stephen Whitney will offer for sale seventeen properties located in the lower part of the city. Some of them are in tenement sections, several in the business district, along Water, Front and South sts, and one a loft building on Broadway, running through to Mercer st. This is a partition sale by order of the Court, and will be sold at the stand of Joseph P. Day.

There are a number of voluntary offerings for the coming week on the 30th. Mr. Day will offer ten parcels, and on December 1. Bryan L. Kennelly and William Kennelly, Jr., have several parcels to offer.

SUGGESTIONS FOR EXTENSIONS OF SIXTH AND SEVENTH AVENUES.

Calvin Tomkins agrees with the proposition that the extension of 6th and 7th avs should be undertaken now while values along the proposed route are lower than they will be in the future. Speaking of the subject this week, Mr. Tomkins said an unusual opportunity was here afforded for the city to avail of the principle of EXCESS CONDEMNATION. If coincidentally with the execution of this improvement the city should acquire not only land for the extensions but the abutting lands on either side and at the same time arrange for building a subway through one of the new avenues, with provision for future similar use of the other avenue,—the sale or lease of the abutting property so taken, at its enhanced value due to the improvement, would in large part if not completely pay for the extensions.

"These street extensions must be made and the subways must be built," he added. "Why not utilize the opportunity so as to make the improvements pay for themselves, as the German cities are so effectively doing?

"Contrast this situation with that which exists at the 59th st approach to the Blackwell's Island Bridge. Here the necessity for street widening is already urgent and as the bridge traffic shall develop will become more and more so, and yet the expense attending this improvement seems at present to make it prohibitive, although in the future it will doubtless have to be undertaken however burdensome to the city it may be.

"Of all the street improvements contemplated by the City of New York the southerly extension of these two avenues, together with the widening and extension of Varick st, are the most practicable and easily effected. The necessity for the reorganization of the congested streets of lower Manhattan will become more apparent as this part of the city develops into the hub of the Port of New York, and any comprehensive plan for such reorganization will only be made possible by resorting to the policy of making improvements pay for themselves out of increase of land values."

SMALL INVESTORS BUYING MORTGAGES.

Mr. Salisbury, in charge of the mortgage department of the New York office of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company, said this week: "The most encouraging sign in connection with last week's business was the steady demand from investors for mortgages. We disposed of 126 mortgages aggregating $1,255,755, about $800,000 of this representing mortgages in Manhattan and the Bronx, and the balance in Brooklyn and Queens County. The small mortgages in amounts between $2,000 and $5,000, with interest guaranteed at 4½ per cent., are attracting to the field of mortgage investments many people who up to date have felt that mortgage investments were only for the people who had amounts of $10,000 or more to invest. If enough of these people are taught the value and safety of mortgage investments the property owners of the Greater City will have at their disposal for real estate purposes more than enough money to supply their demand for loans."

PRIVATE SALES MARKET

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET

IRVING PL.—Alfred M. Rau has bought from Sarah J. O'Neill and Grace R. Johnson 67 and 69 Irving pl, two 4-sty and basement dwellings, on plot 46x85.6, adjoining the northwest corner of 18th st. The buyer will erect a 12-sty loft building on the site. N. A. Berwin & Co. were the brokers.

Sale in Water Street.

WATER ST.—De Selding Brothers have sold for E. M. Fulton to V. M. Turner the 7-sty building at 81 Pine st and 128 Water st, forming an "L" around the southwest corner of Pine and Water sts, with frontages of 29.10 ft. and 23 ft. The buyer gives in part payment the new 4-story double flat 308 12th st, Brooklyn, between 5th and 6th avs.

15TH ST.—Geo. R. Read & Co. sold for William H. Burke, of Clifton Springs to James A. McMillan 141 West 15th st, a 3-sty and basement dwelling on a lot 20x103.3, between 6th and 7th avs. Eliza J. Lowden bought 143 and 145 adjoining in April last.

SMALL HOUSES NEEDED.

It is reported by real estate investors that since the opening of the Hudson tunnels there has been a large falling off in the supply of "ready-to-occupy homes" in nearby Jersey, more particularly in Hudson and Bergen counties.

The complaint in this direction is doubtless well founded, for go where one will in the territory referred to, the familiar cry is heard: "We want more new dwellings." This should be a warning both to the homeseeker and the investor. To the former it may shape itself into a suggestion to begin an early hunt for that dwelling, or for the land to build upon, that it has been decided to substitute for the city flat. Investors will read their way to quick sales and ready profits by erecting medium-priced houses in localities which they have no difficulty in discovering to be in need of them. Just at present, there may be said to be a dearth of comfortable homes across the Hudson that can be sold for from $4,500 to $7,500, a statement that can be confirmed by any real estate agency handling property of this description.

The condition spoken of applies as well to many of the outlying districts of Manhattan and the Bronx. Unless the demand for low-cost houses is met by real estate dealers and operators, it is reasonable to assume that many desirable home-buyers will be driven by necessity to locate in more distant parts, thus resulting in a considerable pecuniary loss to both which might otherwise be avoided.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Maximillian Weinstein, real estate broker, announces his removal from 35 Nassau st to 1123 Broadway.

The Realty Associates has declared a semi-annual dividend of three per cent. and an extra dividend of one per cent., payable January 15 to stock of record January 5.

The four 3-sty dwellings at 152 to 158 West 79th st, purchased by Edgar A. Levy in October as the site for a new apartment house, sold for $109,000. The plot is 67x102.2.

P. S. Treacy, who has been convalescing from an attack of inflammatory rheumatism at the Virginia Hot Springs, has returned and is at his office daily to transact business.

Loibl & Masson, of Manhattan, were the brokers for Justice P. Henry Dugro and John F. Reis in the sale, during the week, of the Barclay, Klein and Carpenter farms in Woodside, Queens Borough.

DeSelding Brothers have placed for James H. Cruikshank a first mortgage loan of $62,000 at 4½ per cent. for three years on his new 6-sty and basement fireproof mercantile building located at 483 to 485 Greenwich st, size 43.6x90.

Charles C. Missall, formerly of 390 Central Park West, has opened new offices at 2 Rector st, where he will conduct a general brokerage business. He will make a specialty of handling first and second mortgages, as well as building loans.

A. W. McLaughlin & Co. have placed for James H. Cruikshank on 487 to 489 Greenwich st, adjoining, a first mortgage loan of $63,000 at 4½ per cent. for five years. This building is also a 6-sty and basement fireproof mercantile building on plot 44x90.

Frederick W. Roe, of Brown, Draper & Co., and S. Seward Gould, for many years with Ogden & Clarkson, have formed a copartnership under the firm name of Roe & Gould. They will do a general real estate and fire insurance business at No. 262 5th av.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Realty Associates, held Wednesday, the following officers were elected: Frank Bailey, president; Clifford S. Kelsey, vice-president; William M. Greve, second vice-president; Henry A. Frey, treasurer, and Robert Wheelan, secretary.

Jacob A. King, the real estate agent who has been superintendent of a United States postal station for a long time, resigned from "Uncle Sam's" employment on Nov. 15. Mr. King's increasing responsibilities, owing to his many new real estate and insurance clients, has compelled him to take this step.

The Title Guarantee & Trust Company loaned on first mortgage $140,000 on the 6-sty brick apartment house at 207-209 West 56th st, 50x95.6, 150 feet west of 7th av, to the Clinton Realty Company. The mortgage is for five years at 4½ per cent., and has been assigned to the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

President Percy A. Gaddis, of the Jersey City Board of Brokers, has appointed a committee on appraisals, consisting of Cornelius J. Cronan, chairman, and all the members of the board in good standing. The object of this committee is to have a real estate broker give an order to the board for an appraisal, and when the appraisal is made to divide the fee between the board and the brokers.

The New York Central railroad is extending its holdings on the south side of 49th st, west of Park av. The property at 54 East 49th st, was transferred on Tuesday by Alexander M. Pennington, as executor, to the New York State Realty and Terminal Co., the New York Central's subsidiary corporation for holding title to its real estate. Recently the same company took over 60 East 49th st, from Maud Van B. Holme. The two intervening houses, 56 and 58 East 49th st, are owned by Robert A. Chesebrough and Edward A. Le Roy, respectively.

Work was started on Monday on the new 80-foot street which will connect the 33d st entrance to the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal with 34th st. House wreckers took possession of the property and the work of demolishing the present structures was commenced. The company owns a plot having a frontage of 295 feet in 33d st and 235 feet in 34th st, so there remains a plot of considerable size in each side of the new thoroughfare should the company decide to build. The 33d st entrance to the station leads directly to the concourse, and it is thought that a large percentage of the traffic will be diverted to 34th st by means of the new street.

William G. McAdoo, as president of the Hudson and Manhattan Railway Co., announced on Tuesday that the company has decided to offer for sale a large portion of its real estate in the block bounded by Christopher, Hudson, Greenwich and West 10th sts. This is the block in which the upper Hudson tunnel has its first station on Manhattan Island, and is at the junction of the Hudson tunnel with the 9th av elevated railroad, which has a station at Christopher st. The land to be sold has an area of about 22,000 square feet, and has a large frontage on Hudson, Greenwich and West 10th sts (including the corner of Greenwich and 10th sts), and has an outlet on Christopher st. Horace S. Ely & Co. are the agents.

THE WEST SIDE TAXPAYERS' ASSOCIATION BANQUET.

The West Side Taxpayers' Association held a banquet at their meeting rooms, Nos. 267 West 34th st, last Friday evening. On this occasion the installation of new officers took place. A handsome loving cup and a set of silver service was presented to the retiring president, Mr. Frank Demuth, for his long and faithful service to the association. The gifts were presented by John J. Phelan and Louis Schrag. Both spoke of Mr. Demuth's record and marked advancement of the West Side Taxpayers' Association during his administration.

The following speakers addressed the members: Thomas Krekeler, president of the United Real Estate Owners' Associations, spoke on association matters. Adolph Bloch spoke on the Tenement House Laws and their improvements. Ira J. Ettinger advised the taxpayers to oppose favorable action by the New York State Legislature upon the proposed amendment to the United States Constitution, giving Congress the power to enact an income tax law. Joseph A. Schaub, president of the 12th and 22d Wards Association talked on the reforms needed in our State legislation. Dr. Abraham Korn, president of the Harlem Property Owners' Association, spoke on what taxpayers' associations can accomplish for the entire community. Charles H. Schenelle spoke on the results achieved by our law and legislation committee during our last State Legislature. Other speakers were Pierre M. Clear, Dr. Gustav Scholer and Henry Bloch.

The new officers for the ensuing year are George Wenner, M. D., president; Charles Hvass, 1st vice-president; Philip G. Becker, 2d vice-president; Charles A. Schrag, recording and corresponding secretary; Fred Keller, treasurer; Julius Neke, financial secretary.

THE RESPONSIBLE BIDDER.

Real estate owners and agents not infrequently err when considering bids on repair work by finally closing a contract with the lowest bidder. It does not always follow because a contractor has the reputation for doing good work on a non-competitive job that he will give the same satisfaction under an agreement secured by close bidding. Generally speaking, flawless workmanship is not compatible with low prices. There is undoubtedly a sort of fetich in favor of the lowest bid under any and all circumstances, and the following view coming from the former Secretary of the Interior will prove interesting to both holders and managers of real property. The observation was made at a conference of supervising engineers, and is as follows:

"When the bids come in I want the local men never to hesitate to throw out unduly low bids. There is nothing more distressing to the department than to deal with a failing contractor. The mere fact that it is the lowest bid gives the presumption that it ought to be accepted, but if any engineer knows that a contractor has made a mistake or is not qualified or is not responsible, or is negligent in the method of performing his work, that should be one of the prime conditions to be considered in making a recommendation for or against giving the contract to that contractor. I always want the word 'responsibility' to be given the fullest meaning that the law will allow it. It must be the responsible bidder in every case. Much of our difficulty has been in dealing with men who were not responsible."

AN AID TO DEVELOPERS OF REALTY.

Developers of vacant real estate lying beyond the zone of public improvements will be interested in an experiment now being tried in one of the suburbs of the metropolis involving the erection of a number of residences equipped with all the sanitary conveniences of a city home. It consists of individual sewage disposal plants, being constructed so as to do away with the necessity of the regulation system of sewage. The plant referred to is a development of the so-called septic tank. The ordinary house drain is run into an underground tank of cast-iron where the liquefaction of the sewage is allowed to take place through the aid of aerobic bacteria. The liquid is then conducted into a nitrification duct where the liquefied sewage is purified before reaching the earth surrounding the duct.

According to experience, the trench to accommodate the nitrification duct is usually extended alongside the house, and is also parallel with the front of it. The duct is described as two lines of tile pipe laid with broken joints and both embedded in broken stone of similar material, one tile line being 12 ins. above the other. The upper one is connected with the outlet from the tank, while the lower one is employed as an air duct and at its discharge end is connected to an air inlet grating in some inconspicuous place in the sidewalk or in the lawn. This is an arrangement for providing an air circulation essential in the second process in the purification of sewage which demands the activity of aerobic bacteria—the class that needs air for existence. On account of the open and porous nature of the broken stone medium between the tiles and that the upper pipe will only have a stream of liquid in its bottom, it is the scheme of this system to allow for a movement of air from, say, the inlet grating through the lower tile pipe.

The main body of the tank is substantially a large iron pipe built in two parts, one fitting into a flanged recess of the other. The third or top part brings the top of the tank to the ground surface. After the excavation for the tank is made, concrete is spread over the bottom of the excavation and the iron pipe constituting the tank is then lowered in place. Over the concrete bottom and within the tank is added a further supply of concrete in order to insure a watertight bottom. With the tank comes an inlet and an outlet fitting passing through holes provided in the tank. These two fittings are practically tees and the inlet one is located slightly above the outlet. Both dip below the surface of the liquids in order not to agitate the floating material on the surface, and the upward pointing outlets of the fittings allow for a freedom of the movement of air from the outlet of the tank into the air space of the tank and thence into the inlet fitting and so into the house drain and the vent of the plumbing system. The two fittings lie on opposite sides of a diaphragm or baffle plate. This is to prevent an immediate admixture of the incoming fresh sewage and that partially purified and liquefied.

The cost of an outfit as outlined is not prohibitive. At Haworth, N. J., where the system is installed, the tanks are built in sections, which has been found to facilitate installation. When covered the tanks are located by a manhole cover at the surface of the ground.

BROKERS GET VERDICT.

A suit for commission tried before Judge Gerard, in which M. & L. Hess were the plaintiffs and Mattias Rock the defendant, resulted in a verdict for the full amount of $6,476 in favor of the plaintiffs.

The suit was based upon a lease made by Mr. Rock to the J. C. Lyons Building and Operating Company in July, 1907, for an 11-sty building erected by Mr. Rock at 13 and 15 West 27th st. The payment of the commission was refused on the ground that the plaintiffs were not present at the closing of the transaction.

LAW DEPARTMENT

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Will you kindly let me know through your Law Department column the following:

(1) I am the owner of a parcel of property on which a mortgage was given in 1884. Interest on mortgage and taxes not paid in 25 years. Property was sold by the city several times for arrearages. Could the mortgage be foreclosed now and a deficiency judgment rendered?

(2) If not, suppose I were to try and raise a mortgage on the property, would the prior mortgage be a detriment in trying to secure same?

(3) If you were in my position in this matter, would you reclaim the property and pay the back taxes? R. E. W.

Answer.—You need very decidedly the advice of a good attorney before taking so momentous a decision as indicated by your last question. The facts before us are too few for a decision of such moment to you. It is a rule of law that a mortgage on which interest has not been paid for twenty years is presumably paid. But this is only a presumption and may be proven not to be a fact.

The recent Title Registration law was intended among other things to cover just such questions as this, and provide a method of making questionable titles clear.

You could not get any cautious attorney for a mortgage lender to loan his client's money on a title so doubtful as to possible lien of the old mortgage as this would be.

If the property be of value, why not buy up the tax lien through the city sale for taxes, through a third party, and foreclose the lien after six months; making the holder of the old mortgage, or his representatives, a party to cut off the lien.—Ed.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

A broker leases a house for three years, and the owner accepts the tenant and pays the commission. After a year or more the tenant, not being able to pay the rent, vacates the house. The same broker rents the house for five years to another party and claims commission for full term. The owner says he is not entitled to full commission, as he has already received a commission for a part of the term and would therefore receive two commissions for the same period. The broker claims that as the owner accepted the first tenant, the second lease had no bearing in the first. Which is right? A BROKER.

Answer.—On general principles the broker is correct as to the law. If another broker had made the second letting with authority to do so, or with an acceptance of the proposal by the landlord implying such authority, there could be no question but that a commission would be earned by the other broker. We can see no ground under this reasoning why the original broker is not likewise entitled to a second commission, unless he guaranteed the original lessee in some way, or had accepted under that lease the relation of renting agent to the property, charging a continuing commission on the collection of the rents. In this case we believe he would be required to keep the property rented from time to time as it became vacant, without a special commission on each new letting.—Ed.

PUBLIC DIRECTORIES.

In a recent issue the American Contractor discussed the improvement of street signs, pointing out that nothing in this country suggests the exercise of a wider range of genius than signs of this description. One of the suggestions advanced relates to the improvement of such directories as are now in use by erecting at prominent corners, such as transfer points of street railways, elevated stations and important centres, signs containing information as to the location of parks, public buildings and other things of importance, with the lines of transportation reaching them.

The question of street signs has been periodically brought up by the municipal authorities hereabouts with the result that a large proportion of streets in Manhatan and the Bronx are at present adequately supplied with good street signs. To be complete, though, a considerable number of them containing clearer information should at least be hung at reasonable distances along prominent thoroughfares, in order that drivers of vehicles may readily determine their whereabouts without blocking traffic to the dismay of shopkeepers and property owners, as frequently happens at present.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1909.

9th.—T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

Nov. 19, 20, 22, 23 and 24.

Vol. LXXXIV. DECEMBER 4, 1909. No. 2177

THE income account of the Interborough Company for the year ending June 30th last shows clearly that it should divide the profits of the proposed Seventh avenue and Madison avenue extensions with the city. The net income of the Interborough Company for the year amounted to about 13 per cent. on the original stock of that company. Thus after four years and a half of operation it is earning a percentage on its original stock which would have made that stock worth somewhere between 250 and 300—provided no merger had taken place. Moreover, the chance of future profit is still very large. The Subway is carrying now a much heavier traffic than it did last year, and will probably earn over 15 per cent. during the current period. The lengthening of the platforms will increase its carrying capacity by 30 per cent; and the increase of residential population on Washington Heights and of business population at Longacre Square and along Fourth avenue will provide eventually a much greater density of traffic dependent exclusively on the Subway. In another five years its net earnings will probably amount to over 20 per cent. on its original stock. When the Broadway-Lexington avenue line is operated there will be a reduction, but not for long, nor will it be serious. The proposed extensions along Madison and Seventh avenues will not be so quickly profitable as the existing Subway, and they will be burdened with a heavier load of interest charges; but at the end of ten years they will be earning far more than six per cent. on the value of the stock necessary to equip them. The districts through which they run are destined to great future business development, and eventually the traffic which they develop will be as dense as it is on the existing Subway. It is only fair that any profits over six per cent. on the stock issued to pay for the equipment of the proposed extensions should be shared between the company and the city.

THE LATEST phase of the continuous disputing performance between the Public Service Commission and the Interborough Company leaves the contending parties so far apart that the public, which is interested personally in new subways, has reason to be discouraged. If the commission was absolutely opposed to the terms under which the Interborough Company proposed to build its extensions, why did they not announce this decision long ago and make some effort in the meantime to reach an understanding? As it is, six months more have been lost and nothing accomplished. In respect to the merits of the present dispute, the Record and Guide is inclined to sympathize with the commission on some counts and with the Interborough Company on others. The former is right in objecting to saddling on the city the cost of all the real estate, easement, damage suits and increased taxes. It is right also in insisting that the Subway extensions shall not be built under the terms of contract, but shall afford the city a share of any future profits above interest and sinking fund requirements. The proposed subways are too important to be treated merely as extensions; and while it is reasonable that they should be leased for a definite period, it is unreasonable to demand from the city all the probable profits of such a lease. The rate of remuneration which the company propose to pay for third-track privileges on the East Side elevated roads is also too small; but inasmuch as these tracks would only accommodate long-distance passengers and would be an immense and easily accessible convenience to the swarming inhabitants of the East Side, it seems as if this point might be waived—providing the company met the commission's objections in the two other respects. On the other hand, when Mr. Willcox declares that the Interborough Company cannot be allowed to build any extensions in Manhattan and the Bronx unless it also builds more subways in Brooklyn, the Record and Guide feels bound to declare the demand unreasonable. The failure of the Interborough Company to propose certain needed Brooklyn extensions would be censurable, provided the monopoly of that company in respect to rapid transit was complete, or in case, as far as it is complete, it were to be preserved. But the commission has laid out a new route in Manhattan competitive with the existing Subway rather than supplementary thereto, and this route is apparently intended for the purpose of affording another company an entrance into Manhattan. Moreover, this Manhattan route includes a Brooklyn extension and is officially called the "Tri-Borough System." Finally, the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company already operates elevated roads in Brooklyn and wants to supply additional means of rapid transit. Why, when the Interborough Company is obliged to meet all this competition, should it be obliged to assume the responsibilities of a monopoly and be forced to build subways wherever the commission thinks they are needed? Above all, why should the poor tax-payers and travelers of Manhattan, who have been denied additional rapid transit for years because the Fourth Avenue Subway in Brooklyn blocked the road—why should they continue to suffer from intolerable congestion, because Brooklyn may be suffering from a milder version of the same trouble? Last year the commission said to Manhattan, "You cannot have any subways, no matter how profitable they may be, until an unprofitable subway has been built in Brooklyn." Now when the Brooklyn subway is under construction, the commission says: "No matter how much certain parts of Manhattan and the Bronx remain in need of subways, we object to their construction until still more subways are laid out and contracted for in Brooklyn." Why this persistent discrimination against Manhattan?

CERTAIN CONSERVATIVE financial writers have recently been warning the business community that the business of the country is again showing symptoms of a dangerous excess of prosperity; and the warning should most assuredly be seriously considered. With the defective currency and credit system of the United States, every period of good times, when capital is in demand for all sorts of business purposes, tends soon to stretch the financial resources of the country to the point of absolute inelasticity; and something of the kind is happening now. Money is, indeed, easier than it was, but the comparative ease has the appearance of being only temporary. In case the business expansion continues, relief will have to be found in some direction; and it is not apparent just where such relief can be obtained. The railroads will need to raise or borrow a great deal of money during the coming year. They cannot obtain that money on advantageous terms, in case there is a fall in the price of stocks. On the other hand, stocks could not be further advanced without the employment of an amount of capital for the purpose that would make credit conditions still more dangerous. Possibly the situation may be straightened out, in case stocks are kept at about their present level and further speculation discouraged; but even such measures may not be effective, because it looks as if the general economic situation was becoming unwholesomely speculative. The price of commodities has almost reached the level prevailing in March, 1907. In some lines, such as food, prices are higher than ever before in the history of the country. People are spending money as extravagantly as they were three years ago. Imports are enormous. Exports are less than they were last year. The country is exporting all the gold it produces. Real estate speculation is rampant in the West. The prices of agricultural land has been very much increased, owing to the prosperity of the farmers of that region; and they have been borrowing money on this increased value in order to buy more land. In the meantime wage-earners have not, except in exceptional cases, received any increase in wages, and it looks as if during the coming year the higher cost of living, coupled with the comparative immobility of wages, would result in serious industrial disturbances. In spite of all these dangerous symptoms, there is no immediate threat of a crisis, but storm signals are certainly flying. It behooves conservative business men to take in sail, and prepare against a check to the business expansion of the country and a contraction of credit and confidence.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that a prominent firm of carriage-builders has acquired possession of a corner of 53d Street and 5th Avenue may cause some consternation in that exclusive neighborhood; but it should not cause any surprise. Business is bound to take possession of 5th Avenue as far as the Plaza; and the attempt to stop the invasion would cost the neighboring residents more money than they will probably care to devote to the purpose. The situation along this part of 5th Avenue is essentially different from the situation on Madison Avenue between 35th and 41st Streets. The value of property on Madison Avenue for business purposes is less than half what it is on 5th Avenue north of 34th Street, and if Madison Avenue south of 34th is occupied by the wholesale trade, the few blocks on that avenue immediately north of 34th Street will remain for an indefinite period more valuable for residential than for business appropriation. But the economic conditions contributing to 5th Avenue values are wholly different. It is settled that the cream of the retail trade of New York is to be concentrated on 5th Avenue from 34th Street north. Real estate values along that stretch have reached an unprecedented level, considering the large amount of property affected, a level approaching $350,000 for inside lots. The insistent demand which has caused such huge prices must be satisfied by an extension of the area of its influence; and the only available direction of extension is along 5th Avenue itself. When business men are willing to offer such prices for 5th Avenue property, they are sure to tempt the owners of private residences—even when they are themselves very rich—to sell; and little by little the older houses on this stretch of the avenue will fall into the gulf opened up by the retail development of the avenue. There can be no doubt, however, that a steady resistance will be encountered. Houses, such as those belonging to the Vanderbilts, for instance, have cost an amount of money which make them more valuable to their present occupiers than they would be even to the most opulent retail firms; and their proprietors would not allow themselves to be dislodged even by the prices now prevailing. But in the course of time, either the pressure of demand will force prices still higher until they become tempting even to very rich men, or else the neighborhood will become less desirable for residential purposes, and the Vanderbilts and their kind will get out of their own accord. But this will be a slow process, so far as the present millionaire proprietors are concerned; and it is possible that they may combine to prevent the stray houses, owned by less wealthy individuals, from passing into the possession of retail firms. In any event, it is probable that Madison Avenue from 42d to 59th Streets will share in the prospects of this part of 5th Avenue and will gradually become occupied by a good class of retail shops. North of 49th Street it will be easier for the retail trade to appropriate Madison Avenue than it will be to appropriate for similar business purposes the side streets in that vicinity leading off 5th Avenue.

DISCRETIONARY POWER IN THE BUILDING DEPARTMENT.

O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursel's as ithers see us!
It wad frae monie a blunder free us;

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

WHILE reading the article in last week's issue of your paper entitled "Essential Principles of a Building Code," the above words of Burns were constantly in my mind. In a note at the foot of the article it is stated that it was the principal portion of a paper read by Mr. Lawrence Veiller before the National Municipal League at Cincinnati. I am writing this on the assumption that the gentleman referred to is the same Mr. Lawrence Veiller who had more or less to do with the Tenement House Law of New York City. It is difficult, however, to recognize in the writer of that article the same gentleman who appeared a few months ago before Governor Hughes at Albany to advocate an amendment to the Tenement House Law providing that discretionary power be given to the Commissioner of the Tenement House Department, when a few weeks later, a man of the same name, I presume the same man, appeared before Mayor McClellan of this city to protest against any discretionary power being given the Superintendent of Buildings in the proposed building code. The question naturally arises in the mind of any man acquainted with the facts, what was the motive that prompted these two positions in the same man within a few weeks of one another which were in principle so diametrically opposite?

In regard to the special article to which we have referred, the trouble with it, as with most writings that come from so-called altruists, no matter what their motives, is that so many of their statements are but half truths, and this may possibly account for the fact that this address was given in Cincinnati, where the facts are not known, rather than in New York City, where they are known.

For instance, the writer states "that in 1895 there was a tenement house law enacted which provided that no tenement house erected after that date should occupy more than sixty-five per cent. of the lot." They, however, added a clause to the effect that where the light and ventilation of a building was materially improved the Superintendent of Buildings might permit a greater per cent. of the lot to be occupied, but in no case more than seventy-five per cent. In a word, they departed from their original purpose of definitely limiting the amount of land to be occupied, believing that the enforcing officer might be permitted to use his judgment and permit a larger proportion to be covered in special cases. Now, what actually happened? Within a year every tenement house that was erected occupied a full seventy-five per cent. of the lot."

The trouble with the foregoing statement is this, that the writer of the article referred to further states "that the clear intent of the framers of the law was that not more than sixty-five per cent. of the lot should be occupied," when as a matter of fact the purpose of the framers of the law was not that the improvement on a lot should be limited to sixty-five per cent. of the lot, but that by giving builders ten per cent. of additional leeway, providing they gave BETTER LIGHT AND VENTILATION than the law called for, they would be induced to put in a better type of building. And the fact of the matter is that in a large measure it produced that very result, as the type of tenement house erected after 1895 was very much better that what preceded it, and the best thing about it was that the rents of the poor were not materially increased. This latter part is the milk in the cocoanut of the entire matter, and undoubtedly was the principal factor in the minds of the men who framed the law of 1895, but it never enters the minds of the so-called altruists who have for years stood in the way of common-sense tenement house legislation.

Now take another statement in the article referred to: "In this subject (discretionary power of the Superintendent of Buildings) is wrapped up nearly everything of importance in a building code. There is little use in providing with minute care for the thickness of walls of certain heights, the methods of building firestops, the way in which plumbing shall be ventilated, if at the same time you give to your enforcing official the power to change all these requirements at his discretion." A man in Cincinnati who heard this statement would be forced to exclaim: "What rascality there must be in New York City when they allow such things!" but to a builder in the City of New York who has had dealings with the Building Department it means nothing, as he knows from his own experience that while the discretionary power of the Superintendent of Buildings may be used in the matter of thickness of walls, where an equally good construction is substituted, it is never used to permit the elimination of firestops where required, nor to allow an unsanitary method of ventilating plumbing, nor in fact any matter affecting the life, health and safety of the people.

Further on in the article this statement occurs: "Unfortunately, however, New York's Building Code," not only the proposed one but also the present one, "is a whited sepulchre." I maintain, on the contrary, that New York City at the present time is working under the best building code that has ever been given to any city, that the best evidence of this fact is the magnificent progress that our city has made under it, and that notwithstanding the hundreds of millions of dollars spent in building construction, and some of it the largest and highest buildings on earth, we never hear of any failure or the collapse of any of our buildings because of construction permitted by the Superintendent of Buildings in any of the five boroughs composing Greater New York.

Now just one more quotation. "To sum up, Building Codes should be Definite, Clear and Precise." Listen to that, ye architects and builders of apartment houses and tenement houses, who for eight years have racked your brains over the Tenement House Law! Listen to that, ye men who for years have been filing plans in the tenement house department under the Tenement House Law and have found that scores of sections of the law have never had the same meaning two months in succession!

These are not my words, "Definite, Clear and Precise." These are the words of the man who has publicly stated that he has had as much to do as any one man in the preparation of the present Tenement House Law. Ponder these words. Dwell on them. "Definite, Clear and Precise," and place them beside your experience with the Tenement House Law, and imagine if you can what your experiences would be if you had a building code drawn that would be "Definite, Clear and Precise," to the mind of a man who had in any large measure to do with drafting the present Tenement House Law with its possibilities of ten thousand interpretations.

In conclusion, permit me to say that there are at least two things about the proposed new building code that the architects, builders, real estate owners and the building trades generally are agreed and upon which they will insist, namely: Discretionary power to the Superintendent of Buildings in the

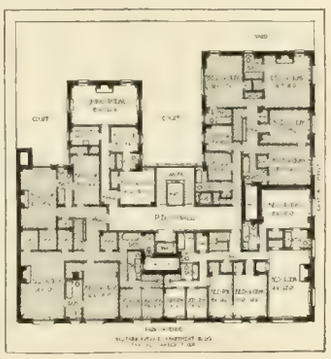
CONSTRUCTION.

THE REBUILDING OF PARK AVENUE



To Exemplify Modern Ideals for Residential Planning in a Great City—Giant "Club" Apartment Houses and Individual Mansions.

BREAKING into public consciousness is the fact that Park av, reconstructed, will be the most modern residential boulevard in the city. By this is meant that the old thoroughfare will be made the one most nearly responding to the new ideals of elegant urban living, as exemplified by the "club" apartment house and its aristocratic relatives, without crowding out the individual mansion. No one type of building will exclude its rival in the "New Park Avenue." Some time ago there was a feeling that when a multi-family house entered a choice neighborhood the doom of private dwellings there was pronounced, and because of the prevalence of this opinion Park av was for a long period looked upon as a builder's problem.

Now the case is clear. There must be in the American metropolis, as in every other, a supremely fashionable residential avenue, and if Fifth avenue has become insufficient, or less available, it must have its fellow—a "second Fifth Avenue." In reconstructing an old thoroughfare to meet this requirement the newer ideas and necessities that have been accepted and recognized by good society must be taken into account. Hence, the really "modern" fashionable boulevard is by the very nature of things compelled to exemplify the new as well as the old standards of living, and on Park avenue at the present moment may be seen under construction, simultaneously, both co-operative and individual houses of the highest type in their respective classes.

THE INTERESTING PORTION.

Park av, between 59th and 85th sts, is being made over. It presents the rare spectacle of a longitudinal avenue being transformed, not from residential to business uses, but from a rather commonplace thoroughfare of uncertain architectural standing into an exclusively residential and fashionable parkway. Manhattan Island has not seen such an occurrence in many years. Authorities seem to be agreed that a building movement has started here which will not end until the highest expectations are realized. The mainspring of the movement was the elimination of locomotive smoke and noises, leaving what was naturally a broad and handsome parkway in peace and quietness. It is one of the few avenues that has no surface cars, it is not convenient for business traffic and the few small shops remaining will eventually have to go.

One who wishes to get a good first impression of what is being done should start at the upper end, and 86th st seems to be the northern boundary, for the reason that a crosstown trolley comes through Central Park from the West Side at this latitude, and makes it a sort of getting-off place. There are two churches in this neighborhood, and one more under construction, the latter at the southeast corner of 85th st for the Old South congregation, which is now worshipping on Madison av, at the southeast corner of 38th st, which is just inside the limits of the old Murray Hill farm. The new temple is being constructed from plans of Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson, of New York and Boston, who are known to the world as the architects of the New West Point. The walls are only a little way above the ground as yet. Native granite from the foundations is being surfaced and laid with courses of Indiana limestone, much in the same style as in the new Union Theological Seminary and in the new City College.

Mr. Amos R. E. Pinchot recently completed a beautiful white stone residence on the northeast corner of 85th st, diagonally across from the new church, and in order to ensure the high character of this particular neighborhood he has bought the other two corners, together with much other property along the avenue. Mr. Pinchot is a relative to those Enos whose per-spicuity and influence in real estate matters are well known. With such interests dominating it is very certain that the north end of the line will be either handsomely improved or well protected.

Since the new movement began—and Senator Root was the first one to build—the improvements have been exceedingly handsome without a single exception, but the architectural possibilities have not yet been fathomed. Park av has a width of 140 feet, and apartment houses of a height of 210 feet, or twenty stories, can be erected there. Presumably builders will yet take full advantage of this fact, and still without making the skyline too ragged. The "club" type of house will have a number of examples. The one at the northeast corner of 80th st, finished a year ago from plans of Delano & Aldrich, architects, by the William J. Taylor Company, has thirteen stories, and it was, naturally, worked out along the lines of ampler space, and with a higher degree of comfort and luxury than had been known in houses of the co-operative type up to that time.

In general plan these apartments differed from the conventional co-operative apartments through the greater space given to the service. There are three types of apartments in this house. There are large duplex apartments, three on each floor, with smaller bachelor apartments in the rear; and there are triplex apartments beginning on the ground floor. There are no studios in the building, but the apartments are all planned and worked out to look as much as possible like gentlemen's private houses, free from the characteristics which mark the usual apartment house. In all these co-operative houses the effort is made to secure a note of real distinction, and this is true of the 12-sty house at the northeast corner of 77th st that was erected by the same builders, the William J. Taylor Company, which is a very prominent instrumentality in the re-improvement of the avenue. It seems only a short time ago when Mr. Taylor was making his pioneer efforts in the line of co-operative houses, in which he is now so well established.

At the southwest corner of 76th st, with the Taylor Co. as contractor, from plans of Pickering & Walker, architects, (103 Park av) for the "929 Park Avenue Company," a 12-sty co-operative house is being erected at the present time. George P. Walker is president of the company of owners. A row of very substantial apartment houses was eliminated to make room for this great house, which will have a frontage on the avenue of 117 feet and a depth of 100 on 76th st. A typical floor plan shows a building following the form of the letter "H" with all the master rooms facing on the avenue or the street. The method followed practically eliminates public, private and rear corridors, and all the other waste space that is seen in some duplex houses. This house will contain thirty-six duplex and twelve single apartments, with rentals ranging between two and four thousand dollars, each, according to location. By excluding unusually large salons, the owners obtain a greater amount of rentable area and a larger yield, and tenants lower rentals than in some houses. This is the theory on which the house is being erected.

Thus far the sightseer in his southward stroll has seen only apartment houses among the new constructions, but at 73d st (the northeast corner) he comes upon the site of Oakleigh Thorne's new residence, now occupied by the 7-sty Brandon apartment house, which is to make way—though it is a building of considerable size and pretensions as old houses go. Just north of the corner where Mr. Thorne's house is to rise is the beautiful white stone house of Mr. James Brown, of Brown Brothers, the bankers, which occupies a single interior lot. On the southeast corner of 73d st Mr. George E. Fahys is making over a 4-sty apartment house into an artistic private residence. It has a limestone base of two stories, and then two stories of very dark red brick. At the corner, in the first story of the house, he has made a room for his automobile.

Senator's Root's new residence is at the southeast corner of 71st street. At the northwest corner of 71st st, diagonally across from Senator Root's, is the house for George S. Brewster, which Charles T. Wills (Inc.) is building from plans by Trowbridge & Livingston. Adjoining on the north is the new residence of Theodore Douglas Robinson. Another Brewster residence stands at the southeast corner of 79th street. This residence of Robert S. Brewster has been standing for several years. Property owners in this vicinity are taking active steps to have the property of the Freundschaft Society, at the southeast corner of 72d street restricted to private dwellings. The plan is for the neighbors to subscribe a fund of $100,000, to be paid to the society as a gratuity, if it will do this, rather than sell to apartment house builders. Within a very few weeks the probability that the entire neighborhood will be devoted to fine residences has been strengthened as the result of the sale of the Union Theological seminary's block front, between 69th and 70th streets, to Commodore Arthur Curtiss James and George Blumenthal, of Lazard Freres. The Presbyterian hospital block bounded by 70th and 71st streets, Park and Madison avenues, it is understood, will also be restricted to private residences.

J. G. Rogers, architect, has filed plans for a four story and attic building, to be built at the northwest corner of Park avenue and 64th street, for Jonathan Bulkley. It is to be of limestone, in the style of Louis XVI. period, ornately decorated, having a central entrance, and ornamental balconies at casement windows, and will be crowned with a mansard and balustrade.

Clients of the firm of Leonard J. Carpenter acquired, a few days ago, the row of five brownstone houses at Nos. 588 to 596 Park avenue, 100 feet on the avenue and about 75 feet deep, between 63d and 64th streets, west side, formerly owned by a company headed by James C. McGuire, the engineer, who is now building on Riverside Drive. A high class apartment house will be erected on the site.

On the northeast corner of 62d st the steel frame of a 12-story co-operative house is being put together by the William J. Taylor Company, as the builder, for "No. 563 Park Avenue Co.," on a plot 65 ft. front by 95 deep. The house is being erected from plans of Walter B. Chambers, of 35 Wall st, and will contain duplex apartments and the fine conveniences characteristic of all of Mr. Taylor's houses. The maximum rent will be about $5,000.

A 15-story co-operative apartment house is being put together at the southeast corner of 61st st and Park av by the Thompson Starrett Company, from plans by Herbert Lucas, the architect who designed a very successful house of that kind which was recently erected in Gramercy Park. This house on Park av will also be owned co-operatively,—by a corporation headed by Howard Mansfield, of Lord, Day & Lord, President; Henry B. Platt, of the Fidelity Trust and Deposit Company, Vice-President; C. Loring Brace, Treasurer. The apartments in this house will not follow any typical plan, but will be arranged to suit the owners' needs and will almost invariably be duplex and as closely resembling a large private house as possible under the circumstances.

CONCRETE APPLIED TO DWELLING HOUSE CONSTRUCTION.

By ROSS F. TUCKER,* M. Am. Soc. C. E.

THE next step in the extension of the use of concrete will be its adaptation to the construction of dwellings. With the army of block machines that are on the market and the great quantity of output from these machines, the bulk of which goes into dwellings, the step above-mentioned has already been in a manner taken, although in the writer's opinion, the technique of the method of manufacture to which many block makers are restricted, renders it difficult to manufacture a wholly satisfactory product. The percentage of water used in mixing will not sufficiently lubricate the aggregates to produce the greatest possible density and strength. All the ramming and tamping in the world, all the pressure that can be exerted by hydraulics or otherwise will not compress a dry, poorly-made concrete into a dense, water-tight block. The particles of aggregate arch themselves and cannot be forced to fill the corners and interstices without sufficient water to allow the faces and surfaces of the aggregate to slip on one another.

It is curious that so many people have taken to block-making as if there were something new about it. Artificial stone was made thirty years ago, and in a manner similar to the block machine method of to-day, and the resultant product had many of the defects of these later productions—a soft, absorbent, spongy mass, of low compressing strength, requiring all sorts of treatments to make it waterproof. The whole practice is wrong, and the only difference between the old method and that of to-day lies in the numerous mechanical devices, which, with greater or less ingenuity, reduce the labor and mold cost to a minimum. All walls built of such material must be so constructed as to avoid the dampness that such concrete must necessarily acquire, and the very softness of the stone precludes any surface treatment that can be called interesting or satisfying in any degree.

All concrete, to be strong and sound, must be wet concrete, far too wet to be delivered from its mold for considerable periods of time. The best artificial stone made in this country to-day is manufactured in Boston by the wet process. The selection of aggregates, together with intelligent mixing, secures results that in the finished product are astonishing and are not attained by any process block machine yet devised.

Again, solid wall construction is very limited in its application to dwelling house work. While we have about solved the problem of the mill and factory building, both structurally and economically in reinforced concrete, the same cannot be said at all of dwelling houses. In the mill and factory structure we have a relatively large amount of concrete as compared with the lumber and labor involved in the making of the forms, whereas, in the dwelling house, with the cut-up surfaces and irregular openings, the ratio of the cost of forms to the concrete is out of all proportion and places concrete practically out of the running in comparison with other material. Moreover, the internal stresses, particularly the shrinkage of concrete in mass, are such that the walls are almost sure to crack. They must be furred or an air space formed, otherwise they will be damp and extremely unsatisfactory. In the fall and spring there is a likelihood of condensation on the inside of an uninsulated concrete wall, and, last of all, it is a difficult matter to give a solid wall any architectural treatment that can be called satisfactory, except at a very considerable expense.

The wooden house is, of course, highly inflammable and should be only built as a last resort. Such a house covered with metal lath and furred has some excellent architectural possibilities, but when well-built, will not be found to be cheaper than a rough brick wall, for the frame must be sheathed, papered, metal furred and lathed and covered with scratch coat of mortar before it is in condition to receive the stucco. This will be found to approximate closely the cost of brick work. Much has been said about the faults of stucco work, but like many another failure in the use of concrete, they are traceable to the ignorance of the user rather than to the fault of the material. Stucco has been greatly abused but it will do good service every time if properly made and applied. I have placed ornamental stucco on the exterior of a power house on the St. Lawrence River, on tile, brick and lath surfaces where it has been subjected to a yearly range of 120 degree temperature for ten years, and it is as good to-day as when applied, although the plastering on the inside, made exactly the same way, of the same material, came off in pieces a yard square on the same walls within two months after it was applied.

*President, Concrete Association of America, New York, N. Y. A paper read before the National Association of Cement Users.

HOW STUCCO SHOULD BE MADE.

Stucco should be made of selected material, not of dirty, clayey bank sand. There are great possibilities in the future of stucco when properly handled. But for this development must come a cheap wall. The writer had occasion to make a study of this problem of a cheap wall construction for stucco application for the late Stanford White, who, had he lived, would have taken some steps to show what could be done in decorative stucco. But all existing methods have been too expensive and we must devise a cheap dry wall before we can make material progress in dwelling house work.

The nearest approach to the ideal wall for concrete dwelling houses seems to have been worked out through the method of placing wet concrete into steam jacketed molds and rapidly hardening it by a controllable heat. This method has proven economical and seems to have solved the problem of handling wet concrete and producing a dense, strong building unit at a very low cost. Considerable building has already been done with these blocks, and the development will be watched with great interest. With such a wall, the extension and possibilities of concrete decoration are unlimited and the future will give us fireproof homes of high structural and architectural value at low cost. The method is so simple, the requirements of skilled labor are so greatly reduced, that houses of concrete, fireproof throughout, may be constructed at a price to compare favorably with wood, and upon the walls may be produced a great variety of color and texture effects, in stuccos made of many materials, enlivened with masses of color in Faience and Mosaic, that give the architect great opportunity for the exercise of his artistic abilities. It will create a school of design adapted to the material and be productive of a style of dwelling possessing individuality and character combined with durability and permanency such as we know little of thus far in our suburban architecture.

different boroughs, and a Board of Appeals to whom we can take our cases when we feel that we have not been accorded a square deal. We will not tolerate a continuance of the conditions under which we have suffered during the last four years by the principles advocated in the article referred to and the consequences of which were so vividly illustrated in the conditions made possible by these methods put into effect by the Tenement House Department and the Tenement House Commissioner who is and has been for the past four years persona grata with these principles. WINDOW BOXES AND THE LIKE.—It is well known that the use of window boxes to brighten stern facades is much more common in Europe than in America, and that the Germans especially have carried this form of exterior decoration to great lengths. A German writer in a German magazine—"Der Städtebau"—has recently given in notes of travel some interesting examples. He speaks of the Town Hall in Karlsruhe as the best known instance of the decoration of a public building in a large way by this means. Every window of the structure has its box and a long box extends across the recessed balcony of the central pavilion. "I do not know," the writer says, "whether the same plants are used every year, but this year it was the new blue petunias whose color and size were distinctive. There are in each case two boxes, one placed above the other, the petunias in the upper box falling over the plants in the lower one, and standing upright are geraniums."

NEWEST OF THE CITY'S STRUCTURAL GIANTS.

Work is now to go ahead on the proposed extension to the Whitehall Building in Battery place. The United States Realty and Improvement Company, having acquired the stock of the Battery Place Realty Company and the latter, which is now a subsidiary company of the United States Realty Co., will erect the building illustrated by the perspective. It was originally planned to erect a tower thirty-six stories high, or 447 feet, and a West st wing thirty-one stories, separated from the present building by a broad exterior court, with a sixteen-story annex in Washington st. At this time the Washington st annex is not to be constructed, and the space will be left for light and ventilation. The part to be erected will be the 31-sty and basement addition upon the plot immediately adjoining the Whitehall Building on the north.

The present building has a frontage of 180.6 ft. in Battery place, facing south, overlooking Battery Park and the harbor; frontages of 69.1 ft. in West st, facing the Hudson River, and 63.4 ft. in Washington st. The plot contains about 12,000 square feet. The combined plot of the present Whitehall Building and the new 31-sty addition comprises 51,515 square feet, or nearly twenty-one city lots.

The enlarged building will have a frontage of 307.2½ ft. in Washington st and 180.8 ft. on Battery place. It is estimated by its projectors that it will be the largest single office building in the city. The height of the building will be 416 ft. from curb to roof, while the boiler room will be 26 ft. below the curb. There will be thirty elevators.

In all there will be 11,000,000 cubic feet, with a rentable area of 550,000 square feet. In it will be used 14,000 tons of structural steel, 7,500,000 common brick, 900,000 face brick, and 45,000 barrels of cement. The general contract has been awarded to the Geo. A. Fuller Co. Messrs. Clinton & Russell, 32 Nassau st, are the architects, and the cost is placed at about $4,600,000. The original Whitehall Building was built by the Battery Place Realty Co., organized by William H. Chesebrough and was opened on May 1, 1903. The completion of the new Custom House and the erection of the Chesebrough, Battery Park, Maritime and Whitehall buildings by Robert A. and William H. Chesebrough have revolutionized the entire neighborhood and have emphasized its possibilities for office purposes. For further description of this operation see issue of Sept. 5, 1908.

—Now that the New Haven Company is the owner of the Tarrytown, White Plains and Mamaroneck line, the deed to which it will take on December 6, it is understood that the company intends to begin the work immediately of improving the roadbed, putting down new ties and making other important improvements along the entire system.

THE FANCY FOR OLD MAHOGANY.

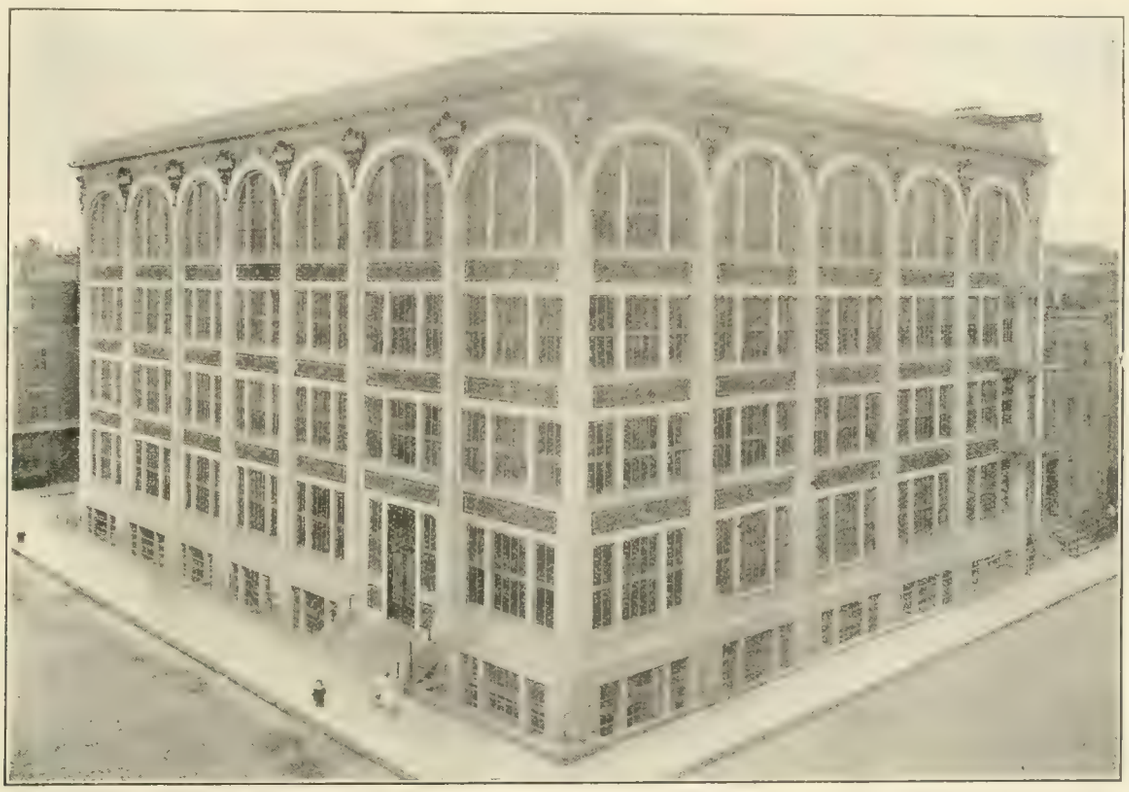
Advices from England say that real old English mahogany furniture has almost altogether vanished from the antique shops, and only copies of the genuine are now to be found in the market. The home demand for genuine antiques is so keen that but few pieces are exported.

In this country the quest for the prized furniture meets with more success when the collector is willing to pay a fair value. In New England the demand so far exceeds what can be found in the shops that collectors from there have begun to enquire for it in the old counties along the Hudson River. Last week two were at Goshen, in Orange County. They were said to represent a leading Boston citizen who is building a palatial residence in the Colonial style in the suburbs and desired to furnish it entirely in real old mahogany. These further incidents are related in a village paper:

"It is said that they called at the home of S. S. Peloubet, at Johnson's Corner, and offered $1,000 for a solid mahogany piano of antique design. The offer was declined, and thereupon increased to $2,000 and later to $3,000. This last offer was also refused, as Mrs. Peloubet had given the piano some time ago to her daughter, who is the wife of a minister in a neighboring town. It is also said that the men offered $1,000 for an old mahogany four poster bed in the Peloubet home. This offer was not accepted.

"In another home where a mahogany piano was found they offered a new modern upright piano in its place. The offer was not accepted, and the tender of $300 cash was made instead, and also refused. Old chairs, desks and sofas were purchased in other places at fancy prices."

THE POSSIBILITY OF NEW YORK BURNING DOWN.—There is a certain body of opinion which holds that New York City is some day to be almost destroyed by a conflagration, and another body of opinion which does not believe anything of the sort. Our Professor Humphrey solemnly informed the people of London this week that New York was doomed. In his interview Mr. Humphrey quoted the rate of loss by fire in Europe at 33 cents per capita, against this country, with its loss of $3 per capita, and he said that Europe was better equipped to prevent and extinguish fires than America unless the building laws of American cities be revised. Chief Croker, replying, says New York will never have such a conflagration. "To be sure we could have a fire in one block which might do as much money damage as the Baltimore fire, which he mentions, but as for a fire sweeping over any such territory it could not happen here. Look at the statistics prepared for all the places in the country, which show that in this city 99 per cent. of all the fires in a year were confined to the building of their origin." The fact has been brought out by the discussion that notwithstanding the stone and other fireproof construction of buildings which prevails in Europe, the insurance companies there were permitted by law to insure only to one-half the value of buildings or stocks and that this was by many regarded as a factor not wholly negligible in the good fire record over there.



MORE AND MORE the big work comes forward as the year draws to a close. Authority was given to the Bridge Department this week to advertise for bids on the general contract to construct the eight-million dollar municipal building. A change of ownership having been effected for the Whitehall Building, the U. S. Realty and Improvement Company, as the new controlling interest, intends to have the George A. Fuller Company begin the construction of an immense annex to that building, which is the first skyscraper to arrest the gaze of travelers from abroad. On Thursday bids were opened by the Board of Water Supply for a two-million dollar contract on the Catskill Aqueduct, and next Wednesday bids will be opened by the same board, for the construction of the Hill View Reservoir in Yonkers, which is to cost $3,000,000—a contract which will require a period of at least six years and a half to complete. Bids are being asked for a large amount of other public work of a miscellaneous description, including a number of school buildings, in order to close out the duties of the present city administration. For two years or more comparatively little was doing under the head of public works, owing to the state of city finances. Much of the work now proposed can be done in the winter season. Everywhere in the city work is following the usual routine. Apartment house construction is letting up in some sections, as on Washington Heights, and increasing in other sections, as on Park avenue, and employment continues good in most trades.

—The roadway of the new Metropolitan Bridge will be opened to the public on Christmas Eve, but the footpaths and the railroad tracks not for some months yet. This is the last of the East River bridges on the municipal construction list, and the third to be opened in Mayor McClellan's time. Next year, it is expected, they will all have better railroad connection, and the Pennsylvania and Belmont tunnel lines will be in operation also in 1910—a year to be memorable in transit history.

IMPROVED CONCRETE CONSTRUCTION.

THE photograph of the Thomson Meter Factory Building at Bridge, York and Tallman sts, Brooklyn, is published for the reason that it is interesting as a reinforced concrete construction, and because it is the first American building in which a designer has attempted to use the rough concrete construction as architectural decoration. This building, which covers half a block, is entirely constructed of reinforced concrete, the rough columns being exposed on the exterior, and no finish having been applied on them, except a brush coat of white Portland cement. No care was taken to have special frames, and ordinary wooden planks were used. Recesses were left for the brick panels and terra cotta. These recesses were afterwards filled with a special colored brick, and the cornice decoration, which is of colored terra cotta, all light tones, was set in place and fastened by means of brass hooks.

The whole exterior is bright and attractive, and is certainly a new note in factory architecture. The architect of the building was instructed by the owners to design a factory which would be an advertisement for their materials and that would have a maximum amount of daylight. All piers or walls were to be eliminated. The architect at the time felt that a new departure in reinforced concrete design was very necessary in this country, and that here was a good opportunity to do something new. He believes that a concrete building should not be designed to look as though it was made of stone or brick, and that more efforts on the part of concrete architects should be given towards the beautifying of their building without money loss to the owners. The decorations in this case have amounted to less than one per cent. of the total cost of the building.

No wood has entered in the construction of this building, and no fire insurance is carried by the owners. All windows are of metal and wire glass. The architect of this building, Mr. Louis E. Jallade, was one of the first architects to introduce reinforced concrete in this country, and for several years was employed as consulting engineer for the New York branch of the Contancein Reinforced Concrete Co. The system used in the construction of the Thomson Meter Factory was the Hennebique.

CONSOLIDATION ADVOCATED.—At a hearing given by the Joint Legislative Committee on charter revision in the City Hall this week, former Senator Geo. W. Brush, of Brooklyn, acting in consort with several other speakers, asked that the Tenement House and Building departments be consolidated. He said that the two departments were in conflict and suggested that the Tenement House Department be made a subsidiary bureau of the Building Department. He added that all sanitary questions in the tenement house should be referred to the Department of Health, instead of to the Tenement House Department. Albert E. Davis, the architect, representing taxpayers' associations of The Bronx, was another who came out in favor of the consolidation of the two departments. Mr. Davis asserted that all architects were of the opinion that there was no good reason for the existence of a tenement house department. C. A. Crane appeared in behalf of the General Contractors' Association to plead that Section 275 of the Building Code be amended so as to provide for an increase of the bond demanded from bidders on public works from 25 per cent. of the total cost of the contract price, as at present, to 40 per cent. when the contract is for $250,000 or less. He asserted that this would do away with irresponsible bidders.

TENEMENT HOUSE CONSTRUCTION.

During the three months ending with September 30 the plans which were filed for the construction of new tenements in the five boroughs of the City of New York represented a proposed investment, for buildings alone, of $26,221,400. Altogether there were 602 buildings planned, containing 7,788 apartments. Of these, 55 were in Manhattan, 171 in the Bronx and 287 in Brooklyn.

In Manhattan only 11 of the 55 were erected below 59th st, 16 between 59th and 110th, 21 between 110th and 155th, and 19 north of 155th st. The statistics are contained in the quarterly report of Commissioner Butler, of the Tenement House Department.

A New Material for Brick.

Brick manufacturers of the Hudson Valley and vicinity are interested in a very light tough brick of peculiar fire resisting properties that is being made in Denmark, where it is known as "moler," a foliated, diatomaceous deposit found in Jutland. Professor Joseph W. Richards, writing in "Electro-Chemical and Metallurgical Industry" last month, gives an interesting account of this material, the data having been obtained after careful investigation of the material. Part of his article follows:

"Until recently no use had been found for this material (moler). Mr. C. A. Heyerman, director of the Royal Polytechnic Institute of Copenhagen, tried to use it in the mixture of sandlime bricks but found it unadapted for this use. The Clay Laboratory of the Danish Testing Laboratory has, however, been successful in producing brick from a mixture of clay and moler in various proportions, and from moler alone, with very interesting results, particularly as concerns the properties of these bricks.

"In the fire tests moler was mixed with 25, 50 and 75 per cent. of marl, and with 25 and 50 per cent. of red clay; afterward bricks were burned from moler alone. Contrary to expectations, moler alone burned to a fine red brick, very firm nail could be driven through without cracking it. The specific gravity of these bricks was about one and their strength about that of common brick.

These results were so encouraging, the writer goes on to say, that a grant of 1,000 kroner ($268) was made to investigate the possibility of founding thereupon a new industry. Bricks made as a result of this investigation are, we are told, most satisfactory. Describing this further we learn:

"Their particular properties are their great strength in proportion to their lightness, and their heat insulating quality. They are suitable for partitions, floor constructions and arches of every form. They are not suitable for outside use because of their porosity and absorption of water.

"As a refractory they are, however, a most promising material. Their porosity makes their heat conductivity unusually low and it remained only to test their behavior under strong heat. In the Eastern Gas Works, Mr. Irminger constructed the arches above retorts of them; at the poorhouse, Hundholm, Copenhagen, the chief engineer used them for masonry of steam boilers. In both cases they resisted the heat satisfactorily.

"The Frederiksholm Brick and Lime Works Company, Ltd., had the Clay Laboratory conduct some careful experiments to determine their refractoriness. For this purpose a small vertical shaft was constructed 5 feet high, and with walls one brick (6 inches) thick. The interior was heated by six large gas burners [and] . . . temperatures up to 1000 degrees were recorded; parts of the walls were undoubtedly hotter than this. The results of this test were to prove complete durability of the moler bricks at these temperatures; the faces exposed to the greatest heat were somewhat vitrified. . . .

"Assuming the reliability of these statements, we have here a most excellent refractory material for intermediate use, as a heat insulator in the walls of furnaces, as courses between refractory lining brick and the ordinary outside brick. The low heat conductivity should reduce greatly the heat losses through such composite walls. Its use for electric furnaces outside of the carbon or mabnesite lining and inside the iron shell, should be highly advantageous."

The Granites of Vermont.

A report on the granites of Vermont, by T. Nelson Dale, has just been published by the United States Geological Survey as Bulletin 404.

The report discusses the geographic distribution and geologic relations of the granites, their petrography, and the important geologic features noted at quarries, and describes the quarries in detail. It includes also a classification of the granites, a statement showing their prices, statistics of granite production in Vermont compiled by A. T. Coons, a bibliography of the economic geology of granite, and a glossary of scientific and quarry terms, and is illustrated by numerous maps and diagrams and several halftone plates.

Mr. Dale has already prepared reports on the granites of Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island, which have been published as bulletins of the Geological Survey, and has nearly completed a report on the granites of Connecticut.

Bulletin 404 can be obtained free by applying to the Director of the Survey at Washington.

Material Market Dull.

The building market this week was featureless, unless an inclination noted in some departments to stiffen prices for an advance could be excepted. This was true of stone and brick. In the former the demand is dangerously near exceeding the supply in certain kinds of stone and in the latter, the close of navigation being at hand warrants this movement. Basic led in iron sales and a general improvement in undertone characterized the cement situation. The falling off in the number of new buildings is more or less counteracted by the great number of alterations which require quantities of building material. A summary follows:

BRICK—Nervous. Demand light.
CEMENT—Undertone improving.
IRON—Basic leads dull market.
LUMBER—Suburbs lead in demand.
STEEL—Demand sustains advances.
STONE—Stiffening for advance.

Fewer Brick Coming In.

In spite of the fact that it is now risky to depend upon boats making the round trip, especially above Newburgh, the Empire Brick and Supply Co. was the only company to cover this week, although many more probably will do so before the end of next week. Prices were fairly well sustained at three-eights to three-quarters up to Wednesday, but yesterday ruling prices were $5.50 to $6.00. They were weak at the latter figure, however. Raritans being $5.75 to $6.00.

The yards up river are still sending cargoes down in fair quantities, although a comparison between the shipments of last week, which included a holiday, and this one were in favor of the week preceding this, while the sales were in more favorable proportion. To illustrate: The incoming cargoes for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of Thanksgiving week were 49, while 37 went out. Up to last Wednesday only 40 came in, but 39 went out. The transactions for the six days ending Saturday Nov. 27 follow:

Heldover, Nov. 21; arrived, 56; sold, 58; covered, 4 leaving 15 on hand on Nov. 29.

MANUFACTURERS COVERING FOR DEALERS.

Few dealers in this city have stacked to the extent that they did a year ago. Instead, many of them will draw upon the covered cargoes in the local harbor should they have a sudden demand for commons during the winter. Some of the dealers, it seems, have an arrangement with the manufacturers to cover for them while others will take their chances on local reserve stock. Jersey City, Newark and Hoboken have been drawing heavily this week on Hudson river brick for immediate consumption and for storage.

PRICES TO GO UP SOON.

There is no doubt but that prices will begin to advance from now on. It is considered remarkable by many that they have not moved up before this. In another week it will hardly be wise to depend upon cargoes coming from points above Haverstraw, and next week will witness liberal covering. More brick has been sold this year according to one man, than even in the 1906 boom, but they have not brought the prices they should have brought. Such conditions as existed in this city cannot be remembered within twenty-four years. Low prices and delay in many building operations were responsible for this condition of affairs. Conditions are expected to change this winter, it is said, and early in the Spring activity will begin early in the Spring.

SENATOR ROSE TO DEVELOP YARDS.

Senator John B. Rose, who recently acquired the Bartlett brick yards at Hudson and Roseton, is planning extensive improvements to them and will put them in such shape as to turn out a much larger quantity than ever before. He has not completed his plans yet, but expects to put his new properties in such shape as to make them second to none on the river.

A little strike at Terry Bros.' yards up the river a few days ago, over certain changes that were made on the property was quickly settled and peace now reigns there.

Portland Cement in Timid Market.

The Portland Cement market is still characterized by authorities in the trade as being timid. As the time for the expected readjustment of prices draws near, the undertone for the better that has pervaded this branch of the material market within the last two months seems to gain ground. There is a feeling of hope among the small companies especially, which carries the expectation that conditions will change soon after the first of the year. Reviewing the business of the fall, agents say that while it shows some improvements over last year, something, by the way, that everybody expected, the gain has been merely in volume and not in profitable business. Prices still hold at $1.43.

VULCANITE PORTLAND CEMENT CO. TO MOVE.

The Vulcanite Portland Cement Co., for years located at 949 Broadway, in the Fuller Building, has engaged offices in the Fifth Avenue Building and will occupy them after Jan 1. It will have a suite of six offices on the eleventh floor.

Basic Leads Iron Sales.

Moderate basic sales featured the week's transactions in iron. About 20,000 tons figured in one transaction for Pennsylvania delivery, while an 8,000 ton order was placed by another concern. A Paterson, N. J., company took still another 3,000 tons. Foundry grades moved slowly and dealers reported practically no change in conditions. There is only scattered buying, but furnaces have a sufficient amount of work on hand to maintain prices firmly. As a whole, the local pig iron market continued dull.

The tendency to buy iron according to analysis seems to be superseding the old method of classification, according to experts in the trade, 2.75 to 3.25 silicate standing for No. 1; 2.25 to 2.75 silicate for No. 2, and 1.75 to 2.25 silicate for No. 3. Local prices follow:

Steel Demand Sustains Advance.

The demand for structural steel well sustains the recent advance, although it cannot be said that the market is stiff at present. This is due to a falling off in fabricating business usual at this time of the year, but encouragement is found in that building plans are going ahead for large operations in this city this winter, among the probable ones being the new Municipal Building and Whitehall addition and one or two others in the Seventh avenue and Fourth avenue sections not yet specified.

The steel trade in general in New York and vicinity was reported as being quiet this week. Stocktaking time has something to do with this, undoubtedly. There was a slight gain in orders, but the shipments were the subject of the most interest. The demand for sheets is picking up, tin and copper leading. The production in steel sheets during the last month is believed to have been a record breaker. Manufacturers of bars and billets are increasing their output to meet the growing demand.

Fabricators here look with satisfaction upon the winter and spring outlook. Inquiries are in for considerable structural work in this city and in Brooklyn, Hoboken, Jersey City and Newark for early spring deliveries. Paterson promises considerable activity. Most of its business will be taken care of probably by the recently acquired Passaic Steel works, reference to which is elsewhere given.

Copper is firmer, with prices slightly higher. Tin also is firmer, with improved prices. The New York Central Railroad was in the market recently for a large tonnage of sheet iron, which was supplied without difficulty, in spite of the delay at the mills in making shipments. The deliveries will run well into the second quarter.

PASSAIC STEEL WORKS SOLD.

The sale this week of the Passaic, N. J., Steel Works to T. H. Conderman, of this city, for $400,000, was a subject of more than passing interest to local iron men. A Philadelphia firm was the only other bidder at the sale, conducted by Ex-Chancellor Magie, of New Jersey. It is understood that the plant will be operated at full capacity after Jan. 1 in fabricating and ornamental iron work.

Suburban Business Upholds Lumber.

A wholesale lumber man said this week that the suburban business was holding up the lumber situation, large shipments having gone to nearby towns and cities within the last week. The gradual decrease in the number of local projected buildings during the last four weeks has had its effect upon the demand for this kind of building material. The quantity of alterations, which on the whole has been in excess of last year, has helped to keep the market fairly firm for this time of the year. Hardwoods continue firm, but an easing off in demand has enabled the manufacturers to catch up with their deliveries to this market. Long leaf yellow pine fell off in demand somewhat this week. Spruce is in fair demand, while heavy timber held its own, as has been the case for the last six weeks.

LUMBER.

These figures cover only wholesale prices to the trade on well manufactured graded stock, classified by the inspection rules now in operation. Because of terms of sale, etc., it is impracticable to quote retail prices.

Big Stone Shipment Coming in.

Large retail dealers of stone have been receiving great quantities of Indiana limestone within the last week in anticipation of a possible shortage of this product this winter. One dealer has put in over 60 carloads within the last few days, while one or two Newark companies have put in unusually large supplies. The market is stiff for new stock, with prices tending upward sharply. It is said that some wholesalers have sold in excess of supply, and there is a lively scramble all along the line for certain kinds of rough stone.

Visits made this week at the various wholesale offices and to the cutting yards showed that there is considerable optimism in the trade. The cutters are in pretty good shape as far as business is concerned in this city, this being especially true of B. A. & G. N. Williams. The various marble companies with agencies here report that they are taking good sized business, a considerable quantity of which is for delivery in February. That month, according to one man, promises to be especially noteworthy in the quantity of marble delivered in this city. The granite men are casting hungry eyes upon the new municipal building as one of next year's big offerings. As for the present they find encouragement in the upward tendency of the market as a whole.

WANTED—A NEW STONE.

A leading wholesale building stone man told the writer a few days ago that he believed that the day of the popularity of limestone is passing, although, he said, the final obliteration is a long way off. But he said that he felt that, as was the case with brownstone, limestone would have to give way to a different material.

He said that talks with the most progressive architects had led him to believe that they would welcome a new stone, one that offered a different color, for the architectural adornment of New York buildings. Today most of the principle buildings are either brown, light gray or buff, and leaders in architecture believe, he said, that some other hue would be a welcome change and would spring at once into popularity.

A specialist in roofing and structural slate expressed the opinion this week that, while the summer and fall were not up to expectations, the winter would offer a volume of business a little in excess of normal, judging from the quantity of inquiries now in hand. He was speaking of the entire district east of Pittsburgh. New York, he thought, would offer its share of business. The bulk of his shipments, for instance, is now going to the suburbs for roofing and to this city for structural. The outlook for better prices seemed to be getting brighter, each day, he said.

THE WEEK.

SALES consummated during the week included all classes of properties, and were well scattered. There were no sensational deals closed, although there were several of the six-figure size. Of the three-score odd reports twenty were for dwellings of moderate price, which it is said were bought for occupancy.

Broadway between Eighty-sixth and One Hundredth streets, continues to receive the attention of the investor and speculator, the section being represented this week by the sale of the Barney Estates Company's block, in the west side, between Eighty-sixth and Eighty-seventh streets, to Leonard Lewisohn, and the sale of the northwest corner of Ninety-second street to Franklin Pettit.

Deals in Washington Heights lots continue at about the normal rate for that section, there having been four plots sold, involving thirty lots, while the sale of the finished product seems to have come to a sudden halt, there being reports of only one apartment and two dwellings, the latter being the product of a former building movement.

South of Fifty-ninth street there is about the usual amount of business reported, with the midtown-district still in the lead.

The Bronx is fairly well represented in the week's reports, with 16 sales about equally divided between lots and improved property.

THE AUCTION MARKET

Of the fifty-three properties offered at auction this week in the Vesey street salesroom, interest centered in the sale of the Stephen Whitney estate held on Wednesday by Joseph P. Day. The sale which was the second of the Whitney estate realized a total of $489,800. The first sale held a year ago brought $524,525.

There was some lively bidding for nearly every parcel, speculators, investors and adjoining or neighboring property owners participating. No. 26 Whitehall street which started at $35,000 was after considerable competition between Robert A. Chesebrough and Saranac Realty Co., knocked down to the latter at $62,500; both of the bidders own adjoining property, hence the high price; Andrew J. Doyle paid $30,500 for 53 Washington st, he owns No. 49; No. 1 Water street was bought by John T. Nagle for $30,000, he owns No. 3; No. 48 Front street was bought for $23,700 by Horace S. Ely & Co. for an adjoining owner. Several parcels belonging to the estate of Patrick Keenan were sold on Tuesday for a total of $79,975.

AGAINST BARNES AVENUE WIDENING.

One of the most absorbing questions to property owners in the Bronxwood Park section is the proposed widening of Barnes avenue. The thoroughfare at present is 80 ft in width and a proposition is now being considered to widen it to 100 ft. Although it is generally admitted that an improvement of this order tends eventually to increase the value of property adjacent thereto, still nearly all of the owners liable to assessment are opposed to the project.

The chief argument advanced by the opposition is that Barnes avenue is sufficiently wide at present and that consequently no increase is necessary. One of the objections to the widening is that house-planting to a considerable extent is said to have been practiced on the avenue. The question of the widening is now before the Local Board and its action is awaited with interest by those likely to be affected.

A petition for acquiring title in Barnes av from Tilden av to Baychester av is also before the Local Board for action. This matter was originally presented to that body on May 27, 1909, and on June 5, 1909. The opposition is by John A. De Leyer and 30 others, also by S. Domalowski, Peter N. Stein and others, as well as by Miss S. J. Johnson. The protests are in writing and are attached to the petition.

MORTGAGE INDICATOR READY.

The Mortgage Indicator, containing mortgage expirations for March, 1910, is now ready for delivery. Eight hundred and eighty-five mortgages mature in this month. These mortgages were placed on property with the rate of interest higher than it is to-day, and a great many of these loans will be retired. This opens a wide field for the mortgage broker. Special attention is given in this issue to classifying the mortgages where the terms, rate of interest and date of expiration are "as per bond." Hitherto this classification has not been accessible to the mortgage broker, and the Mortgage Indicator opened up a new and profitable field. The price of the Mortgage Indicator is $20 per annum, or $2 per copy.

—The time for preparing the new code of city ordinances governing the erection of stoops and areas has been extended from December 1 to December 23. It is understood that the proposed regulations will contain nothing affecting seriously the title to any buildings now in existence.

"OLD GREENWICH VILLAGE" BEGS FOR NEEDED IMPROVEMENTS.

There is perhaps no more earnest a body of residents and property owners in "Old Greenwich Village" who are fighting for the good of the community than the Greenwich Village Public Service Committee, which is leaving no stones unturned in its attempt to hasten the extension of lower 7th av. The committee is regularly holding meetings at 276 West 11th st and is preparing for a vigorous campaign of education in order to acquaint all owners of real estate in that section with the dire necessity of this improvement.

If one will examine the city map it will at once be apparent that there is at present no outlet to the lower part of New York from Greenwich Village. Sixth av terminates at Carmine st, and 7th av ends at 11th st and Greenwich av. In reality nearly all streets in that zone having a southerly bearing end at Canal st. Practically the only thoroughfares communicating directly with the Battery are Hudson st and Broadway. This is admittedly a peculiar situation and can only be accounted for by the lack of initiative on the part of early residents and owners of realty when that locality first began to assume importance. The result of this early oversight is now manifest in the congestion known to exist in that quarter.

It will be recalled that only recently the attention of the publac was drawn to the newspaper articles showing the area of tuberculosis and typhoid to be greater in the Greenwich section than in any other part of the metropolis. This is attributed largely to the narrowness of the streets, which shuts out the light and prevents the proper circulation of air.

However this may be, "old Greenwich village" is sidetracked as it were, and the business of its local committee lies in the direction of correcting the evil. "This can be accomplished gradually by first establishing a more direct means of getting to and from our neighborhood," said Dr. Edwin Zimmerman during the week. "By the extension of 7th av one of the best and most neglected sections of our great city would be pierced by a thoroughfare, where none now exists, which would add at least 500,000 more people to our quarter. Following this improvement innumerable old buildings would be demolished and substantial apartment houses and business structures would quickly rise in their places. Not only would this rehabilitation rebound to the benefit of owners of real estate in the Greenwich section, but the city's revenue in taxes would increase in proportion."

President Zimmerman further called attention to the unclean condition of many of the streets and to the necessity of adequate transit service. "My committee earnestly recommends a subway which should follow under 7th av," he said. "A diversion from this route would detract from many of the advantages of real estate ownership and retard an otherwise upward growth in values. Unless these improvements are voted us I am not alone in the opinion that there will be a gradual migration of residents to other sections."

REAL ESTATE NOTES

Mr. H. S. O'Neill, who has had charge of the renting department of H. M. Weil Co., is no longer connected with them.

Wm. P. Jones & Son, of 303 West 43d st, have been active real estate brokers and agents on the West Side for many years. They make a specialty in the care and management of improved property.

The M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company has placed for the Sterling Realty Co. with an estate a first mortgage of $95,000 at 4½ per cent. for five years on the Camden, 206 West 95th st, a 6-sty apartment house.

George Mercer, a real estate dealer, with an office at 266 West 23d st, died suddenly on Monday while walking in 23d st, between 7th and 8th avs. Heart disease was the cause of his death. He was in his seventy-seventh year.

A mortgage for $650,000 for three years at five per cent. was given yesterday by the Woodstock Hotel Co. to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. on the property, 103.8x100.5, in the north side of 43d st, 320.10 ft. west of 6th av.

Samuel Goldsticker has been appointed receiver of the rents of 334-336 Bowery, a 6-sty loft building, pending a suit brought by Samuel Rauch to foreclose a third mortgage of $2,500, made by Joseph Wierethier and others. The prior mortgages amount to $86,000.

Cornelius G. Kolff, specialist in Staten Island property, has issued a new edition of King's Booklets, showing many pretty views in all sections of Richmond Borough, and the many advantages which they offer. These booklets can be had on application to Mr. Kolff at his office, 45 Broadway, Manhattan.

More litigation involving the Evans estate properties may result from the filling of a lis pendens on Saturday in a suit brought by Anna C. McNay against the Thomas W. Evans Museum and Institute Society for a construction of the Evans will. The plaintiff is said to have set up a claim to an interest in the estate amounting to $35,000, alleged to be due her through an assignment on the part of one of the heirs. The lis pendens covers the block bounded by Broadway and West End av, 89th and 90th sts, recently bought by Robert E. Dowling, as well as 117 Fulton st, 44 Ann st, 64 Pearl st, 38 Water st and 26 John st.

After an illness of one year, John Davis, seventy-five years old, who for nearly half a century was in the real estate business in this city, died of heart disease at his home, 620 West 122d st. He was a recognized authority on realty values and was frequently employed by the city as an expert appraiser. Born in London in 1834, Mr. Davis came to New York with his parents, and after being educated in the public schools he entered a real estate office. Within a few years he opened a brokerage office in the financial district and continued in that section until he retired. For many years his office was at 95 Liberty st, where the large business which he had built up has been continued by his two sons.

It was said this week at the office of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company that the most significant feature of the mortgage market continues to be the persistent and extending market for small mortgages. Notwithstanding the fact that it was a holiday week, we disposed of one hundred and twenty-three mortgages, aggregating very close to a million dollars. If this popularization of the small mortgage investment continues and the people who now keep two or three thousand dollars in bank accounts at a low rate of interest begin to invest in mortgages instead, the time will come very quickly to New York City when the amount of money that can be borrowed on real estate will be limited only by the number of safe loans that are wanted.

DOWNTOWN BUILDINGS.

"Downtown Buildings" was the subject of a talk delivered on Tuesday evening by E. A. Tredwell, the well-known real estate broker of 41 Park Row, before the Real Estate Class of the West Side Y. M. C. A. Mr. Tredwell criticised the skyscrapers of Chicago, but in New York he said the architect had been superior. Mr. Tredwell thought free-rent inducements a poor policy in the financing and renting of office buildings and advocated straight business methods. After an interesting talk on financing of modern office buildings, he outlined what he considered the advances as well as the backward tendencies in skyscraper erection:

"The high building in New York is not thought by many as practical as those in other cities, notably Chicago and the West, but more architecture seems evident here. In the West, size and utility are of primal importance. Perhaps the architect has been office boy to the engineer, so their structures are highly developed iron boxes, with a multiplicity of elevators and windows, but no item of beauty except a certain grandeur in size that is impressive. On the contrary, in the East, particularly in New York, the architect has been supreme and perhaps the engineer here has been office boy to the architect—the result is outwardly more pleasing to the eye, but hitherto inwardly less pleasing to the pocketbook, than the Western variation.

"I think it is permissible to say a high building is as essentially an engineering proposition as a bridge or viaduct, and does it not follow that the architect is most clever who, recognizing natural conditions, either employs as a co-worker a responsible engineer or establishes an engineering department in his own office than is worth while?

"The fundamental financing is no small part of the proposition of building a skyscraper. Three years' carrying charges are usually figured in, as part of the expenses, for it usually takes that time to completely fill a modern office building. It is hard for an owner to believe this to begin with. 'Hope springs eternal in the human breast,' but that's where he usually ends up with, not believing, but knowing. Short cuts to income have been tried in fifty-seven varieties, usually they fail. Good renting means work, sticking to it like a chestnut burr, letting no good man escape who means to pay rent and allowing prospective tenants needing extraordinary inducements to go elsewhere. Psychologically considered, your good business man is somewhat afraid of undue inducements—free rent schemes, etc.; he knows some one has to pay. He knows he is the one eventually to pay, and he feels, possibly, he may be paying for a gold brick and not know it, when you offer him something he feels he ought not to have.

"Nothing succeeds in renting like straight business and fair dealing. It seems superior to all the prize income schemes so far developed. Suffer a small injustice rather than be rightfully accused of having committed one. If your power over tenants is great, why not use it so wisely that by common consent it is never questioned. You should not forget that a lease is a limited conveyance, that if a tenant is a strict constructionist, he can make life a serious burden to an agent whom he does not admire."

Speaking of the financing of office buildings, Mr. Tredwell said: "The cost is very varying, from $300,000 to $12,000,000, depending on circumstances, of which 30% to 40% must be provided by the owners in cash, or from $90,000 to $3,000,000 to $3,500,000 in actual money; the balance is mortgage. Did you ever consider what a dislocation of securities this cash provision means? If the mortgage begins as a building loan, as the structure progresses, it is made in partial payments, at usually 6% interest. On completion of the structure it becomes usually a permanent loan at from 4½% to 5% interest; this interest charge works every day, including Sundays and holidays, and is the real white man's burden when the paper scheme of the architect of real estate man fails to make good.

"The architect, the building and the real estate man have three separate points of view. The real estate man's viewpoint is perhaps of more value to the owner than the others, for it is concerned with the production of income.

"A competent real estate man given a set of plans and paid to criticise them, also to estimate probable income, is a consummation devoutly to be wished in the preliminaries of a building operation. Then, possibly, owners would not suffer the disillusionment they so often experience, for the real estate man should know what people want to rent, what they will pay well, and what they will not take, no matter what the rent.

"Perhaps our hardest downtown problem to-day is light—plain, common daylight. We real estate agents, in that district, perhaps, do not rent space. I conceive we rent light, with some space added. One office applicant wanted park frontage, nothing else. He had moved four times in four successive years. Each year a new structure cut off his light, and he would only go where he knew the light would not be cut off.

"The improvement in skyscrapers in the last ten years have been many in detail, but few in fundamentals, perhaps some fundamentals have retrograded—say ceiling height.

"The advances I note are: complete fireproofing, better elevator service, better electric lighting, improved water supply, vacuum cleaning, improved locks, better attention to tenants, improved plumbing and fixtures, improved ventilation.

"I notice also certain backward tendencies in some cases. I imagine retrograde movements in the newer buildings, namely, lower ceiling height; larger buildings and consequently tenants harder to get at; intricate passenger elevator service (express and local) that strangers have to learn.

"He who keeps up to date most, is, seemingly, in the business game longest; but he who cries, it is finished, when the new building is done, lets himself and the property he manages stay finished without constant subsequent repair and improvement. That building and that agent may be likened to a Dinosaurian survival, a relic of the past, a monument perhaps, or walking around to save the expense of interment, but the living, breathing, pulsing present has but small use for monuments. As time goes on, a monumental building unconsidered and unrepaired and unimproved, gradually becomes the home of businesses that have been; of calm and reflective citizens who dislike change or worry; cobwebs come in the hall, the vacant offices have a tomb-like look, while the elevator boy, when not asleep, hates to be interrupted in his reading, and somehow you don't want to annoy him, he is so much the proprietor and the only living thing in sight.

"The care and management of old property is to be your experience. So fast does this city move that any building over five years old gets classified by tenants as among those who 'also ran.' The twenty-year old building is as good as the five-year old in tenants' opinion, given the facilities the tenants expect are to be had in the one as well as the other, but there's the rub. Therefore, the real age of a building, I conceive, to be its constant adaptation to the varying needs of an increasingly insistent tenancy, demanding co-operative facilities and tending to make office management akin to hotel keeping, minus beds.

"As this is apparently the beginning of the day of the specialist in all business, real estate is no exception. Has not the general real estate agent in large communities been replaced in increasing numbers yearly by the specialist who makes one branch of the business his particular study? And should we not consider this modern dividable tendency to business is to increase proportionately in the future as in the past?"

In speaking of old buildings, Mr. Tredwell had this to say of Trinity Church:

"Some other estates seem to show but little interest in the city, whose growth is the source of their prosperity. The most notorious of 'L'Roi Faineants,' or 'lazy kings,' possibly is Trinity Church, part of whose charitable activities, on which much of its rents are spent, should be the practical consideration and amelioration of its own remissness to the city to whom it owes all.

"There are still other owners downtown whose peculiar activities seem bent on staying or destroying values in their own and surrounding property.

"I have not tried to enumerate in this lecture any particular instances, as the profession is crowded with stories of this or that transaction. They will presently engage your attention. But you who represent the future real estate agents in this city may have to consider as your downtown province the entire area between the Battery and 59th st, for I wish you to consider one proposition that I lay before you to-night, that the downtown district of the City of New York embraces the entire area to-day between the Battery and 59th st. It may seem a little hard for you to recognize that, but the fact remains true, nevertheless.

MAY AFFECT PENDING REALTY DEALS.

THE excessive cost of bringing the tracks of the Southern Boulevard and Westchester av branch of the Broadway-Lexington Avenue Subway to the surface at a location near East 158th st, is responsible for a proposed modification in the general subway construction plans, as recently suggested by the Public Service Commission. As the proposition now stands, it is reasoned that instead of coming to the surface at the street mentioned, it would be better to continue the road as a subway to a point in private holdings on Whitlock av, between Bancroft and Aldus sts. A change is also planned in the line of the railroad north of Hunt's Point. Instead of continuing along the Southern Boulevard and Westchester av it curves into Whitlock av, running thence northerly along Whitlock av and private holdings into Westchester av.

Many owners of real estate in that neighborhood fear that the proposed change will result in much delay, since the recommendations of the Board of Estimate must be thoroughly looked into by that body, and a public hearing held before they can be finally adopted. Not only is the suspense with respect to the outcome confined to owners of Bronx realty, but real estate brokers as well are beginning to complain that negotiations for property are likely to be interfered with if the question of route is not quickly settled.

DEPRECATE TROLLEY DELAY.

Much discontent is at present being shown by residents and owners of real estate in the vicinity of Van Nest and Westchester over the trolley situation in East 177th st. As the matter now stands, little if anything is being done by those in charge of the construction work towards expediting the completion of the new Bronx crosstown line. The road is practically ready for operation, except for the placing of the poles and wires, and a general cleaning up and adjustment of the line at the gap where it crosses the New Haven Road.

It will be recalled that East 177th st is a new thoroughfare, and it may be said to be the most important highway connecting the middle Bronx with the recently annexed territory easterly therefrom. The necessity of the early operation of a transit line through the street in question is regarded by realty owners in that quarter as especially urgent at this time, particularly since many resales of property depend upon the actual running of cars between the points alluded to. As planned at present the road goes from Unionport Bridge and Ludlow av over East 177th st (Tremont av) to West Farms, where it connects with the Lenox av subway on a 3-cent transfer. It then travels over the tracks of the crosstown line in 181st, running under the 3d av elevated, thence crossing Washington Bridge connecting with the Broadway division of the subway, at which point a 3-cent transfer will be given as well.

At some future time the line will be run to the Sound, meeting the Shore Boulevard. When this is done, much desirable residence property in the vicinity of Throggs Neck Gardens will be thrown upon the market. Among other estates to be affected by the extension of the transit line are the Huntington estate, the holdings of the Havemeyer family and John A. Morris, and St. Joseph's Institute. The question of the prolonged delay in opening the first section of the road is now being discussed by the taxpayers' associations of Unionport and Van Nest.

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE.

The recent formation of the "Manhattan Central Improvement Association," which plans to aid property and business interests in the territory between 31st and 37th sts (bounded on the east and west by both rivers), bids fair to result in a considerable quickening in realty transactions in the section referred to if the ideas of its promotors are carried out. The association intends to direct its influence toward widening some of the streets, if found necessary. It will also bid for the maintenance of a subway station in 34th st, in the event of the construction of an underground road on the West Side to connect with the tunnels of the McAdoo system. In addition to this the organization contemplates taking an active interest in improving the thoroughfares leading to the new 7th av station of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Although no definite plans have as yet been officially announced, it is likely that the Improvement Association will at once attempt to enlist the aid of individual owners of property in obtaining substantial support to the movement. "All property owners in this district have been invited to join," said Walton H. Marshall, who acted for George C. Boldt at the preliminary meeting. "Tiffany, Claflin, Gorham, Oppenheim & Collins, Macy, Saks and many others were represented at the meeting, and we hope to have nearly all important property owners present at the December 6 meeting."

The directors of the new body are Isidor Straus, Isidor Saks, Oscar Hammerstein, Geo. C. Boldt, Louis Stewart, Wm. H. Martin, Chas. H. Keep, Roderick M. Cameron, Edwin H. Popper and C. J. Allen. Mr. Allen has been engaged as secretary of the association, partly owing to his newspaper experience. The temporary chairman is Isidor Saks, who was largely instrumental in bringing about the formation of the association.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

Nov. 26, 27, 29, 30, Dec. 1 and 2.

THE PERMANENT BEAUTY OF

The $10,000,000 Chelsea Dock Improvement made of ED SON PORTLAND CEMENT has replaced the unsightliness of small piers, having little permanent value, an ancient terminal and part of a gas works.

These majestic buildings, extending from Little 12th Street to 23d Street, are vivid examples of the varied uses of Edison Portland Cement as a building and ornamental material. See them—they are one of the architectural sights of this great city.

Edison Portland Cement is used by leading architects and engineers because it is :

UNIFORMLY 10 PER CENT. FINEST GROUND IN THE WORLD and binds more sand, crushed rock or gravel with greater strength than any other brand.

PROMPT DELIVERY GUARANTEED ON ANY QUANTITY

Vol. LXXXIV. DECEMBER 11, 1909. No. 2178

THE two centres of real estate activity continue to be the new wholesale district to the north of 23d street and west of Broadway and Washington Heights. In respect to the latter section there are no new tendencies to be remarked; but business continues well sustained, and renting conditions are sufficiently good in that neighborhood almost to warrant a continuation of the existing rate of activity throughout the coming year. If anything there will be a certain diminution during 1910 of the number of new apartment houses erected in Manhattan, for it must be remembered that the building of this class of residential accommodation has attained almost record propositions during 1909. By January 1, the plans filed for new Manhattan tenements will have called for an expenditure of almost $70,000,000 as compared with about $73,000,000 for 1905, the year in which the building of tenements was most active. Considering, however, the limited area, within which tenements can be erected in Manhattan, compared with four years ago, the figures for 1909 are really more remarkable. The $70,000,000 estimated to be spent during 1909 is divided among only one third the number of buildings, upon which the $73,000,000 were spent four years ago. In that short space of time the average cost of a tenement house erected in Manhattan has increased from about $50,000 to $150,000. Almost the only type of tenement now being built in Manhattan is the six-story elevator apartment house, erected on a plot 100x100 which means, of course, that really cheap new residential accommodations are no longer being provided on Manhattan Island. In as much, consequently, as only an expensive type of living accommodation can now be built in the big borough, it can hardly be expected that the figures for tenement house construction in that part of the city either for 1905 or 1909 will ever be equalled. Building conditions, either in respect to cheap money or in respect to cheap materials, are not so favorable as they were a year ago, so that even with a continuation of a good demand on the part of new tenants, a certain falling off would be natural. But there is no reason to suppose that this falling off will be very considerable. The fact remains that Washington Heights and beyond is the only district in Manhattan, containing vacant land, adapted to six-story apartment houses. All building of this character will be concentrated on that one district, and it will necessarily be very respectable in volume. At the present rate of consumption the vacant land on the Heights will only last a few years more; and the interesting question will then be: To what part of the Bronx will the building of six-story elevator apartment houses be transferred? It is the sense that the Bronx must soon fall heir to the profits of this class of new construction, which accounts for the high prices of vacant land, now prevailing in certain parts of that borough.

THE real estate movement in the new wholesale district has been assuming certain new phases of late. During the past week an unprecedented amount of activity has been taking place north of 23d street and west of Sixth avenue. The value of unimproved lots on almost all the side streets has been working up to the level prevailing on 27th street; that is, to $2,000 a front foot and over, and builders apparently would rather pay about $2,000 a front foot between Sixth and Seventh avenues than $4,000 a front foot between Broadway and Sixth avenue. At any rate, almost twenty parcels have recently been purchased for improvement during the coming spring, and these blocks will be by far the most active part of the new wholesale district throughout 1910. Inevitably also, these changes between Sixth and Seventh avenues, are beginning to have their effects between Seventh and Eighth avenues. Particularly during the past week there have been a great many transactions west of Seventh avenue, and apparently in certain cases early improvement is contemplated. There seems to be good reason for believing that during the next few years, values between Seventh and Eighth avenues will approximate to the level now prevailing between Sixth and Seventh avenues, and that these streets will gradually be improved with twelve-story loft-buildings. In order to understand the pressure, which may eventually be concentrated on these blocks, one has only to consider the impossibility of the extension of the wholesale district north of 34th street along the lines of Broadway, Sixth avenue, Madison and Park avenues. Madison and Park avenues north of 34th street are more valuable for residential than for wholesale purposes. Fifth avenue and Broadway north of 34th street, and the side streets near thereto will be more valuable for shops, restaurants, theatres, office-buildings and hotels than they will be for loft buildings. Some few wholesale merchants will occupy the upper floors of the tall buildings erected thereabouts, but the great majority of commission and manufacturing firms, will not be able to afford the space. North of 34th street the hitherto prevailing movement of the wholesale trade will meet a barrier, and spread farther east and west. It will consequently occupy the side streets as far west as Eighth avenue and as far east as Lexington avenue. Eventually it may travel even farther toward the two rivers; but, for the next six or seven years, it will probably be confined to the limits described above. Of course in proportion as it spreads west of Seventh avenue south of the Pennsylvania Terminal, it will also tend to occupy the district west of Seventh avenue and north of 34th street. But in the beginning the side streets south of 34th street in this district will naturally have the preference. The one unaccountable element in the whole problem is the extent of the effect which the Pennsylvania station will have upon its immediate vicinity. Nobody can gauge at present either the intensity or the radius of this influence; and this fact introduces an uncertain element in the probable future values of this immediate neighborhood—particularly on Seventh avenue itself.

CONSIDERING the activity in the twenties west of Sixth avenue it is singular that 23d street has been so much neglected. This is the one wide street in this immediate neighborhood. Over ten years some few loft and office buildings had been erected on 23d street between Sixth and Eighth avenues. Yet since the new movement began, and in spite of the activity immediately to the north and to the south, 23d street has been neglected. The neglect is all the more singular, because the stores in loft buildings erected on 23d street should be as valuable as the stores in loft buildings erected on, say, Fourth avenue. The only advantage which avenue property has over street property for the wholesale trade consists in the increased value of the ground floor, plus a better quality of light for some of the lower stories. Loft buildings erected on 23d street would have both of these advantages, denied to the majority of side streets, and yet not one twelve-story building has yet been planned for that street west of Sixth avenue. Presumably the explanation is that the roadway is now congested by trolley cars, and ordinary traffic, and that consequently it would be difficult for trucks to load and unload on 23d street. This difficulty is a real one; and property-owners on 23d street should take steps to make it less serious. They should forego the stoop privileges they now enjoy, and have the roadway widened at the expense of the sidewalks. As soon as this change was made, 23d street would become much more available for loft buildings than it is at present. Even then, however, loft buildings erected on 23d street should also include the lots immediately adjoining on the rear, so that the tenants of the buildings could if necessary obtain an outlet on 22d or 24th streets. But it is certainly time for property-owners on 23d street to bestir themselves and make sure that they get all the increase in value which naturally should accrue to them from the development of the district.

THE PROPERTY-OWNERS on 34th street and its vicinity have recently formed an organization, and they are considering the means which can be taken to make that street serve its tenants with more effect. There can be no doubt that 34th street, as well as 23d street, should have its roadway widened. Traffic is already congested on 34th street, and it will become still more so after the Pennsylvania station is opened for business. Such congestion hurts the business transacted by the retail merchants on the street, and while it cannot be entirely cured, it can at least be alleviated by the widening of the roadway. Another proposed improvement, which should immensely benefit 34th street is the experimental moving platform which may be installed under that street. The moving platform is peculiarly adapted for installation along a line of traffic, which extends with great density for only a short distance; and this will be precisely the condition on 34th street. From Park avenue to Eighth avenue, the crosstown pedestrian traffic will be denser than on any other series of crosstown blocks in the city; and it can only be sufficiently accommodated by some kind of cheap conveyance, which is capable of a continuous performance. A moving platform precisely fills the bill. After it is installed it should so far relieve the sidewalks of pedestrian traffic as to permit them to be made even narrower than the sidewalks of Fifth avenue. But in order to be really useful the moving platform should transfer to the surface cars, and to all subways, and considering the existing standing of transfer privileges in New York, it may be difficult to make such arrangements. In any event 34th street is assuredly destined to be the busiest crosstown street in Manhattan; and it is well that an association of property owners has been formed which is willing to consider all the means necessary to make it adequate to the demands which business will make upon it.

WHEN it comes to be so in a very old city that a house scarcely more than one hundred years old is considered a curiosity and "a historic landmark," simply because of its age, and not because of anything peculiar or unusual in its construction, it is a striking evidence of the rapid economical depreciation of buildings in that city, and, conversely of a corresponding equivalent appreciation of land values. It does not necessarily mean the utter PHYSICAL "depreciation" of a building when it is no longer permitted to encumber the land. The Furniss dwelling on Riverside Drive that is now being demolished was about one hundred years old, and was a type of the ordinary (the very ordinary) frame construction of its era. It was not Colonial either historically or in architectural design, and had little architectural pretension of any kind. It simply was built after the manner of most suburban houses of its time. If the average physical duration of a frame dwelling is one hundred years, and if in consequence one per cent. annually should be charged off on the owner's books for that physical depreciation, then the Furniss house is a proof of the theory. Nothing is absolute in the doctrine, and it is not necessary to argue whether the building had physically depreciated one hundred per cent. or not, but the fact is that its actual duration was one hundred years. Economically the building came to the end of its usefulness many years ago, and has never since represented a business proposition by itself. It stood alone on a square block of land in old Bloomingdale (in the neighborhood once locally known as "Stryker's Bay"), and could not, of course, have either produced or in any way represented by itself an adequate return on the value of the land.

—The good success that is attending in most cases the renting of the new mid-town business buildings indicates a large demand for modern work and larger facilities. Often times the migrating firms find that they are able to combine scattered offices, salesrooms and workshops in a manner to save the salaries of high-priced "live-wire" men through whom the connections between the separated parts of the business were maintained. In this way some firms are saving the difference in rent. The tenants of the new buildings also find that they are in closer touch with buyers, and that it is easier to get them to look at the lines of goods. But some buildings that are a little "off side" as yet, are taking a normal amount of time in getting rented-up. As builders make an allowance of from one to three years' interest when calculating construction costs (the length of the period depending on the size and nature of the building), it is perceived that they have here encountered circumstances averaging better than normal. Some of the operations are speculative, others are not, but in every one of the buildings there is more or less rentable space. The favorable reception, then, which the new buildings are receiving from commercial interests is very cheering to those firms, like the American Woolen Company and Dodd, Mead & Company, which started the movement, but particularly to those large financial interests that have, either as investors or building operators, backed their judgment of the section with their money.

BUILDING CODE REVISION RESUMED.

RUMORS OF AN HARMONIOUS ARRANGEMENT—PROTESTS AGAINST HASTE.

The Building Code which Alderman Frank Dowling reintroduced on Tuesday in the Board of Aldermen is substantially the same report which was favored by the majority of the Building Committee, passed by the Board of Aldermen some months ago, and after extended hearings was vetoed by the Mayor.

Mr. Dowling said his reason for resurrecting the ordinance was to see if the disputed points could not be agreed upon and the Mayor's veto satisfied. As the present Administration ends with the current year, all pending matters of legislation expire at that time, unless enacted into law in the meantime; the present officers retire and the standing committees dissolve.

The Aldermen must act quickly if they are successful in passing the code, and against undue haste civic and professional societies are already raising their voices in protest.

It is to be inferred from Alderman Dowling's remark that some assurances have been received of harmonious action between the factions in the Building Committee. Should a new ordinance not be enacted by the present administration, a new revision commission would be necessary, and the saving of this expense is one of the arguments used in behalf of such modifications in the pending legislation as will satisfy the Mayor's objection.

At a meeting on Tuesday night the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects passed a resolution "vigorously protesting" against the enactment of any code between now and the first of the year. President Allan Robinson, of the Allied Real Estate Interests, has called together again his committee of consulting architects, engineers and other representative men to meet on next Monday.

KNOWING TOO MUCH.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

Mr. Veiller's remark that a good building code should appear "as if written by laymen for laymen," recalls the saying that a man can know too much about a matter. Governments believe this, or they would have no laymen in their cabinets. No plain American citizen, no one but a specialist, would ever have the honor of representing his country or town in any capacity. A certain mechanical engineer this summer installed an engine of his own design and make, but he couldn't make it go. He worked at it for days and couldn't get it right. His men said, "The trouble is the old man knows too much about the engine. If he would let somebody try who doesn't know so much about it, the engine would go all right. So, finally, the inventor's young son was set at the problem, and it was only a little while before "George" had the really perfect piece of machinery running like a sewing machine.

In a town up the state not long ago a specialist was nominated for membership in the board of water commsisioners, and his chances looked good for election until the opposition paper came out one evening and said that undoubtedly the nominee knew all about the water works; nobody knew as much as he did about them; he probably knew more than all the rest of the board; but because he knew so much and the others so little, he would be the whole thing, whereas the law plainly stated that the board should be constituted by "five" commissioners and not by "one" alone. The very estimable gentleman was rejected at the polls because he knew too much.

New York has made two attempts with commissions of "experts" to draft a building code somewhere near satisfactory. (No one hopes for a code entirely satisfactory.) The last revision of the tenement house law was by laymen, and there hasn't been a "kick" since, unless Mr. Jones's letter of last week was intended for one. Whatever the explanation may be—if anything really can explain it away—the plain fact is that two different bodies of eminent specialists and experts, without one plain citizen among them—not even a real estate man—have tried for three years to make a workable and acceptable building code, while the Tenement House law has been revised by three laymen without the least bit of trouble.

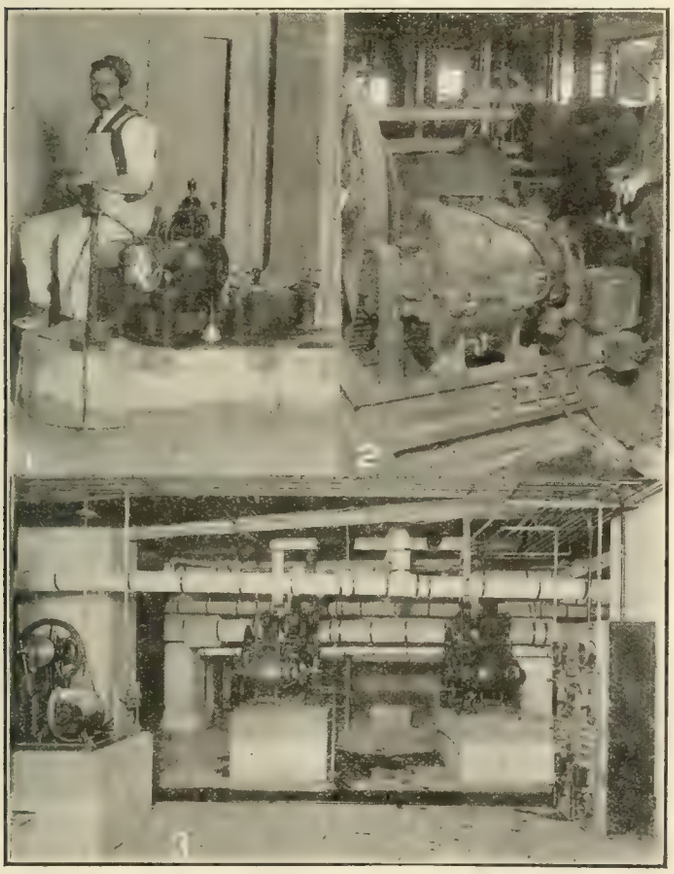
The State law seems to be perfectly intelligible, concise, precise and workable. It is expressed in short sentences—and few of them. Whether it is entirely based upon "foundations of justice and fairness" is not the point in question now; but whether, seeing how successful mere laymen have been in formulating a "State Building Code," and how unsuccessful have been the experts in framing a code for the City of New York, it would not be worth while the next time to let somebody like "George" lend a hand.

A PROPERTY OWNER.

—The New York Tax Reform Association has published in pamphlet form an address before the League of American Municipalities (Montreal, 1909), by A. C. Pleydell, on "Municipal Taxation," together with extracts from addresses by W. Robb, city treasurer of Montreal; F. S. Spencer, comptroller of Toronto; Theodore A. Hunt, city solicitor, Winnipeg; John Perrie, provincial tax commissioner, Alberta, and by J. B. McKilligan, surveyor of taxes, British Columbia, on "Canadian Systems of Local Taxation."

CONSTRUCTION.

MODERN USES OF ELECTRIC POWER IN BUILDINGS.



By NORMAN G. MEADE.

THERE are few buildings either new or old at the present time that do not utilize electric power to a greater or less degree, and it may be really classed as a modern necessity.

In public and private buildings alike there are immunerable applications that add to comfort as well as sanitary and hygienic conditions. Electricity in apartment buildings and private residences has now passed the experimental stage and architects and engineers are paying attention to this important field.

For the operation of various household labor-saving devices and conveniences, such as coffee-grinders, knife-cleaners, boot-polishers, polishers and buffers, ice cream freezers, small potato and vegetable peelers, small dish washers and other machines which make up the equipment of a modern home, the small electric motor plays an important part.

The electric laundry or washing machine which has heretofore been used in public laundries, hospitals and hotels and other large institutions exclusively, is now coming into more general use. The present low price is bringing it into the household laundry, where it is found to be an invaluable companion to the electric iron, which has already been installed in many homes.

The ball-bearing type of rotary washer can be operated by a one-tenth horse-power electric motor at a cost of a little over one cent an hour.

An example of a modern residence laundry, depending entirely upon electricity for its operation, is found in the residence of Mr. Edward S. Hawkins at the corner of 75th st and 5th av. It is one of the most complete electrically equipped laundries in New York, and its equipment includes a motor-driven washing machine, a motor-driven power wringer, an electric starch cooker, three electric ironing tables and a "Chicago" clothes-dryer.

House pumps are daily becoming more necessary, owing to the inability of existing water work plants to maintain a good service under rapidly changing conditions caused by the rapidly increasing height of buildings. In order to make up for low or variable water pressure in a high building, such as an apartment house, for instance, it is customary to install a small house pump for the purpose of raising the pressure or for filling storage tanks at the top of the building.

With electric motors it is easy to automatically maintain the head of water constant. The motor is arranged to start when the head of water falls below a certain minimum, and to stop when it has reached a predetermined maximum, thus reducing the item of attandance to practically zero.

For apartments and residences individual electrically operated refrigerators are being extensively used. Their great convenience will be readily appreciated, as the use of ice is entirely eliminated, it being only necessary to turn a switch to start the mechanism.

(1) General controlling board of the U. S. Custom House. (2) A power board.

In buildings that have not been piped for a stationery vacuum cleaning system, the portable cleaner makes a very efficient substitute, and a great number are in everyday use.

It is important in laying out the wiring system of apartments or residences that a number of outlets be placed in each room about the height of the chair rail for attaching electric irons, vacuum cleaners, radiators, etc. These outlets may be of the flush type with covers which do not have an unsightly appearance.

The extent to which electric service is used in theatres is shown by the electrical equipment of the New Theatre, located on Central Park West, from 62d to 63d sts. The lighting of the building is equal to more than 19,000 16-cp incandescent lamps, of which the stage lighting consists of approximately 14,000 16-cp incandescent lamps. The power used in the building to operate stage revolving, stage elevating, scene shifting, ventilating apparatus, lamps and various pumps, amounts to 1,665 horse-power, all of which is supplied by The New York Edison Company.

(1) Motor driving ventilating fan, U. S. Custom House. (2) Remodeled elevator mechanism driven by motor, formerly steam driven.

The stage lighting is a new departure in theatre lighting, the "Linolite" made by the H. M. Johns-Manville Company being used in all the borders, strips and footlights, with the addition of a dozen Excello arcs. The dimmer system is also something new. It is controlled by automatic devices whereby all the lights may be set at one time to any degree of candle power from 0 to 151, and then by throwing a single switch they may be all operated at once.

The system for revolving the stage is also new, enabling the stage hands to set up one scene while another is being produced, and when the time comes to change the scenes, the stage is turned around by the use of two 25 horse-power motors. The stage can also be raised or lowered by the use of two motors of 500 horse-power each.

Electricity has a wide field in the ventilation of buildings, and practically all new installations employ motor drive. In buildings where no adequate provision for ventilation has been made, numerous electrically operated ventilators have been used successfully. One of the latest type placed on the market is the Garner Ventilating machine, which is made in two sizes. The No. 1 machine is made especially to ventilate small offices and homes. It is so constructed that it may be placed on a window sill, the fresh air being supplied by means of a duct leading through a panel under the window directly behind the machine.

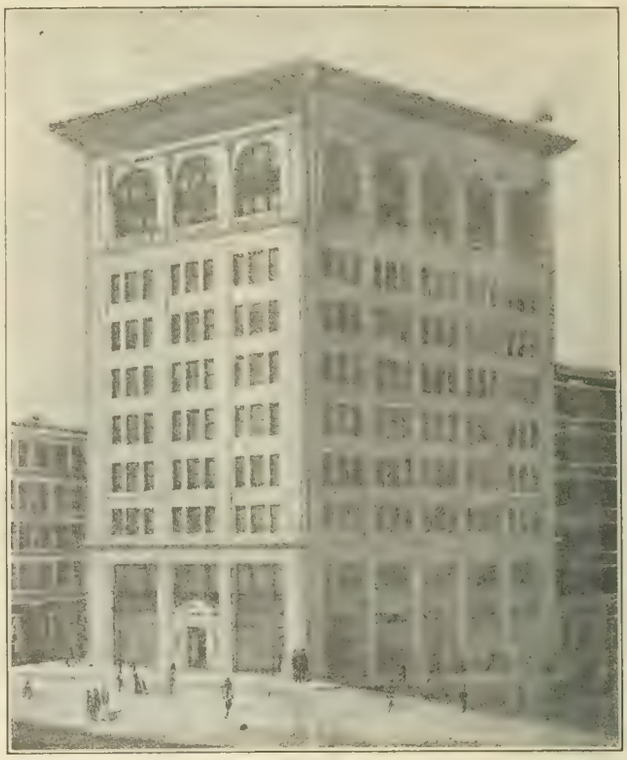
The machine contains a centrifugal fan connected directly on the shaft of an electric motor, which secures its power through an ordinary lamp socket. A connection with the steam or hot water pipes furnishes the heat for the radiating surface within, over which the air must pass, and thus warms the air whenever desired.

The No. 2 machine has a capacity of about six times that of No. 1, and will ventilate a correspondingly larger office.



INTERIOR OF THE NEW PRESS CLUB.

THE plans of the home which the New York Press Club formally opened yesterday in the heart of the newspaper district, at the corner of William and Spruce sts, were made by Ernest Greene, who utilized the rather irregular shaped lot with much skill. The interior decoration of the house is an instance of a modern applied art, which heretofore has not sufficiently been used in this country. The board room is executed in golden and brown wall covering, velvet curtains changing in yellow and blue and yellow curtains.

The quiet effect of the lounging room is obtained through the combination of olive green curtains and wall-covering, changing in blue and greenish shades. Lively coloring prevails in the billiard room. The green of the billiard tables and of the wainscoting is sharply contrasted by red stencils in heraldic patterns and red curtains. The room has a remarkable fireplace in Moravian tiles.

The ladies' dining room offers a light and airy effect. Light green and white combined with silver gray prevail in the stencils and in the patterns, including the curtains, showing birds and trees. The ladies' reception room is contrasting in yellow and deep violet and its furniture shows a beautiful silk in modern patterns, imported from Vienna. The assembly room looks dignified and solemn in a color scheme where all the shades from yellow to dark brown are applied with some quietly contrasting blue tones. In the dining-room Greek ornaments in green and red are used in harmony with the other decorations. The small bedrooms look comfortable and even artistic by proper selection of wall paper and curtains.

Altogether the skillful lay out of the rooms by the architect and their artistic and harmonious decoration and furnishing by Ella Briggs and M. L. Mercer, have given a beautiful and most comfortable home to the men of the New York press.

THE FRANKLIN-HUDSON BUILDING.
Alexander Baylies, Architect.

This ten-story fireproof office building is now in course of construction at 100 Hudson Street. The steel girders for the fourth floor have just been set. It takes in the block front between Franklin and Leonard Streets, in the heart of the wholesale grocery, meat and produce district. Hudson Street is one of the broadest and busiest thoroughfares downtown. This new work may be the forerunner of a very general rebuilding in this part of the city. Alexander Baylies, 33 Bible House, is the architect, and William A. White & Sons are the agents.

AUTOMATIC CONTROL OF DUMBWAITERS.

"Full Push Control," with a full set of push buttons on every floor, is an ideal control for dumbwaiters in private residences and for all buildings where it is desired to control the car from different floors at different times. This form of control has been safeguarded by automatic appliances to prevent the car being operated when it should not be operated, but with careless help these safeguards sometimes tend to overreach themselves and cause trouble and dissatisfaction. One cause of trouble is when attendants try to steal the car from each other by keeping their finger on a button, so the moment the car stopped at a floor it would instantly start off again to the floor corresponding to the button the attendant was depressing.

Another cause of trouble in all automatic controls, and which increases as the number of stops increase, is the liability of some careless attendant leaving his door open and so tying up the whole service. When the car fails to respond to a button it is natural to assume that the car is in use elsewhere, and usually valuable time elapses before, in desperation, someone climbs up and down the building looking for the open door that is causing the trouble.

For these reasons the Otis Company's "Indicator" considers that there is a limit beyond which the Full Push Control gives decreasing satisfaction. In general it may be said that it gives good satisfaction up to four or five stops and in occasional special conditions up to eight or ten stops.

"Half Automatic" control and "Call and Send" control are modifications of the full push control, the half automatic control having a full set of buttons only on one floor and a return button on each of the other floors for returning the car to the main floor. The "Call and Send" Control is similar to the "Half Automatic" Control with the addition of a call control button on each floor. These controls are in a general way open to the same advantages and disadvantages as the full push control, except that the limited number of push buttons on all except the main floor, decreases the probability of interference between the different floors, but at the same time decreases the possible range of usefulness of the dumbwaiter. Sometimes one decrease more than offsets the other.

One Point Control is a good form of dumbwaiter control for commercial purposes, the "Indicator" says. The car is controlled from one point only by a pointer and dial or a full set of push buttons and a full set of inter-communicating signals being used between the operator and the different floors. The operator knows when any door is opened and when it is closed, whether the car is running or at rest, which floor the car is desired at and the floor to which it is desired the car should be sent. If the car is tied up at a floor through the inattention or temporary absence of the attendant on that floor, the operator can call the attendant's instant attention by a floor bell. If the car has stopped at a floor he knows when it is not receiving attention, because in this case the signal lamp indicates that the door is not open.

THE APARTMENT HOUSES WE ARE BUILDING.

They Are of Much Larger Average Size—Many Built Nowadays Have More Than a Hundred Feet Frontage.

OF the 68 houses planned for Manhattan during the months of July, August and September, 27 were to be erected on corner lots, which is a number proportionately large in comparison to what was true in former years. Many houses nowadays are built to cover half a block front on avenues, and a number that are under construction at the moment have frontages exceeding more than one hundred feet each.

Not one flathouse of the one-family-on-the-floor type was planned in Manhattan during this time. Originally the flats erected on the West Side were for but one family on a floor. In Brooklyn about one-fifth of the houses planned are of this class, and in the Bronx only about one-tenth.

WIDTH OF LOTS.

Only one tenement house was planned in Manhattan for a lot of less width than twenty-five feet, and only three out of the 68 planned in the three months named were intended for 25-ft. lots. Only four were planned for a 50-ft. frontage and only eleven houses for frontages less than fifty feet. Fifty-three out of Manhattan's 68 were for frontages exceeding fifty feet, and it is a remarkable fact that there were more houses planned with a frontage exceeding one hundred than were planned with a frontage of one hundred feet. Fourteen 100-ft. houses were planned, and 27 houses having a frontage exceeding 100 feet.

SIZE OF APARTMENTS.

More apartments of the size represented by four rooms are being planned than of any other size. While this is true of the city generally, it is not true of the Borough of Queens, where there are more apartments which contain five rooms than of any other kind. During these three months the houses for which plans were filed in the whole city of New York represented 7,788 apartments altogether, of which total number 2,670 apartments consisted each of four rooms, 1,783 apartments contained five rooms each, 843 contained six rooms each, 680 apartments contained seven rooms each, and 117 apartments contained nine rooms or more. The number of apartments containing only three rooms each was 1,140.

The number of tenement houses for which plans were filed in Greater New York during the last quarter, as reported by the Tenement House Department, was 602, of a total estimated value for buildings alone of $26,221,400. Manhattan planned only 68 of these houses, but the total estimated cost of the 68 was $17,169,000, or 69 per cent. of the whole. The average number of apartments in the buildings in Manhattan was 42; in Brooklyn, about 7, and in the Bronx 15.

The alterations to tenement and apartment houses filed during the months of July, August and September amounted in estimated cost to $647,951, of which total sum $483,245 was expended in Manhattan, $141,945 in Brooklyn, and only about $16,000 in the Bronx. A large proportion of the alterations were presumably such as were required in order that old houses should be made to conform to the new law.

COMPLAINTS AND VIOLATIONS.

Nearly thirteen thousand (12,953) complaints were entered at the Tenement House Department during the three months under consideration, of which 9,244 were prompted by conditions in Manhattan, 591 in the Bronx, and 2,846 in Brooklyn. Thirty-three per cent. were on account of lack of cleanliness, and other causes of trouble were dampness, imperfect drainage, danger from fire, insufficient light, defective plumbing and unlawful use, of which last named cause of complaint there were 502 cases in Manhattan, 90 in the Bronx, and 270 in Brooklyn.

The old building violations filed in Manhattan during the period numbered 57,000, in round numbers; in the Bronx, 7,000, and in Brooklyn, 12,000. The new building violations pending, in Manhattan alone, on the first of October, was 281, and in the Bronx, 586. The alteration violations pending in Manhattan on October 1 was 6,240, and in the Bronx, 964.

A BIG YEAR.

During eleven months of this year the number of tenement and apartment houses planned in Manhattan alone was 428, of the value of $65,891,000; to compare with 210, estimated to cost $25,925,000, for the whole of last year. The value of the tenement houses planned so far this year is more than in any previous full year except 1905, which was a year of great things. No less than 1,413 tenement houses were planned in the year 1905, and their estimated cost was $73,500,000. Nine hundred and sixty-five tenements were planned in the year 1906, but their estimated cost was only about $57,300,000.

This has not only been the biggest year in Manhattan for new apartment house projects since 1905, but also the best year ever for loft buildings. It will fall behind the years 1906 and 1908 in the number of office buildings planned.

The statistics of the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings for eleven months of this year, as compiled by the statistician, James W. Spencer, disclose these important facts. The month just ended, furthermore, was the busiest November in a decade, except the one in the year 1905. But the first time since the recent boom in apartment house and high-class flat house construction the record for the month shows a falling off of new tenement house construction as far as capital investment is concerned, although the number of buildings planned was ahead of last year's record.

STANDARDS FOR USING CEMENT.

VARIOUS committees of the National Association of Cement Users are collecting data which will be of high practical value. As it is only through the active support and co-operation of users of cement that the industry advances, the officers hope that such will send in at once information which may be in their possession along the lines requested by the committees. If anyone has any suggestion to increase the value of the outline of the proposed reports, send it in at once, to Edwin E. Krauss, Assistant to the President, Harrison Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

ON SPECIFICATIONS FOR CEMENT PRODUCTS.

This committee desires to have its report cover the following items: (1) Data as to the success or failure of work done under the Standard Specifications for Cement Hollow Building Blocks, Standard No. 3. (2) It is thought that it might be advisable to adopt a Standard Thickness of Joints in laying blocks, so that the blockmakers will know just how to make their blocks to fit a certain size wall. (3) Data in reference to coloring cement products, giving information as to the proper materials and quantities to be used. (4) Standard specifications for Cement Brick, Cement Tile, Cement Pipe, Manufactured Stone, and for Cement Finish in Buildings.

ON EXTERIOR TREATMENT OF CONCRETE SURFACES.

It is proposed to incorporate in the report as much information as possible covering the following:

1.—Effect of material and workmanship on surface: Cement, sand, stone, foreign matter, active or inert (glass, oil, glue); water, pigments, effect of molds, method of mixing and placing, treatment while hardening.

2.—Removal of surface in various ways: (a) unskilled labor, picking, scraping, rubbing; (b) skilled labor, crandall, bush-hammer, tooth tool, chisel, set, laths; (c) sand blast (size of nozzle); (d) chemical treatment (kind, strength, method); (e) age of cement when cut or treated; (f) tools, kind, quality, temper; (g) effect of cutting on impermeability; (h) effect of cutting on durability; (i) effect of cutting on collection or dirt; (j) advantages and disadvantages of certain treatments; (k) photographs.

3.—Coating Surfaces in Various Ways: (a) texture and condition of masonry surface to be covered (masonry includes brick, terra-cotta, stone, concrete, mortar, plaster); (b) metal lath, kinds, method of erection; (c) preparation of base to obtain bond; (d) material, cement, sand, lime, pigments; (e) mixing; (f) placing number of coats and treatment of each, workmanship, texture; (g) joints; (h) washes, cement, etc.; (i) paint; (j) enamel; (k) durability; (l) photographs.

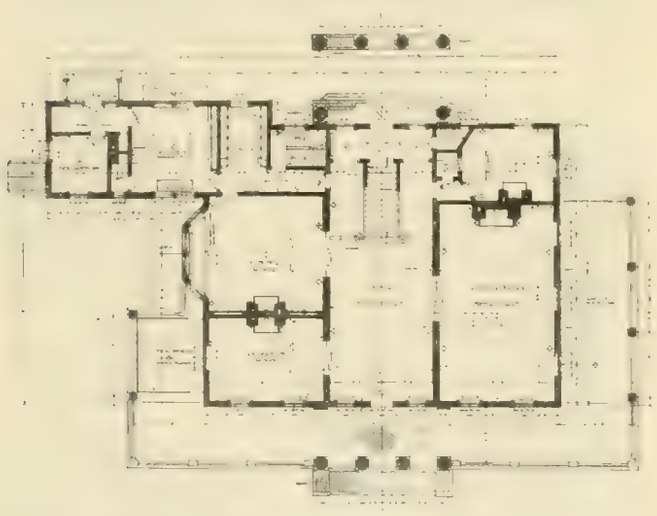
4.—Ornamental Work. Possibilities and Limitations of Surface: (a) cast concrete; (b) cast mortar; (c) plastered mortar; (d) kinds of molds: wood, plaster, iron, glue, sand (plain or treated), clay.

5.—Waterproofing: (a) necessity; (b) mixed in concrete, Hydrated lime, Medusa, clay, aquabar, calcium chloride, etc.; (c) method of incorporation; (d) surface treatment, colorless, Te-Pe-Co, Cabot's, Toch Bros., Dexter Bros., Edison, Glidden Varnish Co., Parafine, hot and cold; (e) surface treatment, changing color, boiled oil and gasoline, tar and benzol, Solvay Co., asphalt, pitch, sarce, antihydrine; (f) durability of each material; (h) preparation and condition of surface to receive each treatment; (i) mortar (Waterproofing Co. of New York City). Under this heading of waterproofing it is understood that extreme care will be used neither to give undue advertising to any particular brand, nor to do an injustice to anyone by an improper statement. It is believed, however, that it is extremely necessary and useful to cement users to have a concise statement of facts regarding the use of various materials, whether patented, trade-marked or not, and it is hoped, therefore, that this subject will receive careful attention.

6.—Limitations, effects blemishes of various sorts, and remedies: (a) range of colors; (b) variation of color due to workmanship and weather; (c) craze crackers, checking; (d) expansion and contraction cracks; (e) irregular size (bulging of molds); (f) mortar and stone at horizontal joint between day's work; in concrete wall; (g) patches are a darker color; (h) efflorescence, cause and remedy; (i) porosity, cause and remedy; (j) frozen surfaces; (k) softness of surface; (l) dusting.

7.—Specifications to obtain all the treatments and results of each subheading Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5.

8.—Costs. (a) Exact and relative cost of each method and manner of estimating cost of materials and labor.



NEW RESIDENCE FOR JOHN W. PARIS AT KISSENA PARK. W. W. Knowles, Architect.

SOUTHERN COLONIAL HOME IN QUEENS.

NOTABLE as a distinct addition to the structural improvements in the Kissena Park section of Flushing, Queens Borough, John W. Paris is having built a large suburban house for his own occupancy, to cost about $35,000, together with a two-story garage that harmonizes architecturally with the house.

Situated in Rose st. the house is three stories in height, and is in the style of the Southern Colonial manor house. It is 50x88 in size, with an exterior of old-fashioned hand-split shingles. There is a red brick terrace across the front of the structure, with brick approach walks, also a spacious veranda. The roof is shingle, surmounted by red brick chimneys.

Extending through the centre of the house, on both the first and second floors, is a hallway 18 ft. wide, connected by an old-fashioned double staircase, with a broad landing at the turns.

On the first floor is a large living room and a large dining room, both finished in mahogany; also a den finished in Flemish oak, and a parlor finished in white enamel. There is also a large kitchen, with every modern culinary equipment and lined with sanitary flooring. Just beyond the kitchen is a dining room for the servants, opening onto a servants' porch.

In the basement and beneath the dining room is a spacious billiard room, wainscoted in Flemish oak and floored with red quarry tile.

Among the attractive features of the house is a living porch off from the living room and a tea porch off from the reception room. All of the rooms on the first and second floors have dark mahogany doors. Both of the broad hallways are finished in white enamel. Old-fashioned open fireplaces abound.

An admirable circumstance in connection with this fine suburban home is the placing of a vapor heating plant, gas meters and coal bins for both the house and garage in the basement of the latter. The garage is 28x40 in size, and is also partly arranged as a stable. In the upper floor are living quarters for a chauffeur and coachman. William W. Knowles, 1135 Broadway, Manhattan, is the architect.

SAVING MONEY ON COAL.

At the direction of Commissioner John H. O'Brien of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, Deputy Commissioner M. F. Loughman has conducted a number of tests on the use of cheaper grades of coal, and it has been satisfactorily established by these tests that the department coal bills for 1909 will be upwards of $150,000 less than in previous years. The first change in the grade of coal was in the use of broken size, which costs less than the grade which the department had been using. In the first contract let for this grade of coal the department saved about $12,000. The following table, giving the results of the tests of the different grades of coal, is very interesting and clearly shows what the department has accomplished in this direction:

Fifteen engineers from city departments, together with Arthur F. Rice, commissioner of the Coal Merchants' Association, and W. S. Rodie, of the North River Coal Company, were appointed this week to consider ways and means for purchasing the city's coal supply so as to get the most and best coal for the least money. It is hoped to save about $1,000,000 a year by the use of scientific methods.

DO INNOVATIONS PAY?

A brick manufacturer who was asked the foregoing question was in doubt how to the answer, but finally said:

"If you have a plant and have had unsatisfactory results, have lost money and can not say for a certainty why, get a brickmaker, one who can tell you why; they are not found everywhere. Don't accept a man who tells you before he sees your proposition what the trouble is. Nine times out of ten he wants a job, and after he leaves you, you will be a poorer, though I will admit, a wiser man. The getting of a brickmaker on many plants is an innovation that is often overlooked. If you are a brickmaker, but not a business man, lose no time in employing such talent; they are not indigenous to brickyards.

"Incidently, a salesman is sometimes needed, though a fine product seldom grows moldy.

"Economy in the treatment of clays, in the handling and in mechanical appliances, should always receive consideration. It often costs money to know it all; it is well to be 'from Missouri,' but once shown and satisfied, adopt. Thus you are abreast of the best, and will go under the wire a good length ahead of the general entry."

Architect H. Warren Howard, Jr., of Manhattan, has opened a branch office in the Maher Building on Greenwich av, Greenwich.

The celebrated McCall's Ferry Power Company has been bought in at public sale by William M. Barnum, of New York, representing the first mortgage bondholders. Immense water and electrical works are being established at McCall's Ferry, near Lancaster, Pa.

The thirtieth annual meeting of the A. S. M. E. was held in the Engineers' Building, 33 West 39th st, Dec. 7 to 10. The entire social entertainment was in charge of the members resident in and about New York, under the immediate direction of a local committee appointed by them, of which Mr. William D. Hoxie, is chairman. On Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 8, parties were formed to visit places of interest. In the evening there was a lecture for members and guests.

Mr. H. R. Reveley, senior member of the brick commission firm of Reveley & Emmons, was reported this week to be able to be about the house again for a few hours during the day. Mr. Reveley, one of the best known men in the brick business in this city, has been suffering from pneumonia for a month, and his recovery had been despaired of at his home on Cornwall-on-Hudson. His physicians advise that with great care he will eventually regain his health. Although 65 years of age, he has a strong constitution, which stands him in well at this time.

Expert Supervision of Wiring.

One of the essentials of building construction today is that of having a thoroughly experienced, capable and responsible electrical engineer supervise the wiring of a building not only during installation but afterward. Architects have long recognized this fact, but the owner or agent seldom does. Once the building is turned over to the owner, the subject of care of electrical wiring is sometimes forgotten, thought seldom being given to the fact that deterioration is constantly going on and that a slight accident might destroy his building.

Here is where a responsible company like the Edwards Electrical Construction Co. is indispensable. This company, which is located at 39 E. 42d st, specializes in supervision and also in installations of all kinds of electrical work, lighting, power plant equipment and factory light and power systems. This company, of which Mr. M. J. Levy is general manager, was established in 1872, and was therefore one of the electrical pioneers. It was formerly the contract department of Edwards & Co. The construction company has done work for the City and Suburban Homes Co. and installed all the electrical work in the Phipps tenements in E. 31st st, for which Grosvenor Atterbury was architect. Burglar alarms also are a specialty.

Mr. Levy, the general manager has had 20 years general experience in electrical work and has expert knowledge of this kind of installation in all its branchs.

BUILDING MATERIAL AND EQUIPMENT

Better Tone in Building Materials.

Continued good building weather, low prices in brick and the announcement of several large building plans that will go ahead this winter, improved the tone of the building material market considerably this week. As the end of the year approaches, satisfaction with business conditions as a whole, for 1909, seems to be the rule. While it has not been up to expectations, probably because expectations were too high, it has been good on the whole. Collections have been slow, but sure. Steel and iron have had boom-year business, with every indication that it will be continued, if not exceeded next year. More Portland cement has been used in this city than any year since 1906, but prices have been too low to give this condition the prominence due it. Stone has entirely recovered from the effects of the depression and faces a good winter. Lumber had a fair year in this city. The market summary follows:

BRICK.—Prices moved up a quarter.
CEMENT.—Better inquiry, market dull.
IRON.—Little buying. Prices stand.
LUMBER.—Active for this season.
STEEL.—In continued demand.
STONE.—Price advance at hand.

Brick Easy in Dull Market.

Brick went out easily this week at from $5.50 to $5.75 for Hudson River hards. Raritans brought $5.75 to $6. The spurt that seemed to be impending a week ago yesterday resulted in nothing more than a few brick sales and the market resumed its normal aspect. The demand for Jerseys was light, but prices held firm nevertheless.

The yards up the river have about finished their complement, and for the most parts the boats that will make the last trips are at the various plants loading at this time. The commission men here do not look for shipments later than the twentieth of the month, unless unprecedented weather rules. The fifteenth is the usual time for closing of navigation on the river.

Agents here are advising their customers that there is a good quantity on hand, but there is comparatively little up the river, nearly all available Fall and Winter stock having been sent down. About a dozen boats have put up "light" for the Winter. The Empire Brick & Supply Co .is covering some of its own brick, and buying what the market calls for now. Transactions at West 52d st for last week follow:

Left over, Nov. 27, 15; arrived, 85; sold, 76; left over, Dec. 6, 17 after seven cargoes had been covered. This is normal for the first week in December.

"NO CAUSE FOR PESSIMISM."

The representative of one of the biggest Hudson River yards when asked yesterday as to how he sized up the present brick situation, said: "I can certainly see no cause for pessimism, and I doubt very much if there is much of that kind of sentiment in the trade. True, we have had a raw deal this Summer and the Fall was not better than normal, but the outlook is encouraging; it looks as though we were to have a fairly open Winter, which will mean building activity and consequent good prices, and I firmly believe that the Spring has some good things in store for us."

THINGS QUIET ALONG THE RIVER.

Those yards that expect to make improvements this year have not made any move in that direction worthy of mention. The tendency is to let things take care of themselves until next year, owing to the fact that the market this year did not hold out big things to them. In this connection it is interesting to recall price conditions for this time of the year with those of similar periods in 1908, 1907 and 1906, carrying as it did through the panic, the year following it and the present one. Quotations show that from Dec. 1 to 29 in 1906 the quotations for good brick ranged from $5.50 to $6, and from Dec. 7 to Dec. 28 in 1907 they were $5.25 to $5.75. In 1908 they were quoted from $5.75 to $6 until December 26, when they went to $6 to $6.50. It will be seen, therefore, that, contrary to general opinion, this week's prices are entirely normal, and they have continued so for at least three weeks.

THE QUANTITY OF BRICK UP RIVER.

The manufacturers have counted earlier than usual this year, and from information obtained from a reliable source, and one thoroughly in touch with the actual result of the canvass of the various yards up the river, we are enabled to state that there are approximately 150,000,000 less brick in hand than the figure the market concedes. This statement will be somewhat of a surprise to local interests, but it merely shows what a tremendous amount of brick has been consumed in this market this year. It is stated that all records for Hudson River brick manufacture have been broken for this year.

RUMOR OF NEW ASSOCIATION.

The rumor that was heard in brick centres this week to the effect that the manufacturers in the Hudson Valley were planning to organize on a little different basis than formerly, was partly verified by the Record and Guide. At this time it is not possible to give more extensive details as to plans and purposes, but we hope to in the near future. The change embodies a membership of manufacturers only, no distributors being admitted, it is said, within the organization. Primarily, however, the new association will more actively promote the "best interests of the Hudson River brick manufacturers."

Better Inquiry for Portland Cement.

A better inquiry for Portland cement developed this week, and the feeling was greatly improved. The market was dull, however. The announcements made this week of several large operations which will go ahead this winter has helped to drive pessimism to the wall. It was said here this week that some of the Southern mills have advanced the price of their products fifteen cents a barrel, owing to the greatly increased demand for Portland cement from the railroads which, in that section of the country, are carrying on great improvements at this time.

Speaking of the year's business, an official of the company said that he believed that despite the unfavorable conditions which have existed in the local market, especially since June, the total amount of business done in this city and vicinity during the year would prove to be in excess of that of last year, because of the fact that building operations throughout the country were more than $200,000,000 greater than the total amount involved in 1908. Of that amount New York contributed no small part. The mills are working almost to capacity, he said, to supply the undiminishing demand, and the outlook for 1910 was good.

Pig Iron Market Quiet.

No change in the condition of the pig iron market was reported this week. Quietness continues in all branches. New business is very light. A moderate buying movement developed on Thursday, but it proved to be without feature, save that steel-making iron was in the lead. Consumption is no longer in excess of production, due in some degree to the fact that stock taking time is at hand in some sections.

November first opened with the prospect of a dull month, and it has fulfilled the prophecy to some extent, although the total output for the month was greater than had been expected, inasmuch as it sustained October's daily average.

The remaining two furnaces at Gary probably will blow in before spring, if present consumption is maintained. Shipments on contracts are still quite heavy in the North, but the movement in the South is being seriously interfered with by the shortage of cars. Contracts for 25,000 tons of New York and New Jersey ore have been placed for next year's shipments.

Steel in Continued Demand.

There seems to be no let up in the demand for structural and sheet steel. There is a large amount of structural work being specified for in this city and vicinity, and further impetus was given the market this week by the announcements of the large building operations that will go ahead this Winter. The total amount of this work now in sight, according to fabricators is about 200,000 tons, with possibly half that much more pending on work that will not come out until after the first of the year. This is exclusive of railroad requisitions, which fell off somewhat this week. Of this amount the New York Central may specify between 5,000 and 7,000 tons on its contracts pending with the American Bridge Co.

SHEETS HOLDING THEIR OWN.

Local jobbers report that sheet steel is holding its own, there being several important contracts closed this week and more pending. Copper was slow, but with prices hanging steadily. Lead was stronger and refined spelter was dull.

November Lumber Market Active.

As if in verification of inquiries made among the principle lumber agencies here as to market conditions for this kind of building material during the month of November, President John R. Walker, of the Lumberman's Bureau, Washington, issues, under date of November 30, a letter, addressed to co-operators in the trade, in which he shows that conditions are greatly improved. He speaks in review of the entire country, but they represent the expressions of local interests fairly well. Speaking of North Carolina Pine, for instance, he says:

"Viewed from the standpoint of the trade at large, the present falling off in the demand for North Carolina pine, is a fortunate circumstance, for without an opportunity for the mills to pile up larger stocks than they now have on hand there would undoubtedly be something of a lumber famine in the Spring accompanied by a radical advance in price which would prove very unsettling—for there is an inevitable reaction which catches everyone unawares."

Discussing the falling off in demand of this product, he continues:

"This falling off in demand is a normal winter development, for North Carolina pine is essentially a building wood, and this is not a building season. However, since the mills have a comfortable supply of orders on hand, and with stocks not above normal, only small concessions are being made from the basis of thirty days ago, and these only with stocks to move. The feeling is universal, and it appears to be based upon sound reasoning, that after the inventory of January 1 a heavy buying movement will set in, and our advice to the buyer, if he would avoid the car shortages, mill delays and higher prices, is to anticipate his Spring wants and buy now.

"With dressed lumber there has been little change except that on roofers decided concessions are being made. Five and one-half inch roofers show a decline of $1 in kiln dried and 50 cents in air dried and the other widths about 50 cents in kiln dried and 25 cents in air dried. The competition of South Western yellow pine has effected a reduction in the price of beveled siding."

OPTIMISM IN HARDWOOD TRADE.

In the monthly report covering the hardwood situation optimism is conspicuous. President Walker therein speaks of the advance of $1 in good hardwood lumber over the prices of October, and adds that low grade lumber is moving slowly with little improvement to be looked for until the prices of good lumber become still higher and until the winter dullness in pine is passed. The feature of the market, throughout the country, he says, is similar to that existing in this city and vicinity, namely, that poplar and red and white plain oak lead the demand. "New England and the East," he adds, by way of emphasis of this condition, "are perhaps showing more activity at present than any other section of the country, although conditions in the Central West are favorable."

Discussing the situation in ash, the head of the Lumberman's Bureau says:

"Ash shows an advance of a dollar in the East, with practically no change in the West. Basswood and Birch are in good demand, and No. 1 common shows a slight advance. Cypress is in good demand, but prices remain practically unchanged."

The trade may expect higher prices after January 1.

Stone May Come in All Winter.

With the stone market continually improving and better prices at hand, the outlook for the wholesaler for the winter is not bad. As far as the retailer is concerned, he looks for a normal winter. The call that the cutters are making upon the wholesalers for material is a little heavier than normal. In consequence, sawed stone will come in practically all winter, but there will not be much cut stone after this month. The quarries are exceptionally busy both North and West, and they probably will continue working, with the possible exception of a week or so in January and February. They have requisitions in hand sufficient to keep them busy well into the spring, and a good part of this business is from this vicinity. A meeting of quarry representatives was held here on Thursday for the purpose of considering prices and other important matters pertaining to the situation in this city at the present time. Nothing was given out for publication at that time however.

THE WEEK.

IT is very evident that the nearer the time comes for the opening of the Pennsylvania terminal station the more active real estate will become in the Midtown Section; in fact there are already evidences that what may be called a "boom" is starting. This week we publish reports of twelve sales in 26th, 27th, 28th and 29th sts, five in the "thirties," and we have heard of numerous resales which have not yet reached a stage for publicity. Heretofore the movement has not gone west of 7th av, but this week there have been five sales between 7th and 8th avs, with every indication of more to come. It is worth noting that very little has been heard from 7th av, between 23d and 33d sts. With the exception of three transactions in property between 24th and 25th sts, there has not been a sale in months, and at present there are no indications of activity. When the anticipated "boom" does arrive, however, there will be a repetition, no doubt, of what has taken place recently on 4th av, and as in the latter case the smart real estate man will be telling how cheap he could have bought on 7th av.

Of the thirty odd deals closed north of 59th st this week, twenty-two were flats or apartments, the most important being the trade of the northwest corner of Broadway and 151st st for one of the Villard dwellings on East 51st st and a substantial amount of cash. Activity is also on the increase in the Bronx, there being thirty sales there this week, against fifteen last week, and twenty-four for the corresponding week last year.

A matter of importance to real estate interests generally is the rumor that the hollow tile and the concrete fireproofing interests have agreed and settled their differences, and that as a consequence a building code would be passed promptly. The Allied Real Estate Interests has called a meeting of its advisory committee on building code, this to be held on Monday next for the purpose of protesting against any hurried action in the matter, at least until the people that pay the bills know what the new code is to be.

THE AUCTION MARKET

WITH the exception of the offering of 14 East 48th st and 312 West 75th st by Bryan L. Kennelly on Wednesday, all of the auction offerings were by order of the court. Of the two dwellings referred to, the 48th st house was bid in at $96,000, and the 75th st house is said to have been purchased by a brokerage concern for a client, for $103,500.

For the coming week there are voluntary offerings on three days. On Tuesday, Samuel Goldsticker will offer No. 1080 5th av, a 5-sty American basement dwelling at the north corner of 90th st; Samuel Marx will offer eight parcels of Manhattan property on Wednesday. They are located on East 61st st, Park av, Goerck, Cherry and Grand sts. One of Joseph P. Day's special sales days will be on Thursday, when he will sell seven Manhattan parcels, all improved with income-producing buildings.

WILL NEW YORK WAKE UP NOW?

THE rumor that has gained some currency this week, that the Building Code is once more to be taken up, should receive the prompt and serious attention of all who are in any way interested in building and real estate. The rumor gains some color of probability from the report that the hollow tile interests and the concrete fireproofing interests have buried their hatchet—at any rate, so far as one another is concerned. Supplementary evidence is also possibly forthcoming in the fact that the Allied Real Estate Interests called a meeting of their advisory committee on Building Code for a meeting for next week.

Now, what is the public going to do about it? The approved method which has been in vogue for many years is for the public immediately to go to sleep and wait until they are aroused by a good dose of cold water, after which they will awaken to discover that their interests have been manipulated to suit the trade exigencies of a great many conflicting trades. The city of New York will never get a perfectly fair, or even a measurably fair, Building Code, unless they are ready to give some time and attention to the matter. We do not believe, on the other hand, that a good code can be obtained by a "Parliament of Tongs" or an unwieldy body that gathers to talk in pure Kilkenny manner.

The drafting of a code is a matter for experts, and the main thing is to see that the experts are well chosen, and then, that they are well watched. Public opinion should be concentrated at the point where it is effective, and that is on the result and how the result is obtained. A well-known contractor once said that if he were dishonest he would rather have charge of the Building Code than of the police force; that if properly worked to serve individual interests, it is a perfect bonanza to which, fortunately or unfortunately, the public has not yet awakened.

The work of the Allied Real Estate Interests might very well form a rallying point for public attention and co-operation. The Allied Real Estate Interests are striving for a sane, equitable Building Code, and that is what every reasonable citizen demands also.

AUCTIONEERS' HOLD ELECTION.

At a meeting of the Real Estate Auctioneers' Association, held in the Realty Exchange last week, the present officials were re-elected to serve for the ensuing year.

The officers are: James L. Wells, president; Morris Wilkins, vice-president; D. Phoenix Ingraham, secretary, and William F. Redmond, treasurer.

The addition of this plot increases the holdings of the realty company on 34th st to 72 ft. The company was formed a few years ago by the late Dr. Wm. T. At the office of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company, it is said that the growing strength of the demand for small mortgage investments is a surprising and gratifying feature of the mortgage situation. "Last week we sold to investors, 195 mortgages, aggregating over $1,200,000. Of these mortgages, none was larger than $50,000; 97 of them were under $5,000. This parity between the needs of the small borrower and the requirements of the small investor is an especially pleasing feature of what seems to us a very favorable situation in the mortgage field."

A Storage Question.

An ordinance pending in the Board of Aldermen provides in part as follows:

"Sec. 1. The owner of every tenement house shall provide for said building proper and suitable conveniences and receptacles for ashes, rubbish, garbage, refuse and other matter; and no ashes, rubbish, garbage or other refuse (i. e., waste paper, rags, bones, fats or offal) shall be conveyed into or stored, picked over, sorted or otherwise handled in any building whatsoever.

"Sec. 2. EXCEPT that persons may use a store, factory, dwelling house or other building for the purpose of accumulating, picking over, assorting or baling light refuse or rubbish, but no storing, accumulating, picking over, storing or baling any light refuse or rubbish shall be done in any building whatsoever without a special permit from the fire commissioner."

Commissioner Edward J. Butler, of the Tenement House Department, has sent a letter to President McGowan suggesting it would be well before permitting final action upon this measure to make a thorough examination as to whether it conflicts in any way with the provisions of the Tenement House Law. Section 39 of the Tenement House Law reads as follows: "No tenement house, nor any part thereof, nor of the lot upon which it is situated, shall be used as a place of storage, keeping or handling of any combustible article, except under such conditions as may be described by the fire department, under authority of a written permit issued by said department."

NEW JERSEY-NEW YORK R. E. EXCHANGE.

Quarterly Meeting of Directors and Members Adopts System of Listing Property at Exchange Rooms.

THE members and Board of Governors of the New Jersey-New York Real Estate Exchange held their last quarterly meeting for the year on December 7, at the rooms of the Exchange in the Hudson Terminal Building. The principal topic of discussion was a plan for listing property at the exchange headquarters, with a view of making the Exchange a central sales agency in New York City for the benefit of those members that are located in the various suburban towns of New Jersey, and who have exclusive control of properties which they chose to have registered on the books of the Exchange. The plan was adopted and goes into effect on January 1, 1910. A provision for listing property obtained from owners directly, who are not members of the Exchange, was voted down on the ground that the listing privilege should be restricted to the members only.

By the adoption of the listing system, the Exchange signalizes its intention of carrying on its work during the coming year in an aggressive manner. It is hoped by the operation of listing plan to make the Exchange a clearing house in the City of New York of the New Jersey real estate interests. The sentiments expressed at the meeting indicated that the need of such a central market place, as it were, from the city, could, after January 1, do business in New York as if they maintained individual offices there. A great deal of optimistic enthusiasm was manifested over the adoption of the listing project.

Preparations for the annual meeting and election of officers, which is to take place in Jersey City in January, were perfected. President Kempner appointed the following committee on nominations: Messrs. Joseph P. Day, Joseph W. Doolittle, E. R. Holden, Stuard Hirschman and William A. Lambert. The president of the Hudson County Board of Real Estate Brokers, Mr. Percy A. Gaddis, generously tendered the use of their board rooms in Jersey City for the annual meeting of the Exchange, which offer was accepted with thanks.

At the conclusion of the meeting the members proceeded in a body to the Cafe Boulevard, where they participated in a dinner and enjoyed a sociable evening.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS FOR HUNT'S POINT.

JUDGING by the list of petitions for public improvements favorably passed upon at the meeting of the Local Board of Morrisania on Monday, the Hunt's Point section is beginning to fare well under the new administration in the Bronx.

The following petitions on the calendar received the approval of the board. Acquiring title to the lands necessary for Drake st, between Randall av and Eastern Boulevard, No. 284. Acquiring title to the lands necessary for Longfellow av, between Hunt's Point av and Spofford av, No. 285. Acquiring title to the lands necessary for Truxton st from Leggett av to Longwood av, No. 276. The matter of acquiring title to the lands necessary for East 156th st, from Southern Boulevard to Truxton st, in section 10, Twenty-third Ward was also approved by the Local Board.

In addition to the foregoing, the board approved the petition for regulating and flagging the east side of Hunt's Point av between the Southern Boulevard and Lafayette av, where not already laid. Another matter of importance to that locality which received the favorable consideration of the Local Board was the petition for constructing receiving basins and appurtenances on the northeast and southeast cors of the Southern Boulevard and proposed East 163d st (Dongan st), to connect with the existing sewer in the Southern Boulevard, at the intersection of proposed East 163d st (Dongan st), and at the southwest cor of Hunt's Point av and Garrison av.

FAVOR WIDENING OF 34TH STREET.

THE first general gathering of members of the newly organized Manhattan Central Improvement Association met on Monday at the Waldorf-Astoria. It will be recalled that the chief object of the organization is to aid business and property interests in the 34th street section.

One of the topics discussed at the meeting was the matter of the moving sidewalk, in 34th st, which will extend from 2d to 9th av. The plan of the experiment provides for a series of three platforms. The passenger steps first on a platform moving at a speed of 3 miles an hour and then to the second platform, and finally to the third, the last mentioned moving at about nine miles an hour. Before giving expression to its opinion with respect to the effect which this endless platform is likely to exert on property values, along 34th st, the association will await the findings of a committee which will at once begin to gather all the facts relating to the project.

Perhaps the most important matter brought up for discussion was the proposed widening of 34th st. Although many of those present were in favor of increasing the width of that thoroughfare, it was generally believed that much property west of 6th av would suffer serious damage from the necessary removal of stoop lines. After lengthy arguments by several members, a motion was adopted providing for the appointment by the directors of a Committee on Streets to take up the subject and report at an early date.

The efforts of the improvement association toward increasing its membership has been crowned with further success by the addition of the following new members: Frederick M. Davies, representing the A. G. Vanderbilt interests; August Belmont, Irving M. Shaw, President of the Chelsea Exchange Bank; W. F. Parke, representing the D. H. McAlpin property interests; J. Adams Brown, president of the New Netherland Bank; C. H Ditson, A. Frankfield, Mrs. Mary C. Brown, Minturn Post Collins; Mrs. Robert Stafford, Mrs. David Watts, A. B. Ashford, Arthur H. Kirkpatrick, G. V. Mott, Miss Mary P. Cooper, Copeland Townsend, William G. Wagner, Ovington Brothers, Herman Le Roy Edgar, Charles Howland Russell, S. Blumenkron, George Karsch, Michael J. Shanley, and Paul Halpin. The officers are: President, Isidor Strauss, of R. H. Macy & Co.; vice-presidents, R. McLeod Cameron and Edwin H. Popper of Oppenheim Collins & Co.; treasurer, W. R. H. Martin of Rogers, Peet & Co.; secretary, C. J. Allen.

TAXPAYERS SUGGEST NEW MEASURE.

The meetings of the Taxpayers' Alliance are now being held in the rooms of the North Side Board of Trade, Carr Building, 3d av and 138th st. At the December gathering, among other matters brought up for action was a communication from the Clason Point Taxpayers' Association suggesting a measure providing that no borough could secure more appropriations than the amount which was paid by it into the city treasury. In referring to this subject, Secretary Harry Robitzek said: "A bill of this nature would be of doubtful validity, and in any case it would not help the Bronx, for the reason that Manhattan pays 75 per cent. of the taxes." However, the matter is now under consideration by Mr. Robitzek, who is chairman of the Legislative Committee, and a report of his findings in relation thereto will likely be brought up for consideration at the January meeting of the Alliance.

SEVENTH AVENUE EXTENSION.

SPURRED on by the growing necessity for adequate improvements on the lower West Side of Manhattan, and encouraged by the publicity given to the demands of the taxpayers' associations for the extension of 7th av southerly from its beginning at West 11th st, many of the owners of real estate in the Greenwich section have resolved to individually assist their local representatives in obtaining the desired relief. Among such is Dr. J. H. Ferster, who is also doing good work as a member of the Greenwich Village Public Service Committee. Speaking for the latter he said:

"This committee has been advocating the extension of 7th av for some time. It is still advocating it, and intends to 'fight it out to a finish.'

"The reason for this extension are so numerous and so apparent to any one who will give it a moment's thought, that it seems almost like a waste of time to repeat them. The Pennsylvania Railroad station, with its main entrance and exit on 7th av will soon be landing daily many thousands of people at that location.

"The traffic facilities of the avenue can be improved but little until it has an outlet. It is little less than a crime to neglect this outlet or even delay its accomplishment. As it now stands, 7th av runs up against the old brewery building on the corner of West 11th st and Greenwich av, and there you are.

"The Greenwich Village Public Service Committee favors the extension of 7th av in a direct line from its present terminal at West 11th st to Varick st, and the widening of Varick st to Franklin st, thus making a beautiful and useful thoroughfare from Franklin st to Central Park.

"Much money has been expended by our city officials for improvements that are not nearly so important as this one, and yet they seem unwilling to accede to the demand of the citizens for this extension. But it is bound to come, and the local official who opposes it, simply starts to dig his political grave. Every voter of old Greenwich Village will assist him in doing so whenever he goes to the polls to vote. Some plead the debt limit, but no such obstruction seems to be placed in the way when some political job is to be furthered."

The service committee continues to hold frequent meetings relating to the extension of 7th av, and President Edwin Zimmerman will be glad of the assistance of any owner or resident interested in its work.

REAL ESTATE RECORDS

1st.—Q. C. is an abbreviation for Quit Claim deed, i. e., a deed wherein all the right, title and interest of the grantor is conveyed, omitting all covenants and warranty.

2d.—C. a. G. means a deed containing Covenant against Grantor only, in which he covenants that he hath not done any act whereby the estate conveyed may be impeached, charged or encumbered.

3d.—B. & S. is an abbreviation for Bargain and Sale deed, wherein, although the seller makes no expressed consideration, he really grants or conveys the property for a valuable consideration, and thus impliedly claims to be the owner of it.

4th.—The street and avenue numbers given in these lists are, in all cases, taken from the insurance maps when they are not mentioned in the deeds. The numbers, it will occasionally be found, do not correspond with the existing ones, owing to there having been no official designation made of them by the Department of Public Works.

5th.—The first date is the date the deed was drawn. The second date is the date of filing same. When both dates are the same, only one is given.

6th.—The figures in each conveyance, thus, 2:482—10, denote that the property mentioned is in section 2, block 482, lot 10.

7th.—It should also be noted in section and block numbers that the instrument as filed is strictly followed.

8th.—A $20,000—$30,000 indicates the assessed value of the property, the first figures being for the lot only and the second figures representing both lot and building. Letter P before second figure indicates that the property is assessed as in course of construction. Valuations are from the assessment roll of 1909.

9th.—T. S. preceding the consideration in a conveyance means that the deed or conveyance has been recorded under the Torrens System.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

Dec. 3, 4, 6, 7, 8 and 9.

JUDGE GAYNOR'S ASSURANCES.

AS someone has said, it is so much easier to see, after the procession has passed. Facts then begin to fit into their proper places, and the piecemeal mosaic presents a well-defined picture. This, perhaps, explains why New York is only beginning to appreciate how much was gained for the cause of good government by the recent election. Almost the incredible happened, and the extraordinary thing is that every contending element of the contest, without exception, contributed in some measure to the fortunate outcome. Some of the contributions may not have been intentional, but in the end they constituted a part of the result. If everything had been carefully planned, all could not have come out better. People are beginning to see that although there may have been more thrilling elections and far more rhetorical contests, a completer victory for good government has not been secured anywhere for many years.

The new turn for hope given to public thought is undoubtedly due to the recent utterances of Mayor-elect Gaynor. Every speech he has made since election has been a very positive contribution to public assurance. People are saying "the judge is back to the bench again." Certainly nothing could be better than the spirit and tone of every one of his post-election speeches. The moral assurance which they give as to his attitude in regard to the city government is not only indubitable, but of the highest order. Not even the most fearful can spell "politics" out of any of his words. He has restored, within the last few weeks, the almost defunct hope for good government, and the better forces of the city are visibly encouraged. The encouragement lies not in the words, but in the character of the man and the bent of the mind that is revealed behind the words.

Real estate, which is so very intimately related to all that is meant by good government, is beginning to feel the beneficial financial effects of the personal guarantee which the Mayor-elect is extending to the solid interests of the city. The great body of taxpayers whom this paper serves, personally contribute the major part of the taxes collected. They come directly out of their pockets. Real Estate Owners are the unofficial tax collectors of the city. They underwrite the total tax bill. Consequently the honest, efficient and economical use of the city's revenue directly affects every square foot of realty, and unquestionably some of the perplexities that to-day disturb the real estate situation at large have arisen from what some one has called the "defalcations of maladministration," meaning thereby not outright dishonesty so much as the less criminal but more costly, effects of general inefficiency. Moreover, the conditions of New York city to-day are such that they impose upon the government an extensive and intricate program for betterments of all sorts. Many nations have nothing like the problems that confront New York City. The housing, under sanitary conditions, of our growing population, the providing of adequate transit facilities of all sorts, the regulation of fully a score of administrative functions that must some day be put upon the fundamental basis of equity and efficiency, are matters that must sooner or later be dealt with, and must then be governed by something higher than the principles and methods of impure politics. The permanent and profitable value of real estate depends ultimately upon how wisely these matters are handled. And the first condition to their adequate solution is the impartial honesty of the municipal government itself. After that, or rather, linked with it, is the question of administrative efficiency. So it happens that every thorough student of the real estate situation recognizes how intimately to-day real estate values are involved in the nature of the personality that rules in the City Hall. As Judge Gaynor has pointed out, we are living under a one-man government. We have, wisely or not, centralized our interests within the hands of a single individual. He and he alone is responsible for the tone and character, if not the detail effects, of our government. It is his influence that dominates. It is easy to see, therefore, how deeply the real estate men of this city are concerned in the results of the last election, and why the more they study the situation, the more satisfied they are becoming, to find a man of Judge Gaynor's standard in the seat of power.

THE Record and Guide publishes a carefully prepared account of the meaning, condition and probable scope of the existing movement in Manhattan real estate. There is every reason to believe that the speculative and investment operations that are now being undertaken in the Middle District of Manhattan will prove to be the forerunners of one of the most extraordinary transformations that have ever taken place in the business section of a great city. And a consideration of the reasons for the activity which are fully set forth in the accompanying article should convince even the most skeptical that the movement is justified by the changes that will take place during the next few years in the condition determining the value of this section for legitimate business purposes. But it should be added that there is one serious impediment, from which for some years at least the business development of this district will suffer. The local authorities have as yet done absolutely nothing to aid this development by providing any sufficient means of transit. The existing subway does, of course, run along its eastern boundary, but that subway is too far removed from the centre of the district at Broadway and 34th street to meet its needs for proper means of communicaion with the rest of Manhattan and the Bronx. The other subway, which the Public Service Commission is trying to have built at an early date, viz.: The Broadway-Lexington avenue route will add little or nothing to the transit conveniences of those firms, who are transacting business along the central line of the middle district, because it is designed particularly for the purpose of paralleling the existing subway from 42d to 14th street; but along an avenue which is still further removed from the central line of traffic. It is certainly time that the Public Service Commission and the Board of Estimate should begin to understand how little their plans are assisting the most profound alteration in business conditions, which has ever taken place in Manhattan in so short a time. What the Middle District needs above all is a direct local and express subway connecting it with lower Manhattan and with upper Manhattan and the Bronx, and the only way, in which such a connection can be obtained is by means of the proposed extension of the existing subway south from 42d street and Broadway along Seventh avenue. To delay the construction of such a subway, until arrangements can be made for additional subways in Brooklyn is deliberately and flagrantly to sacrifice the essential interests of Manhattan to the far less immediately important interests of another borough. There is only one consoling aspect to the existing situation. In March the Pennsylvania Terminal will be opened, and the failure of the city to provide for the collection and distribution of the traffic, centering in that neighborhood will raise such a storm of protest that something will have to be done very soon. By that time the Broadway-Lexington avenue line, to which the Commission has sacrificed the normal and wholesome development of the Manhattan transit system will be out of the way; and perhaps then the Commission will feel free to take some active steps to improve the transit service of the rest of the borough.

Some of Judge Gaynor's recent remarks stir us to reprint, elsewhere in this paper, an article that appeared in our columns more than twenty years ago. It deals with problems which have evidently occupied the mind of the Mayor-elect, and is worth reading as a theoretical speculation and practical criticism regarding problems that are just as alive to-day as they were almost a generation back.

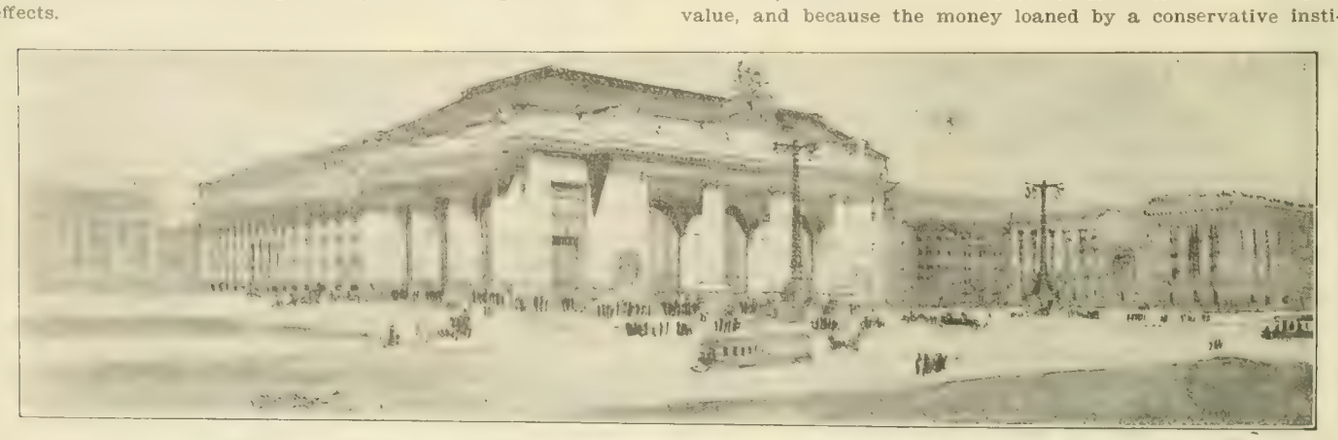
REAL ESTATE AS AN INVESTMENT

Nature of a Real Estate Investment Compared With Other Forms of Investment—Wherein New York Differs From Other American Cities With Respect to Real Estate Conditions—Selections That An Investor Must Make—Expectations He Must Drop



THE desirability of any particular class of income-bearing property as an investment depends partly upon the advantages or disadvantages which it enjoys compared with other classes of income-bearing property under the prevailing general economic condition. There are periods in which real estate is on the whole cheap, as compared with equally desirable forms of property, such as railroad stocks and bonds, or call and time loans; and there are periods when, on the other hand, it is comparatively dear. When it becomes comparatively dear, its dearness under the circumstances does not mean that its price is any higher in proportion to the net income it yields. It only means that the same amount of money invested in some other form of property will yield either a larger income, or else the same income, accompanied by less risk and bother. On the other hand, real estate may become comparatively cheap even though the net rental yielded thereby either has not increased or even has to a certain extent actually diminished. It has become comparatively more desirable because other classes of income-bearing property afford their owners much smaller returns than they did.

The American business world has been recently passing through a period in which real estate was comparatively dear. During the latter part of 1906, and during almost the whole of 1907, general business was extraordinarily active, and made excessive demands upon the fluid capital that was seeking investment. The obvious symptom of this condition was the high rates for money loaned at call; and the longer these high rates continued the more effect they had upon the rates for time money, and for money loaned on mortgage. The first result of this condition on the general investment condition consisted of a general selling of stocks and bonds, because they had become comparatively less valuable than more fluid forms of investment; and this process continued until the price of good securities became very cheap, compared either to the income they yielded or to the income yielded by other forms of property. During this trying period the price of real estate held upon the whole much firmer than the prices of stocks and bonds. There was comparatively little actual liquidation in real estate; but undoubtedly whenever a real estate owner was obliged to sell he had to sell at a sacrifice. The number of owners who were obliged to sell was, however, comparatively small; and their selling at comparatively cheap prices was not sufficient to bring about any general liquidation, or any general demoralization of prices. On the whole, the owners of real property suffered less from the panic of 1907 than the owners of any other kind of property—except insofar as their inability to convert their real estate into cash for the purpose of buying cheap stocks and bonds may be considered a species of loss. They were obliged to put up with a period of two years or more, during which their property was almost unsaleable except at a loss and during which they might have made a good deal of money by purchasing railroad and industrial securities. They suffered tha is negatively rather than positively from the panic and its effects.

LESSENED INCOME FROM RAILROAD AND INDUSTRIAL SECURITIES.

The period, however, during which either loans on collateral or stocks and bonds were more desirable forms of investment than real estate has recently come to an end. Railroad and industrial securities are selling on the average higher than ever before in the history of the country. The prices of gilt-edged bonds have gone back to a four per cent. basis or less. Railroad common stocks are usually selling at figures which yield less than five per cent. Industrial preferred stocks which used to yield from 6½ to 7½ per cent. now bring their owners less than 5½ per cent. The common stocks of many large companies produce an income of less than five per cent., and compensate their owners chiefly by a promise of a further advance in price. The owner of any particular railroad or industrial stock can expect to reach comparatively little advantage from the sale of one issue for the purpose of buying another. Of course by good judgment or because of special information a man may still make money in this way, but the only way in which the average investor can take advantage of the enormous advance in the prices of securities that has taken place in the past eighteen months is to sell out at the prevailing high prices, and to put his money in some form of income bearing property, in which no corresponding increase has taken place. AND THE ONE IMPORTANT CLASS OF INVESTMENT WHICH MEETS HIS NEED IS REAL ESTATE. The increase in the value of real estate resulting from such unusual financial conditions and a new period of general business prosperity has still to come, and its tardy arrival is only natural, because for many reasons real estate is usually the form of property that is last to reap any benefit from expanding business and prosperity.

Hence it is that in the opinion of the Record & Guide the present is an unusually auspicious moment to set forth and to insist upon THE PECULIAR ADVANTAGES OF REAL ESTATE AS AN INVESTMENT. The investor who purchases good New York real estate at the present time and at prevailing prices has an unusually good chance of making money. Of course, the chance is not so good that he can afford to go out upon the street and buy any piece of property that is for sale at any price its holder may choose to demand. The purchase of real estate always demands circumspection and sound knowledge of the special conditions, affecting the value of any particular piece of property. It is none the less true, however, that certain powerful general conditions will be at work during the next couple of years to make for higher real estate values. An investor cannot very well go astray, provided he uses ordinary prudence and good judgment in making his purchases. If he does not delay, he will only be the forerunner of a much larger number of buyers, who will gradually realize that the best way of really benefiting from the rise in the price of securities is to invest their profits in some form of property whose increase in value does not anticipate a period of good times, but rather follows in its wake. The advice, consequently, to buy real estate during the next few months may be given almost without qualification. Buy it soon; and buy as much of it as you can. Operations on a margin in real estate are not attended by the same risks as operations on a margi. in stocks, because urban real estate is much more stable in value, and because the money loaned by a conservative institution always leaves the purchaser with a substantial equity. With $100,000 in capital a man may buy almost $300,000 of real estate without incurring as much risk as if he bought as much stock on a margin. There is no danger that his broker may fail or that the outbreak of war in Europe may knock twenty-five points off the selling value of his holdings in a few days. He can buy real estate on a margin, that is, without ceasing to be an investor. He can reap a considerable advantage from a speculative increase in price without incurring to the same extent as a stock-operator the dangers of speculation.

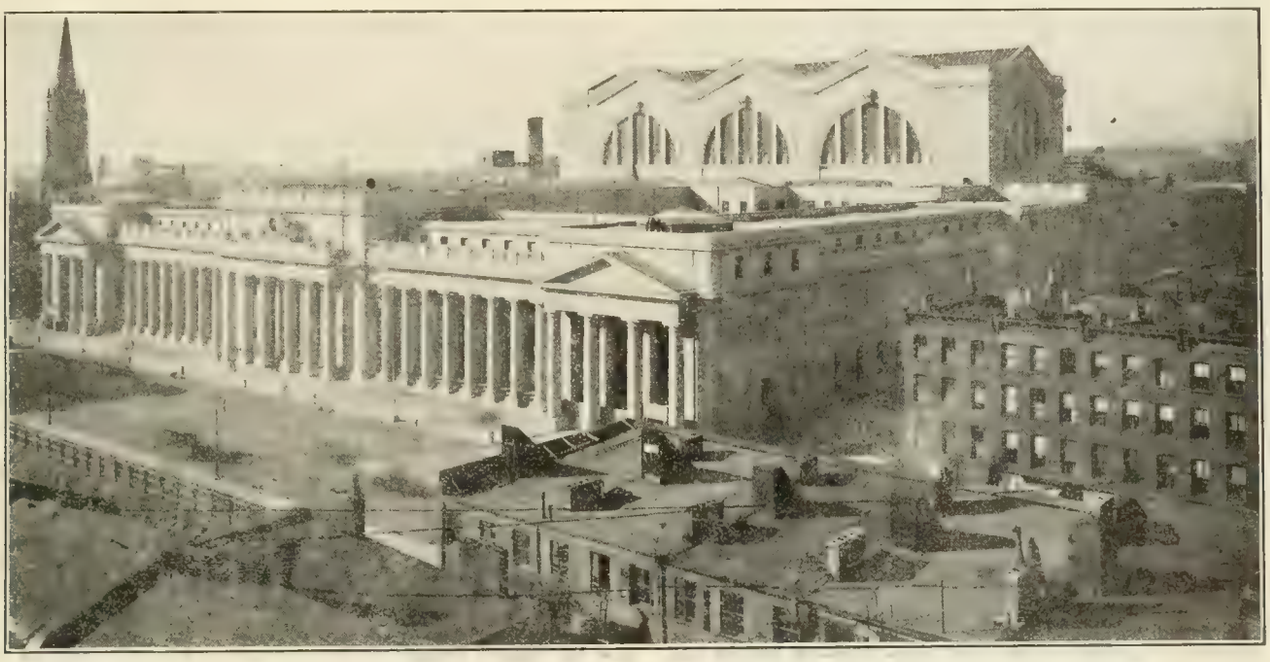
INVESTMENT VS. SPECULATION IN REAL ESTATE.

A man who invests his money in urban real estate should do so with definite and complete information as to advantages and disadvantages of this particular method of using his capital; and unquestionably one of the greatest advantages which the real estate investor enjoys consists in the opportunity he acquires of speculative profit. He is not merely purchasing an income, he is purchasing a class of property that according to all past experience in the movement of real estate prices is more likely than not to increase in value. Of course the investor in a railroad and industrial stock enjoys usually a similar opportunity of speculative profit, but he does not enjoy it to the same extent. With $100,000 he can, let us say, buy 1,000 shares of stock, and in case he uses this $100,000 to buy 4,000 shares of stock (selling at $100 a share) he ceases to be an investor and loses all the security that a man enjoys who owns his property outright. The consequence is that an increase of twenty-five per cent. in the value of $100,000 safely invested in stocks means a profit only of $25,000. On the other hand, a man who invests $100,000 in real estate can buy about $300,000 of property without incurring the risks attending speculative stock operations. He can borrow the other $200,000 upon terms, which involve to be sure certain inconveniences and dangers during a possible period of prolonged financial stringency; but in case his equity is equal to a third or more of the value of the property, he is in no danger of being sold out. If the property he has bought increases twenty-five per cent. in value, he pockets a profit of $75,000 instead of a profit of $25,000 assuming, of course, that his property is capable of meeting its own carrying charges.



SPECULATION IN NEW YORK.

We must pause for a moment over this aspect of real estate investment, because of its foundamental importance—particularly in relation to the real estate conditions now prevailing in New York City. That real estate offers a peculiar opportunity for speculative profit is, of course, a sufficiently widely known truth; and no group of people in the world seem to need less instruction in this truth than well-to-do Americans, and in particular New Yorkers. Americans have always been a nation of real estate speculators, and because of the popularity of real estate speculation and the profits resulting therefrom have been distributed among a large proportion of the population. But of late years, the business of speculating in real estate has become, particularly in New York, an increasingly professional occupation. The number of men who make a living out of the profession is extraordinarily large; but they are coming none the less to constitute a class, and they are tending to monopolize the speculative advantage to be derived from real estate operations. They are tending to turn over to the real estate investor only those pieces of property whose speculative possibilities have been for the time being exhausted, and their influence, consequently, tends to obscure the peculiar advantages resulting from the speculative purchase of New York, and particularly of Manhattan real estate. This fact is of essential importance in any attempt to set forth for the benefit of investors just how far and where speculative profits in New York real estate are still to be expected, and in what way they can in all probability best be obtained.

In times past, and to a certain extent at present, the typical real estate speculator has been the man who bought, or owned, vacant property on the outskirts of a large city, and who reaped a larger or smaller measure of profit from the growth of the city in population and wealth. This variety of real estate speculation lies, of course, beyond the limits of the present discussion, because it does not contain any element of investment. It is much more of A GAMBLING OPERATION than is the purchase of improved urban real estate. The speculator practically makes a bet that the vacant property will increase more in value every year than the sum total of the carrying charges; and bets of this kind, particularly in the case of vacant property, whose price is already considerable, are as frequently lost as won.

IMPROVED REAL ESTATE A DIFFERENT PROPOSITION.

When a purchaser buys improved real estate, on the other hand, he is confronted by a wholly different situation. He has bought a kind property, which is capable of producing an income, and which has attained economically a more fixed condition. It has, so to speak, been consumed, and presumably it will have thereafter a more definite value and a more restricted possibility of future increase.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD STATION.

McKim, Mead & White, Architects.
Geo. A. Fuller Company. Builder.

The continuation of the Pennsylvania Railroad under the Hudson River into New York, with the erection of this terminal in the heart of the city, has been the dominating influence in the midtown building movement.

That the great mass of urban real estate, after it has once been improved, does not for many years increase very much in value is undoubtedly true. Presumably the ground has been sold at a price, which represents its current availability for business or residence, and the building which has been placed upon it is the one best calculated to convert its availability into income. The conditions which determine this economic value are not likely to change for a good many years. In a small city, or in a large city, that is growing slowly the prospect of a change in conditions likely to produce an increase in value is frequently so remote that the speculative value of the property becomes practically negligible, and its price is determined solely by its value for immediate use or as an income producer. Real estate in this condition should yield to its purchaser a larger percentage upon the investment than would the same amount of money invested in stocks and bonds, because of the additional trouble which the care of real estate demands.

NEW YORK IS "DIFFERENT."

But while the foregoing statements are true in respect to the great mass of improved real estate in the majority of large cities, they are not true of New York, and particularly of Manhattan. The fact which distinguishes Manhattan among other large American cities is the rapidity with which reconstruction takes place in almost every part of the Borough, and the consequent continual increase in the price of real estate over large areas. Ordinarily a piece of real estate that has been improved with a substantial building can hardly be expected to change very much in price for a period of fifty years; but the life of the average building in Manhattan has been nearer thirty than fifty years. Sometime within thirty years economic conditions usually change so radically and prices increase so considerably that it pays to tear down the old building and erect a new one. It is this fact which makes the purchase of Manhattan real estate offer such a UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY TO THE CAPITALIST to invest his money therein, while keeping at the same time an excellent chance of speculative profits. He can buy old buildings in or near a rapidly improving district which will afford a sufficient income to yield a certain return on the investment and which in the course of a shorter or longer time can be reasonably expected to increase substantially in value.

Of course, similar opportunities exist to a certain extent in all large and growing cities. The business districts of Chicago and Boston, for instance, are constantly encroaching on former residential sections; and as the former residences or inferior business buildings become available for improvement with modern business structures, they increase in value. But the peculiarity of New York consists in the large area covered by these speculative sections. They include, not indeed the whole of the Borough of Manhattan, but a large part thereof, and a certain part of the Boroughs of Brooklyn and the Bronx. During the past ten years considerable speculative increases in value have taken place, not merely in the financial district, not merely in the new wholesale district north of Fourteenth street, not merely in the new retail district along Fifth avenue, not merely in the new amusement district around Long Acre Square, not merely in the Pennsylvania district near Greeley Square, but also through large tenement districts on the lower East and upper West sides, and in the fashionable residential district to the east of Central Park. In all these sections antiquated business and residential structures have been giving place to modern buildings, and real estate has increased so much in value that the old houses could with profit be thrown into the scrap heap.

Although this process has been carried very far, it is still only in its earlier stages. Notwithstanding the hundreds of modern buildings erected during the past ten years, and notwithstanding the enormous speculative increases in value, it is probable that the next ten years will witness changes still more considerable and still more extended. New York is adding more than 150,000 inhabitants to its population every year. These inhabitants will live in increasingly large percentages in the outlying boroughs, but with the improvements in transit they will more than ever transact their business and spend their money in Manhattan. The central Borough will become to a greater, rather than to a smaller extent, the core and heart of the Metropolis; and its gradual transformation to meet the economic exigencies of the future will mean a constant enlargement of the area of profitable reconstruction and speculation.

The fact to which the Record & Guide wishes to call particular attention is that the largest and MOST INSISTENT DEMANDS WILL BE CONCENTRATED UPON THE MIDDLE DISTRICT OF MANHATTAN—upon the area whose central point is Greeley Square, and which is at present bounded roughly by Fourteenth and Fiftieth streets and Fourth and Seventh avenues. Within a few years this central district will probably extend as far as Fifty-ninth street on the north, Ninth avenue on the west and Third avenue on the east; but however the district may be defined, the important point is that it is here the greatest pressure will be exerted. By this we do not mean that the area of the financial district down town will not expand, and that excellent opportunites for mixed investment and speculation will not exist on the margin of that district. But greater changes will take place north of Fourteenth street, because of the variety, the intensity and the comparative novelty of the forces making for the improvement of that particular locality.

A NEW TENDENCY.

Hitherto only one general tendency has existed in respect to the local expansion of New York business. It has steadily pushed northward. A century ago, all kinds of business—financial, wholesale, retail and theatrical—was concentrated in the vicinity of the City Hall. As population moved up town, certain kinds of business crept with it up Broadway. The financial district stayed where it was; and immediately on the margin of the financial district were always the offices of the lawyers, the important merchants and the commission houses. The march northwards was always led by the retail shops, the theatres, the restaurants and the hotels. A generation ago that part of Broadway between Fourteenth and Forty-second streets was already occupied in part by retail stores, theatres and the like, and the presumption was that as the West Side, Harlem, Washington Heights, and the southern part of the Bronx, became well inhabited, the theatres, shops, hotels and restaurants would push still farther north, until Columbus Circle became the centre of this kind of activity. Such has not been the case. It is true that many theatres and restaurants have been grouped around Columbus Circle, but the centre of the theatrical and amusement district has remained nearly a mile farther south. And there it is likely to remain for an indefinite period. Indeed there is even a chance that it may show a tendency to shift farther south rather than farther north; and admitting such to be the case, an interesting question remains as to the meaning and the probable consequences of this novel fact.

THE FUTURE OF THE MIDDLE DISTRICT

THE fundamental reason for this checking of the exclusively northward expansion of the New York business district has undoubtedly been the increasingly large mass of population which had slowly been accumulating to the east and west of the Borough of Manhattan. In any event, the northward march of business would probably have been checked by the intervention of Central Park, which would have made business locations to the west of its bulk comparatively inconvenient for many inhabitants of the East Side. But the process was checked before Central Park had a chance to have any effect, and it was checked by the obvious condition that the march of population was no longer chiefly to the north. Brooklyn and Queens on the East, and Essex and Hudson counties in New Jersey on the West, were gradually filling up. Of course this process had begun early and had taken place continuously, but its effect upon the business development of Manhattan was slow, because the inhabitants of Manhattan were both more numerous than the inhabitants of the rest of the Metropolitan district, and more closely connected with the business and amusement sections of the Borough. At the present time, however, out of a total population of over 5,500,000 in the Metropolitan district (including Hudson and Essex counties), only about 2,600,000 live in Manhattan and the Bronx. The limit of any substantial increase in Manhattan will be reached in a few years. The Bronx can accommodate several millions of people; and it will gradually get them; but in the mean time, a still larger proportion of the inhabitants of the Metropolitan district will be living to the east, west and south of the central borough. In 1920, out of a probable population of 7,250,000 or more, only a little over 3,000,000 will be living in the old city of New York, and thereafter the proposition will continue to become smaller and smaller.

Of equal, if not of the greater, importance than this shifting in the center of gravity of population, will be the closer ties which will unite the lateral boroughs to the central borough. Until recently they have had fairly convenient connections with the financial district, where many of their inhabitants obtained employment, but the journey to the middle district of Manhattan, where the shops, theatres and restaurants were situated, was very much more difficult. All this, however, is now by way of being changed. One rapid transit subway has already been built into Brooklyn, which enables many of its inhabitants to reach upper as well as lower Manhattan more conveniently than ever before. Three new bridges have, also, been completed; and while they are not being used as effectively as they should, they will become veritable highways of interborough transit within the next five years. Anybody living in Brooklyn or Queens who can take conveniently a Long Island railroad train can be landed in the heart of upper Manhattan in a comparatively short time. A new subway to South Brooklyn has just been authorized in connection with a new Manhattan subway, which will tie the most rapidly growing part of Brooklyn to the central borough. To the westward a similar process of concentration is under full headway. New Jersey passengers are already being landed at Cortlandt street and at Twenty-third street and Sixth avenue in Manhattan at a saving of many minutes over any former means of transit. Within a few years any resident on any of the Jersey suburban lines (the Central excepted) will be able to reach any point in the middle district of Manhattan as far north as Forty-second street with the utmost celerity. Newark will have a tunnel of its own connecting with the Manhattan tunnels, which will enormously increase the traffic between that growing city and central borough. And finally the residents of the district in New Jersey served by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will have special accommodations for reaching the vicinity of Greeley Square.

ESTIMATES OF THE PRESSURE.

The bearing of these new conditions upon the real estate situation in Manhattan has been in some measure appreciated ever since the Pennsylvania improvement was announced, but we doubt whether even the shrewdest and most far-sighted real estate operators correctly estimate as yet the full force of the pressure, which will be exerted upon the middle district of Manhattan. That pressure cannot be measured by any similar pressure hitherto exercised upon any single part of the Borough. There has been an enormous concentration of demand, making for high real estate values, upon the financial district, but the area covered by that demand is comparatively small, and the demand itself is merely a demand for offices, which, assuming no change in the building laws, will be satisfied by the erection of a comparatively few very tall buildings.

(Send your home address to Office of Publication.)

BUSINESS DEMANDS REGULATE PRICES.

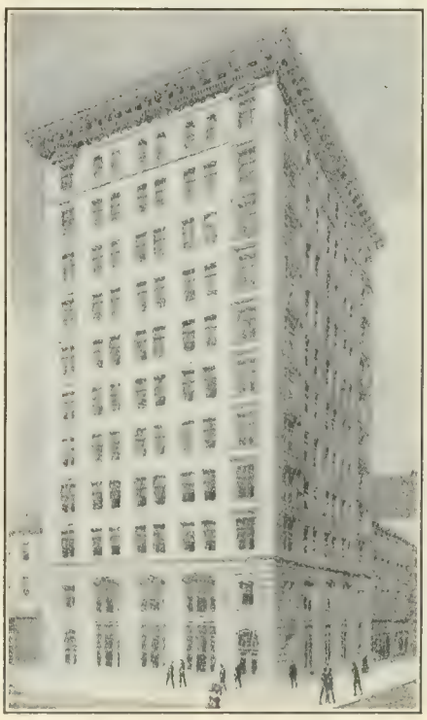
The economic pressure, which will be exerted upon the middle district will be derived from a much larger number of sources. It will necessarily extend over a larger area, and it will become in the course of time increasingly intense. Only that fraction of the population, which is economically dependent upon business directly or indirectly connected with finance, contribute to the aggregate real estate value of the financial district, but all the inhabitants of the whole metropolitan district, just in so far as they have any money to spend upon shops and amusements, will contribute to the aggregate real estate value of the middle district. They will get more and more the habit of coming to Manhattan, and in proportion as the effect of this habit is felt, the shopkeepers, and the purveyors of amusement in Manhattan will further augment it by the offer of additional temptations. The increase in the demand will not be limited by the increase in population, or even by the increase in wealth, but it will grow, as the traffic of a big city always grows, at a ratio, which requires a doubling the effective facilities every ten or fifteen years.

In the future, then, the effect of certain aspects of the business expansion of the metropolitan district, will be centralized as they have never been centralized before in the history of the city. The northward march of business up to 1900 meant of course, that the few blocks to the north of the existing center of up-town business was almost as available for certain business purposes as was the centre itself; and as long as this condition endured, real etate values were bound to remain comparatively low. But as soon as this northward expansion was checked, and a centre of attraction and pressure substituted for the former line of advance, certain particular areas of land soon became much more available for business purposes than others, and began to increase enormously in value. From these particularly central points, the increasing economic pressure, and the growth in real estate values have gradually been radiating, and they will continue to radiate, east and west as well as north and south, until the whole middle district of Manhattan has been transformed in appearance and in economic standing for the purpose of performing its more important services in the business life and growth of New York City.

EXISTING CONDITIONS IN THE MIDDLE DISTRICT.

A READER may, perhaps, criticize the foregoing statement of the general real estate situation of Manhattan on the ground that much of it is irrelevant from the specific point of view of the real estate investor. Such, however, is not the case. In so far as an investor can expect to reap speculative profits, he must clearly understand the tendencies which are contributing at any one time to speculative increases in value; and these tendencies can frequently be stated only in somewhat vague and general terms. The skilful speculative investor is precisely the man, who estimates with some accuracy the force of these general tendencies in the distribution of business and population, and who is able to deduce therefrom specific consequences upon the value of particular pieces of property. But, of course, the ability to estimate the effect of the general tendencies upon particular pieces or classes of property is the quality of peculiar value, and no account of the existing real estate situation in Manhattan from the point of view of the investor can be considered even approximately complete until the general conditions described above are given a more specific application. Every man who wants to invest in real estate is confronted by the question whether or not he should buy a particular piece of property at a particular price. No general article can, of course, answer questions as definite as that, but it can trace somewhat in detail the probable effect of the general conditions upon certain definite localities. For the present we shall confine our attention to the different parts of the middle dstrict, because in that region the best opportunities exist for speculative investments.

The reader will already have remarked the EXTRAORDINARY VARIETY of the business interests, which are being concentrated in the central region of Manhattan. Within the area bounded by Fourteenth and Fifty-ninth streets, Fourth and Seventh avenues, are gathered practically all the first class hotels, restaurants and theatres, all the leading department stores, all the fashionable shops devoted to specific lines of trade, and a very large number of office buildings, in which general business is transacted. Nor is this all. Of late years a strong and growing tendency has existed for certain classes of the wholesale trade to seek accommodations in the new loft buildings, which are now being erected in such large numbers in different parts of the district. The probable local effects of all these varieties of business activity require special consideration, because each of them exercises a somewhat different influence upon the future of the selected neighborhood, and upon the course and the level of real estate values, and we shall beg in with the wholesale trade, because the demand for new loft buildings actually swallows up more property than does the demand provoked by any other class of business.



THE WHOLESALE TRADE AND THE MIDDLE DISTRICT.

The effect of the wholesale trade upon real estate is different from the effect of the retail trade because a wholesale merchant does not have the same need of a peculiarly favorable and central location as does a retail merchant, and he usually has no corresponding interest in paying a very high price for such a location. The value of property devoted to loft buildings usually cannot be expected to rise above a certain level,—a level considerably lower than the value of property devoted to important shops. It is of the utmost importance, consequently, that when a speculative investor purchases unimproved property in a rapidly changing section, he should be able to tell whether the plot, offered to him for purchase is more likely to be used for wholesale than for retail purposes.

What the wholesale merchant usually needs is a large amount of well-lighted space, in a modern fireproof building, all of which is contained, if possible, on a single floor. The best situation for this space would be one convenient for his employees and somewhere in the neighborhood of the most important stores and hotels. In so far as the wholesale merchant sells from samples in his offices, the demand usually comes from retail stores in New York or from buyers, sojourning at the hotels. Of course, in so far as his product is sold by travelling salesmen, the location of his show-rooms makes little difference.

WHERE BUSINESS WAS DONE TWENTY YEARS AGO.

Fifteen or twenty years ago, when the most important retail stores and hotels were all situated south of Thirty-fourth street the wholesale trade had not moved north of Fourteenth street.

DODD, MEAD & CO. BUILDING.

About 1895 it began to occupy the territory between Fourteenth and Twenty-third streets, Broadway and Sixth avenues, and in this region it has been tending to drive out the retail trade, because wholesale business with its trucks littering the streets and its boxes blocking the sidewalks interferes with the free movement of traffic necessary to retail business. The occupation of these few blocks consumed the ten years between 1895 and 1905, because the amount of the demand for new space was measured merely by the expansion of wholesale business. Since 1905, however, the wholesale trade has been pushing rapidly into the region north of Twenty-third street, a region which in 1901 and 1902 had been considered a better location for apartment hotels; and in this region it has occupied a much larger amount of territory in a much shorter time. The side streets from Twenty-third to Twenty-eighth between Broadway and Seventh avenue, are already by way of being occupied by new fireproof buildings; and what is still more remarkable is the enormous number of new loft buildings, which during the past year, have been situated on Fourth avenue. Plans have already been filed this year for about fourteen buildings, from twelve to eighteen stories in height, and all of them occupying at least half the block frontage. So far as we know, the planning of so many huge buildings within a half mile stretch on one avenue in one year is unprecedented in the history of New York., and the business of providing new accommodations for the wholesale trade has swollen so enormously in so short a time that it cannot be explained merely by the expansion of that branch of trade. It can be explained only by the migration of wholesale merchants now situated south of Fourteenth street into the new region, because this new region has certain peculiar advantages for their purposes.

What are those advantages? Well! One advantage is undoubtedly the fact that the wholesale merchant is enabled thereby to keep more closely in touch with the local retail trade and with the hotels, for the centre both of the retail and the hotel trade has been shifting to the north of Thirty-fourth street. But of still greater importance is the character of the edifices, which are now being built for the accommodation of wholesale merchants. The latter are being tempted to move by the offer of better accommodations than they can obtain elsewhere. Many of the older buildings south of Fourteenth street are situated on narrow streets, are inconvenient in their arrangements, not entirely fireproof in their construction, and limited in their area. The new buildings erected north of Twenty-third street are all of them located on streets at least sixty feet wide; and the great popularity of Fourth avenue is due in part to its unsual width and the unusual chance thereby afforded for admirably lighted warerooms,—even though both sides of the avenue should be lined with eighteen-story structures. These buildings are all of very large dimensions. As a rule, they occupy a space of 10,000 square feet; but in many instances even larger areas have been secured. Such spacious well-lighted warerooms are peculiarly tempting to the wholesale merchant, because the situation of all his samples on one or two floors is a great advantage to him in the economical conduct of his business. Finally these buildings are planned with particular reference to the needs of certain specific trades. Their interior arrangement has been reduced to a science, and the conditions to be met are so well known in advance that the buildings are usually to a large extent rented from the plans.

A CONSIDERATION OF VALUES.

The consequence is that space in these new buildings north of Twenty-third street commands higher rentals than space in the older buildings farther south, and real estate adapted to improvement only with loft bulidings has become more valuable in the new than it ever was in the old wholesale district. The general range of values throughout the whole of this section has reached a level which forbids the erection of the old six-story semi-fireproof business building. Nothing is now being run up but buildings twelve stories high or more. As a rule fireproof edifices as high as that are not erected except on property that costs $2,000 a front foot, and lots available for improvement on the margin of the district are selling at about this figure. At present the margin of the district is the line of Seventh avenue on the west and Lexington avenue on the east.

Lots between Sixth and Seventh avenues and between Fourth and Lexington in the twenties, which, a year or two ago could be bought for $35,000, are now held at about $50,000. On certain streets the price tends to be a little higher, and on other streets, a little lower; but $2,000 a front foot constitutes a fair level for the cheaper grade of lots available for this class of improvement. Between Sixth avenue and Broadway, on the other hand, north of Twenty-third street lots are bringing from $3,500 to $4,000 a front foot, and this price represents about the highest level as yet obtained for lots in the side streets, which are used for the wholesale trade. Indeed, inside lots on Fourth avenue in the twenties have not as yet sold any higher or as high as this. During the past fall as much as $100,000 has been refused for single inside lots on Fourth avenue; but the sales made last spring were consummated on a somewhat lower level. .

Corners about 100x100, brought in the beginning of the movement anywhere from $400,000 to $450,000, whereas now $600,000 and more is being asked for similarly advantageous properties. After the buildings now in the course of construction are finished and successfully rented, the other unimproved properties on this part of Fourth avenue will undoubtedly sell for somewhere near $50 a square foot for inside lots, which would be equivalent to $80 a foot and over for corners. At present the foregoing figures represent the outside figures for this class of property, and it s mprobable that they will be much exceeded in the future. The ordinary wholesale business can not afford to pay rentals which justify a higher level of values.

THE WHOLESALE DISTRICT.

The precise definition of the area, which will during the next fifteen years be occupied by the wholesale trade is a matter of much importance to the real estate investor in this neighborhood. In considering the probable future value of unimproved property, offered to him for sale in that neighborhood he can be sure of certain facts. Fourth avenue as far north as Thirty-second street will eventually be as much devoted to the wholesale trade as is Broadway near Bleecker street. All the side streets between Twenty-third and Thirtieth streets and Lexington and Seventh avenues, are destined to perform a similar service. Twenty-eight and Twenty-ninth streets are less available than the others, because the horse car lines are an inconvenience to truckmen; but this inconvenience will not be sufficient to prevent their eventual improvement. In all probability Lexington avenue, also, as far north as Thirty-fourth street, will be improved with loft buildings, but the comparative narrowness of this avenue will prevent lots thereon from becoming as valuable as they are likely to become on Fourth avenue.

So much is certain. As to the rest one can only make a more or less successful guess. In reference to Madison avenue for instance as far north as Thirty-fourth street, the Record & Guide has until recently expected that it would accommodate the over-flow from the retail trade of Fifth avenue; but during the past year there have been reasons to modify this anticipation. Fifth avenue between Twenty-sixth and Thirty-second streets has been losing ground as a site for fashionable retail shops.

While prices on this part of the avenue, amounting as they do to about $275,000 for a full inside lot, are far too high for an exclusively wholesale service, they are lower than the prices which obtain north of Thirty-fourth street, and during the past couple of years, the big retail houses, which have moved have sought locations in the upper thirties or forties. It looks, consequently, as if this part of Fifth avenue would gradually drift towards the wholesale trade, but that the stores in these loft buildings would continue to command high prices for retail purposes. And in this case Madison avenue is certain, also, to be improved with loft buildings. As a matter of fact the new projects, recently announced look for the most part in this direction. Some few houses have been altered with a view to the accommodation of the retail trade, and Madison avenue will doubtless have more value for retail purposes than Fourth avenue, but it is not likely to become an important retail thoroughfare.

THE FUTURE OF BROADWAY.

With the part of Fifth avenue south of Thirty-fourth street we have dealt in connection with Madison avenue; and there remain to be considered only Broadway, Sixth and Seventh avenues. Broadway will continue to preserve as far north as Thirty-fourth street its present mixed character. It will not be given over to any one trade but will be lined with hotels, office buildings, theatres, restaurants and shops; but in so far as new twelve or more storied structures are erected, they will be office buildings rather than lofts. The narrowness of Sixth avenue and the elevated road, makes it improbable that wholesalers will ever care to occupy the avenue, and the fact that there are so many department stores on Sixth avenue south of Twenty-third street and north of Thirty-first street makes it probable that the intervening streets will also be occupied by big retail shops, in which case values on Sixth avenue would become enormously high—even higher than they are at present.

But this result has been constantly predicted during the past five years, and has not yet come to pass. It is possible that the increasing availability of neighboring property for similar purposes may in some measure disappoint these expectations. Of course Sixth avenue, north of Twenty-third street, is bound to be very useful for certain kinds of retail trade; but whether or not it will be devoted to the better class of retail business remains an open question. A certain doubt also attaches to the future development of this part of Seventh avenue. The probability is that it will be improved with loft buildings, because its width gives it the same availability for this class of improvement as Fourth avenue, and at the same time diminishes its desirability for retail trade. But a possibility remains that it may be given over partly to certain classes of retail business. A good deal depends upon what happens to the blocks in the immediate vicinity of the Pennsylvania station. If hotels, restaurants and theatres start up on Seventh avenue near the station, a certain amount of the same sort of thing may spread farther south. At the present time the most prosperous business establishments on Seventh avenue are apparently restaurants. If it goes into the wholesale trade, values on this part of Seventh avenue should eventually approximate to those now prevailing on Fourth avenue. If the retail trade predominates, they may go even higher.

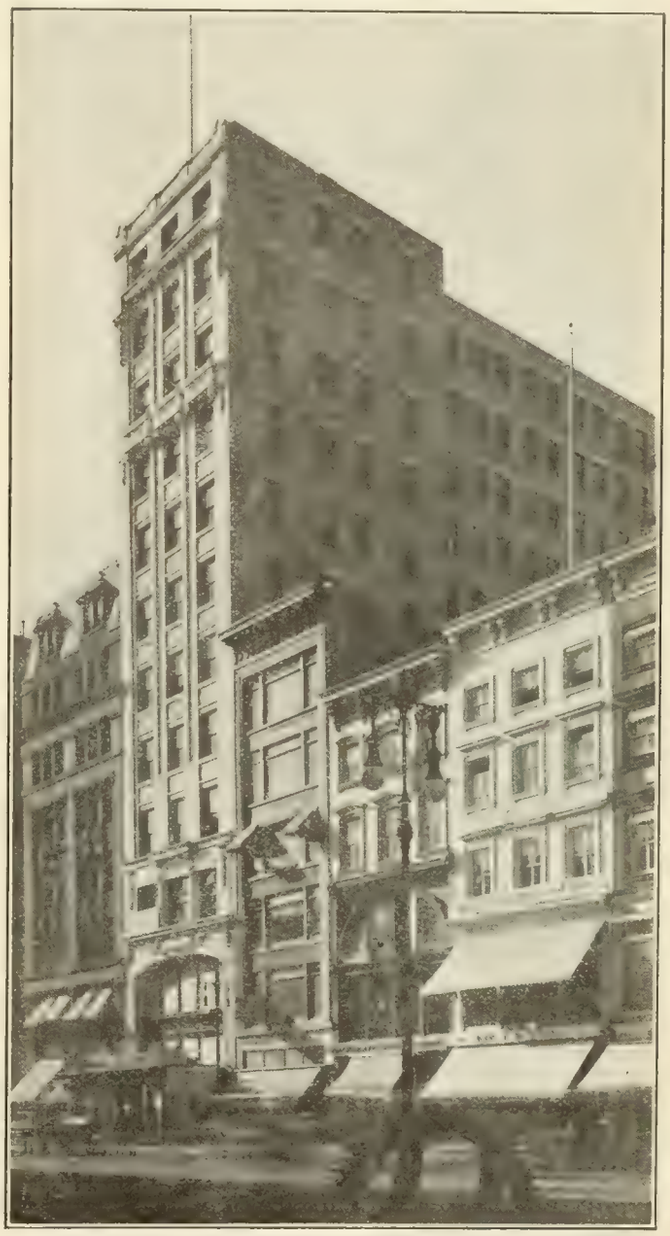
BETWEEN TWENTY-THIRD AND THIRTIETH STS.

The section which we are now discussing—that is the streets between Twenty-third and Thirtieth streets, Lexington and Seventh avenues, will, of course, become in large measure a wholesale district, and its appropriation for this purpose will not at the present rate of progress occupy much more than five years. A question as to the future expansion of the wholesale trade remains to be considered. Is it or is it not likely to travel further north?

As this is a most important question, involving the future value of a great deal of Manhattan real estate, it deserves to be considered with some care—particularly from the point of view of an investor, who is looking for a speculative profit on his investment. The answer which we shall give to this question may be stated at once. It is wholly improbable that the wholesale district will for the present expand north of Thirty-fourth street. Its direction of expansion, after it has occupied the territory already considered, will probably be to the west.



The reasons for this conclusion are not very far to seek. There is no room for expansion to the north, except west of Seventh avenue and Broadway, and it is not likely to occupy territory west of Seventh and north of Thirty-fourth street until it has taken possession of the territory west of Seventh avenue and south of Thirty-fourth street. Its advance along any of the central avenues is absolutely blocked by the appropriation of the property for other purposes. It cannot extend up Fourth avenue north of Thirty-fourth street, because property on that part of Park avenue is now more valuable for residence purposes than it is or can be for the wholesale trade. The same statement is true of Madison avenue south of Forty-first street. Fifth avenue, of course, from Thirty-fourth street north is beyond the reach of the ordinary wholesale merchant. A few of them may locate in the side streets off Fifth avenue, but the existing development of these side streets looks exclusively in the direction of the retail trade. They are becoming the location of shops, which need to be in the neighborhood of Fifth avenue, but cannot afford avenue prices. Sixth avenue and Broadway are excluded, for reasons already given; and Seventh avenue between Thirty-fourth street and Forty-second street is bound to be devoted chiefly to purposes of amusement. These tendencies will be re-enforced by the effect of the Pennsylvania station. The value of all the avenues and the side streets leading to the Terminal or near it will become more valuable for shops, restaurants and the like than they are at present.

LIMIT OF THE WHOLESALE DISTRICT ON THE NORTH.

Thus, the "retail trade"—using that term as a comprehensive description for shops, restaurants, theatres, hotels and office buildings and all those uses for real estate which tend to give it its highest values—will north of Thirty-fourth street erect a barrier against the further northward march of the wholesale trade; and that class of business will be forced to expand either to the east or to the west. Of these two alternatives it will probably turn to the west, because of the development of the West Side water front, which will be taking place at the same time. It is not too much to expect that the whole district between Seventh avenue and the Hudson River, Fourteenth and Forty-second street will eventually become a wholesale and warehouse district. Already a tendency exists south of Twenty-third street to improve property west of Seventh avenue with loft buildings, and there can be no doubt that this tendency will within the next ten years become very active.

It looks consequently, as if a good chance for speculative investment existed in this whole neighborhood. Property thereabouts is still cheap and can be purchased at prices which will enable the buyer to carry it without loss. Eventually lots between Seventh and Eighth avenues should become as valuable as lots between Sixth and Seventh now are; and lots between Eighth and Ninth avenues, while their future increase is more remote also have a good chance of an eventual increase. An investment in this region may not be rewarded with a profit for a good many years, but the ultimate increase is as certain as anything of the kind can be, and it is the man who buys early in a movement of this kind, who reaps the largest reward.

In making any speculative investment in a wholesale district, however, the purchaser should, if possible, ACCUMULATE SEVERAL ADJOINING LOTS. In a retail district a single lot, measuring 25x100 or even less, is a perfectly practicable piece of property, because it can be altered and rented for business purposes to the utmost advantage. But in a wholesale district a single lot, or even two lots, not including a corner are useless for improvement. The really desirable parcel should include at least four full lots and in the course of time the tendency will be to increase rather than diminish the size of the most desirable parcels. An investor should consequently piece out as large a parcel as possible, while property is still cheap, and he may be assured that in the end he will be abundantly rewarded for his additional trouble.

Of course, in all changing districts, he must expect to lose money through vacancies and untrustworthy tenants, but such losses should not prevent him from paying all carrying charges and from obtaining a certain interest, usually low, upon his investment. But his real reward will consist in the doubling in the value of his property at the end, say, of ten years; and the doubling of the value of his property might well mean the trebling or the quadrupling of his cash investment.

INVESTIGATE THE STATE OF THE BUILDING.

Investors who buy property in this district which has already been improved with modern loft buildings, are, of course, confronted by a wholly different situation. In that case the chance of eventual speculative profit is sacrificed for the comparative certainty of a larger immediate return on the investment. Modern loft buildings are supposed to yield almost, if not quite five per cent. on the investment; and at this rate of return they constitute a desirable form of investment, because they are not very much trouble to manage and because rentals are as a rule easily and regularly collected.

But an investor should ascertain that the building is well-constructed, well-arranged for its purpose and well-tenanted with trustworthy firms. Assuming these conditions to be fulfilled, he can purchase such a building with the assurance that the district will not change its character for a generation or more and that the type of business structure purchased will not be superseded for an indefinite period. On the other hand, he does not necessarily surrender all chances of an eventual speculative profit. When the neighborhood is completely improved, space which now rents for 50 or 60 cents a square foot may become worth 70 cents or more, and the income may be proportionately increased. It is probable for instance, that if lots between Seventh and Eighth avenues eventually sell at $2,000 a front foot, the value of lots between Sixth and Seventh avenues would increase to $2,500 or over a front foot, and at the expiration of leases rentals could be slightly raised. A man who invests early in a district of this kind takes, of course, certain chances; but he has not abandoned all legitimate expectation of an increase in value, whenever the surrounding real estate conditions become thoroughly settled.

THE RETAIL TRADE AND THE POSSIBILITIES OF REAL ESTATE IN THE MIDDLE DISTRICT.

ALMOST all that part of the district under consideration, not devoted to the wholesale trade, will gradually be devoted to retail and amusement purposes. The necessary qualifications to this statement are obvious, but they do not affect a very large proportion of the neighborhood under consideration. There are certain avenues and streets east of Madison avenue and north of Thirty-fourth which are and will remain for a long time a good location for expensive private residences and apartment houses. How long this condition will persist no confident prediction can be made, but an essental change need not be apprehended within the next ten years.

4TH AVENUE, LOOKING NORTH FROM 16TH STREET, WHERE THE REBUILDING OF THIS THOROUGHFARE STARTED.

All that can be said is that it will not persist indefinitely and that in the meantime a very slow but steady encroachment will take place by various forms of retail business upon property, which is now wholly residential in its use. There can be no doubt that the whole middle district is destined eventually to be commercialized. The tide will spread over existing residential blocks just as soon as the demand for additional business property in this neighborhood makes it more valuable for such purposes.

The salient fact about the development of the middle district as a centre of retail trade is the enormous increases in value, which have resulted therefrom. The prices, now being paid for the most desirable lots on Fifth avenue, on Thirty-fourth street and on Greeley and Long Acre Squares are unprecedented in the history of New York or any other American city outside of the financial district. Real estate, not in demand for financial purposes, has never before become so valuable; and the prices that are now being paid can be explained only on one supposition. Business men who need real estate for these purposes have reached the conclusion, already stated in this article, that the distribution of business in this part of Manhattan has now assumed a comparatively permanent conditon. It will not shift further and further north in the future as it has done in the past. The area of business occupation will be enlarged, but its centre will remain anchored in the eighborhood of Thirty-fourth street and Broadway. And just because an up town centre of business has become fixed, it is becoming necessary for retailers and others, who need for their businesses certain peculiarly central locations permanently to appropriate such sites, no matter what they cost. During the last five years a gradual appropriation of this kind has been going on, and property has been bid up for the purpose to the unprecedented level we have mentioned. Neither has any limit as yet been affixed to the process. It has been underway only a few years. Its full importance appreciated by only a few people, and when business men who have failed to understand its importance wake up to the fact that they are in danger of being permanently left out, there is no telling how far this bidding up of desirable sites may go.

We have already stated that the highest prices paid for property, used for the wholesale trade varies from $50 to $80 a square foot, according to the location of the lot in the block. On the other hand, the highest prices paid for property adapted to the best retail business is approximating about $200 a square foot. Of course, even higher prices than this have been paid for peculiarly desirable plots, such as the triangle on Greeley Square, formerly owned by the Union Dime Savings Bank, but we need not consider for the moment such very exceptional parcels. Corner lots on Fifth avenue between Thirty-fourth and Forty-eighth streets are worth at least $200 a square foot, and inside lots about $150 a square foot, and the peculiar fact about this level of values is that it extends for the space almost of a mile. Nothing precisely corresponding to this can be discovered even on lower Broadway. In the same way desirable sites on Greeley and Long Acre Squares are becoming equally if not more valuable. On the side streets off Fifth avenue in the best retail district—that is between Thirty-second and Forty-eighth streets, values range from $100,000 to $125,000. A lot, and conditions are at the present moment somewhat unsettled.

LEASEHOLDS.

The ground value of property in this district is, however, very much complicated by the fact that many of the most desirable parcels are being converted into leaseholds; and the increasing popularity of leaseholds is one of the most interesting aspects of the whole movement. Both business men and speculators are finding it to their advantage to appropriate peculiarly desirable sites by leasing them for long terms of years; and this method of mobilizing the value of such parcels seems to appeal also to their fortunate owners. Many people, who need such property cannot afford to tie up the capital needed for its purchase, but they can afford to pay a rental adjusted to its full current value. On the other hand, many owners understand the benefit of leasing their property at a high valuation,—thus securing a considerable income, guaranteed by abundant security. This practice is CERTAIN TO INCREASE in the future, particularly in those localities, where the highest prices prevail, because it unquestionably facilitates the development of certain properties, which otherwise might be much more slowly improved.

The salient fact, then, about that part of the middle district north of Thirty-fourth street, is its permanent appropriation. A loft building is sometimes owned by a big wholesale house, which is its chief tenant, but usually loft buildings pass into the hands of investors and remain for sale at a price. But this retail property is being appropriated in one way or another and is taken more or less out OF THE MARKET. As time goes on it will become still more scarce, and in all probability values will further increase. But the permanent appropriation of the better sites, and the high level of values thereby created will tend to spread retail business into every street and avenue in the district, which can possibly be occupied for the purpose; and the greatest opportunities for speculative investment in the district are to be found in properties, which may hereafter become more and more desirable for retail purposes. Nothing is more certain than that the available retail district must increase in size both by the moving northward of firms which still remain south of Twenty-third street, and by the growth in the actual volume of retail business transacted.

FUTURE RETAIL VALUES.

The properties still to be benefitted by this process are, of course, difficult to locate, but it looks as if the best immediate opportunities still existed in the streets and avenues leading away from and towards the Pennsylvania Terminal. Almost all of this property has, of course, passed into the hands of speculators, who are holding it at prices, which seem high, considering its value only a few years ago. But these speculative values are not high considering the price, which real estate, no more desirable for retail purposes, fetches in other localities.

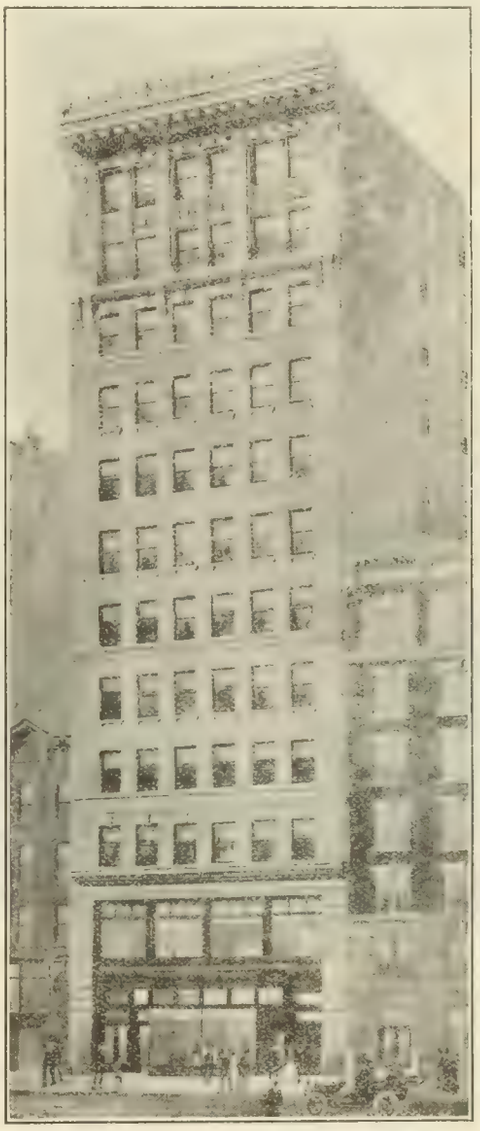
You have ALL the records in the Record and Guide.

A few years from now good sites within a few blocks of the station should be in as much demand by retailers as are certain similar sites at the present time on Broadway and Sixth avenue. One big drug firm has already had the good sense to appropriate such a site; and a year or two from now scores of similarly situated business men will be following this example. In spite, consequently, of the fact that such lots, now command prices out of all proportion to their immediate producing power, and must, consequently, be carried at a loss, they STILL DESERVE TO BE CLASSED AMONG THE BEST SPECULATIVE OPPORTUNITIES, REMAINING IN MANHATTAN. If any investor seems inclined to doubt this statement, let him take the map of the middle district, and consider carefully in what direction retail business (using that word in its broadest meaning as every kind of business which makes ground floors valuable) can possibly expand from its existing centres.

The result of such an examination will be illuminating. Retail business will push up Fifth avenue to the Plaza; but its progress in this locality will be slow. It will push up Madison avenue from Forty-second street but at an equally slow rate. It will push up Broadway and Seventh avenue from Forty-eighth street north, but it is apparently most certain of all to push down Seventh avenue from Forty-second street to the Pennsylvania station. There it will be reinforced by cross currents of pressure, which will fill up the streets to the west of Greeley Square, and it s possible that it may also extend some blocks on Seventh avenue, south of Thirtieth street. But the fate of this part of Seventh avenue is, as already stated, doubtful and depends partly on what happens to Twenty-third street between Sixth and Eighth avenues. But it must constantly be kept in mind that the pressure will radiate from a centre, and that centre will be situated at the intersection of Broadway, Sixth avenue and Thirty-fourth street. The Pennsylvania station will assuredly have the effect of keeping many shops, restaurants and hotels, which otherwise would have been situated further north in the southern part of the district, because the southern part of the district will remain in closer touch with the millions of prosperous New Yorkers, who will live on Long Island and in New Jersey, and this tendency will be reinforced as soon as a lower West Side subway is assured. The fact that the existing subway turns east at Long Acre Square has had a good deal to do with the peculiarly rapid growth for certain business purposes of Long Acre Square.

A MAP OF THE RETAIL DISTRICT.

An investor, who wishes to make a profitable speculative investment in the parts of the whole district devoted to retail and amusement purposes must, consequently, keep in mind the following real estate map of the district. The two most important avenues devoted chiefly to retail purposes will be Fifth and Sixth avenues. The part of Fifth avenue south of Thirty-second street is and will continue to be less desirable for retail business than the part north thereof, but the ground floors will continue to bring such high rents that the property will be much more valuable than property usually occupied by the wholesale trade, and this statement will remain true even if the upper stories of the buildings erected on Fifth avenue south of Thirty-fourth street, are given over chiefly to wholesale business.



But the retail streets, PAR EXCELLENCE, will be found along that part of Fifth avenue north of Thirty-fourth street, and the same kind of business will very slowly spread along the same avenue as far north as Fifty-ninth street. Retail trade will also gradually appropriate the side streets leading away from Fifth avenue and that part of Madison avenue north of Forty-second street. Some few wholesalers may rent space in the upper parts of buildings erected on the side streets, but they will not be numerous enough to give their own character to the neighborhood. The same statements apply in general to Sixth avenue—except that property on Sixth avenue, barring the immediate vicinity of Greeley Square will not attain the highest level of retail values. On the other hand, there is probably money to be made in the purchase of Sixth avenue property between Thirty-sixth and Fifty-ninth streets—particularly in view of the fact that a good income can now be obtained from it, and that it can consequently be cheaply carried. With the possible future value for retail purposes of Seventh avenue and the side streets near the Pennsylvania station, we have already dealt.

Property on Broadway from Twenty-sixth street north will also have a high retail value, because ground floors will bring large rents for shops and restaurants. But little by little this part of Broadway will become lined with office buildings. Already there are many such buildings from Madison Square north, and little by little they will give their character to these blocks. A certain number of hotels, restaurants and theatres will be scattered in between, but they will not increase much in number (that is on Broadway), while the office buildings will be a constantly increasing quantity. In the long run there can be no doubt that any business transacted in offices, which can be detached from the financial district and moved up town, will adopt that course, and this process also will be accelerated as soon as a lower West Side subway gives Greeley Square an express service with Cortlandt or Rector streets. Any office business, which can move up town will do so, precisely because the middle district will be the real business centre of Metropolitan New York. It will be more accessible to more people.

It will constitute a more interesting neighborhood and as office business concentrates thereabouts, the transaction of business will be facilitated and other classes of it will be drawn towards the centre. It is perfectly reasonable to anticipate that ten years from now the tall office buildings erected along the line of Broadway will have increased at a rate of speed beyond anything which New York has hitherto known for such construction, and that in the end there will be created even a species of subordinate financial district, in which offices of a certain number of the large corporations will be situated.

THE ULTIMATE TYPE.

In so far as any such development does take place, its centre will be Greeley Square, and it will spread into the side streets near Greeley Square as well as along Broadway. Eventually it will occupy that part of Broadway between Greeley and Long Acre Squares; and of course in the immediate vicinity of Long Acre Square itself, a half a dozen or more office buildings either are already erected or will be during the coming year. There seems to be NO OTHER CLASS OF BUILDING capable of constituting the ultimate type of improvement for this part of Broadway. Theatres cannot be built profitably on Broadway lots, unless they are united with office buildings. Hotels also will probably seek less expensive locations on other avenues and streets. To all appearances, the two new hotels, which were to have been built on Long Acre Square by Shanleys and Rectors have been abandoned, and if that is so, the reasons which resulted in their abandonment will probably continue to hold good. The future along this part of Broadway belongs to the office building with shops, restaurants or theatres on the ground floor.

TWENTY-SEVENTH STREET BUILDING.
Nos. 22-24 West 27th Street. Buchman & Fox, Architects.

The high prices which prevail for unimproved property in this central part of the middle district should not discourage an investor who has as much money as is necessary to engage in such operations. The end is not yet. Prices will go still higher, and the wealthy man who backs a conviction to that effect will reap large profits. Profits in real estate operations are proportioned to the grade of the property in which a man is operating. A man who buys lots between Seventh and Eighth av for $25,000 a lot may sell for double in five years.

REAL ESTATE DURING THE YEAR 1909

Remarkable Activity in Apartment and Commercial Construction—Considerable Liquidation, But no Demoralizing Cutting of Prices—Average Cost of Apartment Houses Tripled.

AMONG the other conditons, which an investor in real estate has to consider is the technical condition of the market at the time when he proposes to make the investment, and an account of the existing condition of the real estate market can best be reached by a review of its activity during the past year. The year may be described in general as a period of wholesome recovery from the effects of the panic of 1907. Those effects were not, indeed, as harmful for the owners of real estate as they were for the owners of other classes of property. They were deprived for a certain length of time of any market for their property, except at a concession in price, but very few of them were obliged to sell. There was, of course, a certain amount of liquidation, which had a noticeable effect on the values, chiefly of residence property in Manhattan and elsewhere, yet there was no general or demoralizing cutting of prices, and there was, on the whole, no very considerable loss of income.

The liquidation, however, such as it was, dominated the real estate market during the first nine months of 1908. Throughout that period real estate was usually sold at a certain, though by no means, disastrous sacrifice, and it was only in the last few months of the year that evidences of recovery began to appear. The comparatively low rates at which money could then be borrowed encouraged a resumption of apartment and tenement house building, and created a renewed demand for unimproved property, while the cheapness of building materials tempted everyone who had any building operation in mind to take advantage of the condition to secure a low-priced edifice. But during that year no very definite tendencies developed in the real estate market itself. Stocks were so cheap that the capital offered for investment went into railroad and industrial securities, and whatever activity there was in real estate was due chiefly to the fact that builders needed land to build upon. The purchase of real estate, that is, was usually incidental to building operations.

The same general condition prevailed throughout the early part of 1909, but it prevailed in much livelier fashion. It developed into an extremely active demand for building sites, wherever speculative building operations were possible in any or all of the boroughs. In the case of Manhattan, Washington Heights was naturally the scene of the most active movement, because the Heights and beyond were the only parts of Manhattan in which much vacant land remained. For two years apartment and tenement-house building had been at a low ebb, and there was room for a great deal of activity. Neither was this activity confined to Washington Heights.

Both on the West and East sides a large number of expensive fireproof apartment houses were planned. The net result was an amount of tenement-house construction, in Manhattan, exceeded during only one previous year in the history of the borough. During the first eleven months of 1909, plans were filed for 428 tenements to be erected at an estimated cost of $65,891,000.

The figures for similar operations during the whole of 1908 were 210 buildings to cost $25,925,500; for 1906 965 buildings to cost $57,372,400, and for 1905, 1,413 buildings to cost $73,522,000. These figures are very significant both as to the amount and the kind of tenement house building which prevailed in 1909. It will be seen that the total estimated cost of the 1909 plans was $65,891,000 for eleven months, against $73,522,000 for the twelve months of 1905—the year which holds the record in tenement house construction.

If $4,000,000 is added for the cost of the buildings, plans for which are recorded during December, the figure for the present year will be only a few million dollars short of the record. But it should be noticed that the immense total for the current year is divided among a comparatively small number of buildings—only 428 in 1909, against 1,413 in 1905. The estimated cost, that is, of the average tenement house erected in 1905 was about $50,000. In 1906 it was about $60,000. In 1908 it was about $125,000. In 1909 it was about $150,000. Such figures as these tell their own story.

HIGHER COSTS OF APARTMENT HOUSES.

In the short space of four years, the cost of the average tenement erected in Manhattan has trebled—which means that very few buildings of this character are erected other than six-story flats, with an elevator, and erected on plots of at least four lots.

The building revival during 1909 was not, however, confined to tenements. That year has broken all the records for the construction of loft buildings. It was apparent during 1908 that when the revival came its effects would be concentrated chiefly on Washington Heights and in the Middle District, and a prediction to that effect was confidently made in the annual review published by the Record and Guide one year ago.

The type of building most needed in the Middle District was the loft building, and such structures were erected during 1909 at an unprecedented rate.

Plans were filed for the first eleven months of that year for 198 edifices of this description to be erected at an estimated cosf of $29,512,450. The corresponding figures for the whole of 1908 were 164 buildings to cost $10,502,250; for 1906, 145 buildings to cost $15,324,200; for 1905, 193 buildings to cost $18,034,575. The total for 1909 will consequently be three times that of 1908, twice that of 1906, and almost twice that of 1905. It should be noticed, however, that the size and the cost of the average loft building erected in Manhattan is increasing in the same way as is the size and the cost of the average tenement. In 1905 the average structure of this class cost a little over $90,000. In 1909 the average loft building cost about $150,000. These figures indicate that the six-story, non-fireproof loft building is following in the foot-steps of the old five-story flat. The expense of the land is forcing builders to put up only fireproof buildings twelve stories or more in height.

The foregoing figures illustrate very well the truth of our introductory statement, that early in 1909 the demand for real estate was created chiefly by the demand for building sites; and the total figures for the past year tell the same story with even greater certainty. The aggregate number of real estate conveyances recorded, affecting property in the three leading boroughs of New York, are substantially the same for 1909 as they are for 1908. In Manhattan the 1909 figures show a small increase, whereas in Brooklyn and the Bronx there has been practically no change. It cannot be asserted, consequently, that the past year has been remarkable in point of real estate activity. On the contrary, compared either to 1905 or 1906 it has been a dull year, with no active demand for real estate except in centres of building activity. On the other hand, it has been in the amount invested in new construction almost a record-breaker. The aggregate estimated cost of the new Manhattan buildings will be about $125,000,000, which is a little better than any other year in the history of the city and which is larger by some $65,000,000 than are the corresponding figures for 1908. In the Bronx the new construction will cost about $40,000,000, against a little over $20,000,000 for 1908, and in Brooklyn, 55,000,000 against about $36,000,000 for the previous year. Adding the totals of the three boroughs together, it appears that the building year of 1909 means an investment of about $200,000,000 capital in new buildings in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx, to which about $20,000,000 should be tacked on for the new buildings erected in Queens and Richmond. These figures are about equal to the record of 1905, and it is improbable that they will be equalled during the coming year.

A FORECAST.

Building operations during 1910 will probably diminish for a number of good reasons. It will be somewhat more difficult to borrow money than it has been during 1909. There is no indication as yet that anything like a famine will be taking place; but the supply of loanable capital will not be sufficiently large to encourage speculation. Building materials will be higher. The more important centres of local building activity will not require as many new buildings as they have during 1909. On Washington Heights, for instance, notwithstanding the fact that renting conditions are fair, the record-breaking pace of the past year can hardly be continued without over-stocking the market with elevator flats.

The same statement is true in respect to the new wholesale district. In both of these localities a large amount of construction will undoubtedly be undertaken; but the total figures will be smaller than those quoted above. On the other hand, the building of cheaper grades of residential edifices in the Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens will probably show somewhat greater activity than it did in 1909.

So far as the real estate market is concerned, however, any slight loss of activity, occasioned by smaller building operations, will be more than balanced by the increase of demand coming from capitalists, who wish to invest in real estate or need some particular parcel for business purposes. During the past few months there has been an evident increase in purchases by investors, and these purchases will be continued throughout the coming year.

It should, we believe, be plain to any shrewd man that on the whole real estate in a city like New York is cheaper now than railroad and industrial securities. There will consequently be a steady sale of stocks (assuming that no break occurs in the stock market) and an almost equally steady flow of capital into real estate—particularly into real estate, whether improved with or capable of being improved with modern buildings. There is no chance of such an enormous volume of real estate activity as that which occurred in 1905 and 1906, because the speculation in old tenements and flats, upon which this activity depended, was based on conditions, which increased the value of a certain type of building all over Manhattan.

GOOD INVESTMENT DEMAND.

But there will be a good investment demand for new apartment-houses; and there will be even a larger and speculative and investment demand throughout the whole of the middle business district. More money is still to be made more quickly in that part of the city, because back of the investment demand is the actual increased value of this district for substantial and imperative business purposes. This particular section has a character by itself. It reaps inevitably the benefit of the growth of the whole city. The tides of home-seekers may run in the direction of Washington Heights, the Bronx, Long Island or New Jersey, to the advantage of one of those particular sections, and possibly to the disadvantage of competing sections; but wherever the population goes, the shopkeeper or the wholesale merchant in the middle district will reap his advantage from the increase. He has come to realize the fact that in securing a location in that district, he is buying a privilege of permanent and increasing business value. Every year there are about 170,000 people added to the total of his possible customers, and the physical geography and the transit system of the city are such that they must come and go in this great central area. Great as have been the changes in appearance, and the increases in value, which have taken place during the past ten years, it can be confidently prophesied that the next ten years will witness a still more astounding transformation.

Real estate investors and speculators who cannot see that every indication points to a wholly unprecedented concentration of business activity and imperative business demand on this particular section must be very blind, but the real danger is not that they will fail to see the impending transformation, but that they will see it too clearly, and will consequently increase speculative prices so rapidly as to interfere with purchases by business men and investors.

LOFT BUILDINGS AS INVESTMENT PROPOSITIONS.

The Sort of Building an Investor Might Expect for $900,000—Where Such a Building Would Pay—The Nature of the Foundations—Precedents Furnished By a Notable Structure.

BUILDING material and equipment in modern construction are constantly undergoing changes. The former is always being improved. The latter are the luxuries of yesterday transformed into the necessities of today. The man who erected a commercial or industrial building in this city a decade ago would have a different kind of figuring to do were he to invest in a present day office or loft building. He would first find costs considerably higher, but he would also discover that the ultimate earning capacity of his investment would be proportionately greater.

How far, for instance, would $900,000 go, assuming that a plot already had been acquired? Could he expect the finished fabric to be luxuriously equipped? How tall should a structure costing that sum be and how much ground should it cover? How long would it take to build it; would he have to lose a year's or six month's income from property formerly standing on the site? These, to be sure, are questions that his architect would gladly answer for him, but let us assume that he is in the looking-around-stage and is not yet ready to consult his building counsel.

He finds that Fourth avenue looks like a fruitful field, judging from present building activity there. A building at Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth streets, on the east side of the avenue strikes his fancy. It is nearing completion but a sign informs him that its steel frame will rise twelve stories from the curb and that the finished structure will be a loft building. Further inquiry brings the information that the cost will be in the neighborhood of the sum that he is desirous of investing. Incidently he gets a clear idea enmasse of what he can expect for his money.

His back number of the Record and Guide, under the head of "plans filed" informs him that the Thompson-Starrett Company of 49-51 Wall street will erect for the Hewitt Realty Co. and Mrs. Edith C. Bryce, two structures, which, when finished, will be practically one, however, from plans by Clinton & Russell, of 32 Liberty street, at an estimated cost of $450,000, for the Hewitt operation, and $400,000 for the Bryce structure. The dimensions are 185x98.8 for the former and 166x8 for the latter.

HOW MUCH TIME WILL IT TAKE?

The question of time consumed in razing old structures, excavating, sinking foundations, erection and finishing ready for occupancy is an important one in the eyes of our friend the prospective investor. He then learns something of the difference between construction methods ten years ago and those of today, and discovers that the keynote of it is organization and system backed up by that sixth sense peculiar to the leading New York general contractors, known as "steam," which, being interpreted, means aggressiveness. He is astounded when he is informed that Thompson-Starrett Company expects to finish that big operation in from four to six months from the time wreckers began to remove the old structures that were landmarks on that site. That was on June 2. He finds that barring hitches the building will be practically completed this month.

Our friend wants to know whether it is safe to rush a building at such a pace. An acquaintance calls his attention to the Everett building, on the same avenue at Seventeenth street, a model 12-story office and semi-loft building, which was erected within five months, counting from the time wreckers began to raze the famous old hotel that stood on the site. The architects of that building, Goldwin Starrett & Van Vleck, tell him that the structure was ready for occupants within four months from the time the first column shoe was set, and that the finished structure was so well constructed that it pays the lowest insurance rates in the city. The Geo. A. Fuller Co. was the builder.

COST OF FOUNDATIONS.

The question of excavations and rock formation on Fourth avenue was the next one that had to be answered. How deep must the caissons go? Would steam shovels be practicable? He went up to the offices of Canavan Brothers, in West Fifty-sixth street, and discussed the matter with A. C. Franke, engineer for the company and learned that steam shovels are entirely practicable in a site measuring more than 100x100 ft, where there is a preponderance of earth. In the case of the Hewitt-Bryce buildings, two steamshovels were employed, but owing to disadvantages from excessive summer heat the teams could not always be worked to capacity. About 26,000 cu. yds. of earth in place, and about 15 per cent. of that figure in litter were removed within a month. The best day's record was 300 loads of from 3 to 3½ cu. yds. each. This is an example of rapid excavation work which, however, cannot always be expected in Manhattan operations of this kind owing to varying composition of sub-stratas.

On the subject of rock formation along Fourth avenue the inquirer learned that earth, solid rock covering from 9 to 17 ft, mica shist or disintegrated trap rock, and finally hardpan, are the rule from 14th street to 32nd street, and drilling is required. But in the case of the Hewitt-Bryce building the earth held many bowlders containing from one to fifteen cubic yards, all of which had to be blasted and on the northeast corner a ledge 60 by 80 ft, had to be drilled. This was a shelf-like formation that receded underneath westward and under which was gravel, then hardpan. Hardpan, in all Fourth avenue formation slopes westward sharply. Allowances in sinking caissons must therefore be made. It might be necessary to carry the pier holes twenty feet below the street surface, or as deep as forty-three feet.

Now, what kind of equipment can he expect? The foundation caissons were sunk, by the open process, by the Thompson-Starrett Company, which also erected the steel skeleton, beginning on September 15. Fifteen days after the riveters started to work, B. A. & G. N. Williams began to deliver limestone (5).* Almost at the same time the Sayre & Fisher Company and

Are you BUYING as well as you can?

Pfotenhauer & Nesbit began to deliver front brick. During the entire construction the riveters led the masons by only from ten to fifteen days. This showed the prospective investor what system does for building construction.

THE IMPORTANT MATTER OF PROMPT DELIVERY.

"But can I depend upon my supply men getting their goods to the job when wanted?" was a natural question that arose in our friend's mind. Again we turn to the Hewitt-Bryce operation. All the minor contractors signed up with the understanding that quick deliveries and rapid installations would consequence the Worthington was installed in that operation. For the same reason Heine boilers were installed. The Western Electric Company would supply the motors and the Otis Elevator Company the lifts, both passenger and freight.

He could also count on his building being equipped with a more or less ornate main entrance, the ornamental iron for which, were he to follow the precept of his model, would be supplied by L. Schrieber & Co.

Such is the building that an investor could erect for $900,000. It would be a structure adaptable for office or loft rentals; be expected. The case of the Federal-Huber Co. is enlightening. This company took the contract to supply 1,100 fixtures, including lavatories, closets, stalls, slop sinks, showers and wash trays by December 1. In the mean time James McCullough for the Hewitt building and Hall S. Bolger for the Bryce building, had risers in place as the interior work progressed, so that when floors and partitions were in, the fixtures were on hand for installation. These fixtures will be serviceable without being luxurious. He would also use Rockland-Rockport lime for plastering and finishing. For high grade work the Berger Manufacturing Co. would supply the metal lathing and install the vault lights.

The investigator found further that he could have the Clinton system concrete floor arches (2)* on 6-ft. spans, and each floor would be 12 ft. from ceiling. As for plastering, Crane & Mahoney had the Hewitt-Bryce contract. A good grade of millwork could be obtained, as in the present case, from the Weisberg-Mark Company of Astoria. Granite for exterior work would come from the yards of John Hynes, if the building is to be on the same scale as the one taken for a model, he could have kalameined window sashes upon those facing the court, and wooden ones for windows facing on the street. The floor base would be of wood, as also would be the floors (3), of a good serviceable grade. He would, however, find that the cost of this flooring would be a little greater than that paid for in the Hewitt-Bryce building. The sheet metal-work and slag roofing would be done by M. & L. Weiss, but his building would be "piped for gas" only to the extent required by law and as would likely be required by tenants for manufacturing purposes. If the Thompson-Starrett Company constructed the building, it would do the heating and electric lighting in all probability (1).

Inasmuch as the prospective building is to be a loft structure, it is essential that a sprinkler system be installed. The Rockwood system went into the Hewitt-Bryce building. As for pumps, no skimping should be done in this matter, and in its general construction would be stable and permanent, but it would not be a gaudy structure, the whole with its straight, Renaissance architecture giving the impression of commercial utility. He would be in the most desirable part of the city, centrally located to all five boroughs and with good transit facilities and short hauls to tidewater.

A WORD OF ADVICE TO THE MAN MAKING HIS FIRST PURCHASE.

A GREAT mistake made by many people, in fact, by nearly all investors who make their first purchase of real estate, is in taking for granted that real estate can be treated just as they would treat United States bonds. All they have to do with the bonds is to pay for them, put them in a safe deposit vault and before every interest day clip the coupons and get them cashed. Similarly they imagine a piece of real estate can be treated somewhat in the same way. Instead of having to clip coupons, they imagine that all they have to do is to go once a month to collect the rent.

The first thing that should be done by the intending investor is to consult, before buying, a broker familiar with the locality in which he intends to buy and take his advice, (not that of your friends); first, because he knows values; second, because that is what one does when consulting a lawyer, and, last, because if you don't the results are likely to be disastrous.

Having bought, if you have not the time, or do not know how to properly manage the property, employ a competent agent to look after it, pay him the five per cent. which he asks, and you will be more than satisfied with the results.

The agent, in the first place, knows the property, the locality, the class of tenants likely to want accommodations in a given locality, and he also knows when to say yes or no to the numerous demands that are always being made by the average tenant. He can give the property the personal attention that a busy man cannot give, and his services are well worth his pay.

Our Real Estate and Building statistics are the STANDARD.

INCREASING THE SMALL LOT'S EARNING CAPACITY.

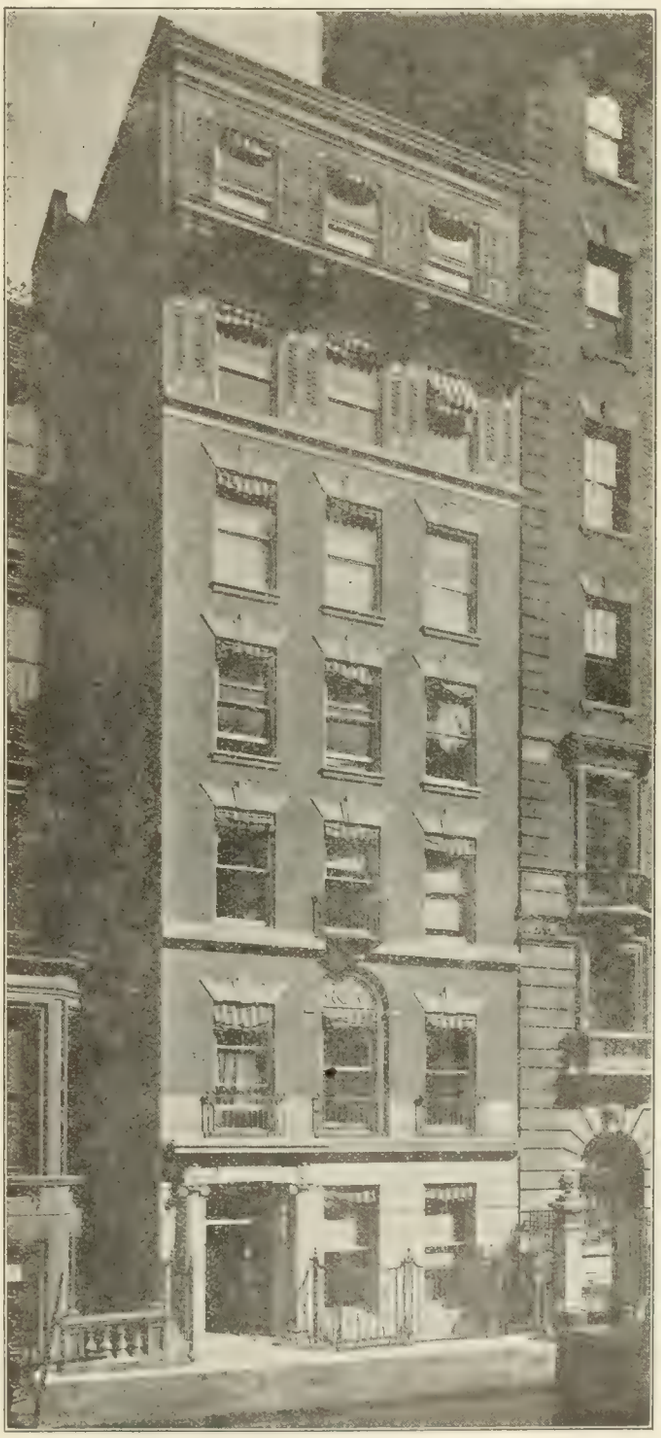
From Residence to Studio Building; A Study in Economics— What $60,000 Can Do in Making A Property More Profitable.

THERE comes a time when the owner of a desirable property is forced to ask himself if his building is economically worth the ground it stands on. Architecturally it may be an addition to the neighborhood, historically a reverenced landmark, sentimentally it may be hedged about with hallowed associations, but commercially it may be, and frequently is, a non-productive holding. If it is not a source of income in exact proportion to that of the most improved property in the neighborhood, the question is answered in the negative. But, when the owner contemplates the size of his lot and finds that it is only twenty-five feet wide, nine times out of ten he simply throws his hands aloft, saying that nothing can be done with such a property, and he puts it on the market for sale.

Modern construction methods, and the ever-constant shifting of population in Manhattan combine to aid the investor confronted with a problem of this kind. To make his holding double its earning capacity he must erect a new building or remodel the old so as to make up in floor area what the lot lacks in acreage. A great deal, of course, depends upon the location of the lot. The improvement of adjoining property does not necessarily force this question to the front, although it may have a contributing influence as an indicator and factor in the tendency of the neighborhood. The widening of a thoroughfare, the transformation of a residential street into a retail shopping centre or office building district, or even the repaving of an adjacent avenue, frequently recasts the importance of a side street. The owner's business accumen, perhaps may tell him to act quickly and to reap the harvest when it is ripest but he may hesitate to improve his property because of the traditional risks involved in a building enterprise. Let us see, therefore, what transformation can be wrought with $60,000 on a side street twenty-five front-foot lot, 100 feet deep, on which stands a four-story residence.

Mrs. Mary E. Seaton, of 418 Madison avenue, owned a residence answering the foregoing description at 11 East 48th street. Situated as it was within a few second's walking distance from Fifth avenue, the value of the property became, within very recent years, greater than was represented by the income derived from the structure on it. Each year business encroached farther and farther upon the residential district, as the importance of 42d street grew as a transportation and shopping centre. The dwellings were given over to physicians' offices, and gradually the dwellers moved farther north. But the time came, within the last half a decade, when the earning capacity of those properties grew so as to put the rentals at too high a figure for the professional men and the structures were remodeled into stores and offices. Then came the very imperative demand for a building a little different from an office building, but not on such extensive plans as a loft structure. Neither must it have any of the characteristics of an apartment house or residence. The professional men demanded a type of building that could be devoted to professional purposes and yet permit no hint of commercialism to be conveyed by either exterior or interior architecture. Thus came the Studio Building, and the dawn of a new era for side-street realty investment. Messrs. Israels & Harder, the architects, studied the problem in conjunction with the New Amsterdam Leasing Company, of 537 Fifth avenue, the lessee of the 11 East 48th street studio building and found that approximately $60,000 would make the property a paying investment. Before the building was ready for occupancy, about one year ago, practically every office was taken and it has remained well tenanted ever since with a universally long term class of rent payer, and one in which wear and tear is so far removed as to be almost negligable.

The facade of the seven-story studio building is of sandstone and polychrome brick work. Architecturally it suggests a club building. The brickwork runs with red-pressed stretchers and alternate red and blue headers from the third to the seventh floor, across the front of which is a wrought iron balcony. The sandstone is ribbed tooled up to the third floor at the centre window of which is an iron rostrum. The entrance is through a marble vestibule on the sidewalk level, through a short marble hallway to a public reception room, where are the telephone exchange, elevator and the superintendent's offices. The elevator shaft opens on short halls on each floor, upon which face doors leading into various offices, and of which there are five, arranged en suite, but they can be rented singly if desired.



THE QUESTION OF EQUIPMENT.

The question naturally suggests itself to the prospective investor of what kind of equipment should go into a structure of this kind and what the decoration and finish of studio buildings are. If the structure is to be occupied by physicians, dentists and oculists it is essential that the trim be good but not lavishly ornamental, that the plumbing be first class, that the walls and floors be sanitary, that there be plenty of light and ventilation, that gas and electricity be provided, and also compressed air from a central reservoir with taps or valves in each office.

Little steel is required in a building of this type, the walls being brick and floors of reinforced concrete. In 11 East 48th street the stairs are wood, but an Otis electric traction elevator affords quick and silent transportation to all floors.

The building was put up by the Fleischmann Brothers Company. In finishing nothing is left that could be desired, even to the marble sills for doors leading from all halls. This with the marble (4)* in the main hall and the tile work (6)* throughout the building was installed by the United States Tile Works. Another instance of the type of equipment that went into this structure is shown in the fact that N. J. Vincent installed the plumbing and pumps, while the Westinghouse Electric Co. equipped the building with its compressed air service. The roof was put on by M. J. Westergren, a specialist in this line and was high grade in every respect.

The lighting problem (1)* for an operation of this kind is essential, and in this case it was entrusted to D. G. Brussell. It is so arranged that in none of the offices is it necessary to use artificial light for ordinary work, even though tall structures rise on all sides. Messrs. Israels and Harder, the architects placed the principal operating rooms, both for dentists and surgeons in front and back leaving the reception rooms in the centre of the building where light sufficient to read by is plentifully supplied.

The prospective tenant of this class, in seeking suitable offices, finds that heat is very essential, and accordingly considerable care was taken to permit no fault to be found with this accoutrement. Sorrensen & Farrington, specialists in this line of work, installed the steam equipment for this building, radiation being obtained by the American Radiator Company's segment appliances. To conform to the richness of the oak and white enamel trim installed by G. H. Gerard Son & Co. a fine grade of hardware was put in by the Russell & Erwin Manufacturing Co. Even the painting, done by Mayer Daxe, was of a high type of workmanship.

The floors and walls of this building are interesting because they embody very modern ideas of sanitary construction along this line and were the subject of considerable scrutiny and investigation before the architects approved them. The flooring is a composition that is said to have been used successfully in German hospitals. It was installed by The Doloment Company and when in place is without crease or seam. The corners and wall edges are concave, and form the baseboard. In appearance it resembles concrete and may be tinted any color. It is said to be waterproof, will not craze, crack or burn. The walls, plastered by John Feehan, were covered with The Sanatile Company's secret preparation, which looks like tinted canvass, but which may be washed and scrubbed with soap and water or even acid. The ceiling and wall edges and corners are also concave, permitting absolute cleanliness. The impression gained by even the casual observer is favorable.

All the vitreous china used in the building is the best grade turned out by the Trenton Potteries Company. The fixtures are all nickle plated. A novelty is found in the operating rooms in the form of floor connection for the expectorating bowl which is unobtrusively placed in the flooring where the service pipe comes through. The gas supply is limited to requirements for sterilizing purposes, the artificial lighting being supplied by electricity from the Edison service.

This gives a hint, at least, of what the requirements of such a building are, but if properly provided they have been found to prove inviting to high class professional men. The question of finances, formerly a serious obstacle to surmount, is to-day one of the simplest, under ordinary conditions. Reputable construction companies frequently find ways, through their banking connections, to help an investor or property owner improve his holdings.

Another problem that frequently acts as a deterrant upon the owner who would like to develop his properties, is that he imagines that he cannot be sure that he can get his improvement completed for a legitimate, previously ascertained cost. Today this may be definitely known at the outset, thanks to organization and system placed at the disposal of the prospective investor by the leading construction companies.

The field is here, the time is ripe, the demand urgent. Wanted: Investors.

NEW IDEAS IN RIVERSIDE DRIVE APARTMENT HOUSES.

Helpful Suggestions for the Investor—What $200,000 Will Do and What the Tenant Expects—Inducements That are Made to Secure Good Tenancy.

By ALLEN E. BEALS.

A SIGN on a half-finished apartment house announcing that the suites would be burglar-proof when completed, suggested the query, "What does the apartment house tenant of to-day demand from the builder?" And because of the many luxuries expected by this class of rentpayer, "Does apartment house construction pay?" I might answer the last question at once and say that it unquestionably offers a reasonably safe and satisfactory avenue for a quick return of capital appropriated, provided that the demands of the future occupants of the suites are anticipated as far as possible. Let us, therefore, find out what other investors are doing and what inducements they are offering to insure quick, desirable and permanent rentals.

FIG. 1—DACONA HALL, A TYPICAL APARTMENT HOUSE.
Moore & Landsiedel, Architects.

I will select an apartment house that cost between $175,000 and $200,000 to build, and which was sold subsequently at a handsome profit. "Dacona Hall," seven stories high, 200x200 ft, the southwest corner of Claremont avenue and 122nd street, now owned by Abram Bandouine, is a fair example of the modern structure of this kind renting at from $60 to $100 a month, according to floor and exposure. I have selected it because it is several blocks from the subway, that except for its three higher floors, there is no other vista than that of the ordinary West side apartment house, and because the building is a fair example of modern semi-fireproof construction.

It faces "Grant Square," which is a small plot of ground opposite Grant's tomb that was opened last May by the city and laid out with a little fountain, grass plots, and walks. The front windows give a view of Riverside Drive and part of the Hudson. It is occupied by a long term class of tenants, well-to-do wholesale merchants, a banker, a broker, a physician and so forth. As a proof of the assertion that this class of investment pays, it might be said that only two apartments were not taken when the building was thrown open for rental.

When the Dacorn Realty Co. built Dacona Hall, it gave its architects, Messrs. Moore & Landsiedel, carte blanche as to style and architectural design. The finished structure is a monument to sound business judgment. The site had already been excavated when the plot was bought by the developers.

A fifteen degree grade had to be figured with on the 122nd street elevation, but in the construction of the building a shelving of white ribbed-tooled limestone was run around the facades between the second and third floors. This was evidently done to compensate architecturally for the street incline. The first floor is entirely of limestone (5)* ribbed-tooled from the yards of the Charles W. Bellows Company. The same material is used for exterior window-trim and for the soffitted roofs. Fredenburg & Lounsbury's velvet mat brick, laid with sunken joints and in Flemish bond, was used to fill in between the stone work (5).* The color scheme is a dull maroon, giving to the whole structure dignity and richness. In this case two courts were built, faced with a pressed buff brick. One of these divides the two apartment tiers on either side of the building, and the rear court permits ingress and egress for tradesmen. Inasmuch as the building faces north, the court arrangement insures a greater amount of daylight for each room than is usually the case in apartment houses of even this type.

The Dacorn Realty Co. found it profitable to be its own contractor and builder. It therefore had personal supervision of all the work, from the laying of the foundations by S. Di Pace, of Harrison, N. Y., until the Griffen Roofing Company put the roof on and the building was occupied. Quick work is an important part in making this kind of an enterprise pay. It is vital that contractors of known responsibility and ability to live up to their covenants be employed. In this the Dacorn Realty Co. was fortunate. Hardly had Levine & Posner finished steel deliveries than William T. Hoohey began delivering common brick. The fact that Atlas Portland Cement and Rockland-Rockport lime were used shows that high grade materials were specified for this structure.

So much for the exterior. The tenant of today accepts a rich and inviting structure as a matter of course, but the interior, the place where he is going to live, and which his friends are going to criticise, is vital. It was, therefore, no surprise to me to find that the architects had put more adornment inside than outside.

Do you know what the municipal government is NOW planning to do?—

A GLANCE WITHIN.

Entering the wide door at the extreme rear of the court, I found myself in a marble (4)* vestibule floored with mosaic tile (6)*, and with sidewalls of solid F. O. Norwegian marble to the ceiling, supplied by Maxwell & Dempsey. I walked up a marble staircase to the entrance hall, telephone exchange and elevator which I noted was an Otis of the automatic, electric control, traction type. Upon each massive marble newal was a tapering brass pedestal, supporting a huge frosted glass globe, containing a half dozen incandescent electric lights. Every window and door and sash in the building is kalameined by the Oriental Fireproof Sash and Door Co., and supplied with clear wire glass, with the exception of the front and side windows

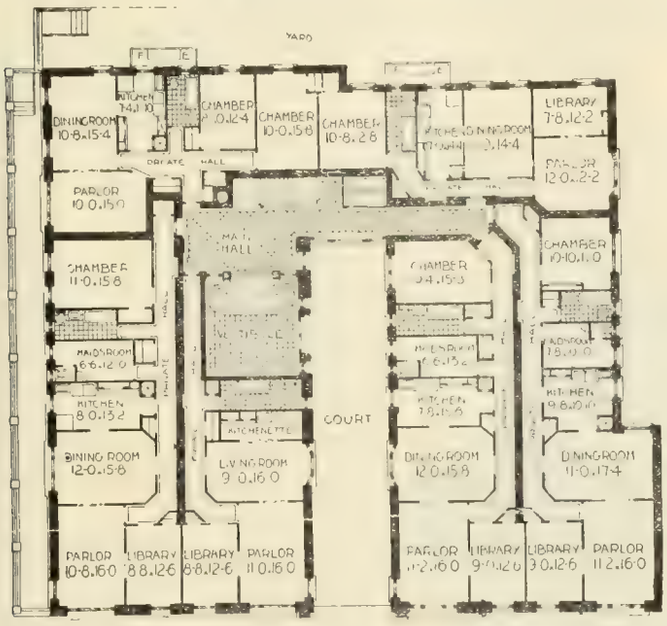

FIG 2—FLOOR PLAN, SHOWING SUITE ARRANGEMENT IN DACONA HALL.

The plans of other floors are identical save in that the apartment, which on this floor is reduced in size by the vestibule and used as a physician's office, is on the other floors a counterpart of the apartment on the opposite side of the court. It rents for $50.

of the apartments themselves, which have fine plate glass supplied by Thomas E. Edmonds. The Automatic Mail Delivery Company's shutes have been installed.

"But what must the present day investor put in the various apartments and how far can he profitably go?" The reader may have asked this question. He must catch the woman's eye as she enters the suite as a house hunter. I therefore saw that the owners had put in Janovsky & Falitz's parquet floors (3).* I found that they had put in odorless gas logs and supplied andirons in and before the fireplaces framed by Colonial enameled pine mantels faced with white tile (6),* and topped with a 4x6 unbeveled plate glass mirror. These mantels were furnished by the E. Bradley Currier Co. I noticed that considerable care had been taken to make the chandeliers harmonize with the general finish of the room. One of the selections from Baldinger & Kupferman's stock hung in both the parlor and dining room, and carried a frame of mahogany retaining polychrome glass of a greenish color scheme.

The wall paper was laid in white bordered panels and was very rich, having been taken from the Robert Graves and Robert Griffen displays. The paper had a silk finish, was green in the parlor and maroon in the sitting room or library. Women prefer halls that arrange the parlor near the front door. This feature was lacking here, however. There were large closets in the library that could be used for books or for clothing.

A NEW COLOR SCHEME.

The dining room offered a departure from the conventional in color scheme. Dark colors here do not begin at the floor and grow lighter toward the ceiling, as is usual. The heavy wood panelling of "silvered oak," a new decoration, suggests the old Dutch decorating schemes with sombre colorings. Between the panels, sepia tapestry paper was laid on a design of huge tea roses. A massive plate rail adorned the wall about three feet from the ceiling, and above it the panelling was continued in smaller areas to a dark freize depicting sailing ships at dusk. The ceiling was in cream colored paper.

Pushing through a heavy walnut swinging door, I sought those conveniences that the modern house seeker expects to find in the butlers pantry and kitchen. The sink and back and drain tables are one piece. Some have a swinging seat attached to one of the legs upon which the tired wife or servant may sit to wash dishes. They generally prove good tenant getters. But while this novelty was absent in this kitchen, it contained a high grade glass lined refrigerator, and a novelty of real merit was found in the washtubs supplied by the Trenton Potteries Company. The washboard is moulded into the sloping side of the tub and near by is a receptical for soap also, an integral part. All the wash woman has to do is to give a twist of her wrist and the elusive soap is safely anchored out of the reach of water. Metal sanitary tub covers are provided. The kitchen is further equipped with a York gas range and an iron ventilator garbage repository. The owner now-a-days supplies garbage pails. This room also had glass-covered closets for aprons and table linen.

In the chamber, at the rear of the apartment, just off the front door was a wall safe and a full length beveled plate glass mirror fastened behind the mahogany door leading to the hall. It is an addition to the furnishing of the room. The room also contains a large plastered and shelved closet for clothing. The wall-paper was satin finished, with white stripe, and adorned with pink poppies. There was a maid's room, just off the kitchen, which contained a wash bowl and toilet accessories.

A uniformly good grade of plumbing goes into the modern apartment house. The bath room was white tiled, all the tiling (6)* being the work of G. Schaille & Son. It contained a white enameled bath tub, wash bowl and toilet, equipped with a "Flush-O-Meter." All piping was nickel plated. Over the bath tub was a shower bath with curtain. All the piping was supplied and installed by K. C. Polatschek.

The electrical fixtures throughout the building were installed (1)* by the Rappaport Electrical Co. In this instance high grade work is essential as a means of satisfying tenants. No central vacuum cleaning plant was installed in the house, the claim being made that conditions in this house would not warrant maintaining such powerful suction for ordinary cleaning purposes. Instead, a socket is placed in the baseboard of each room to which a wire connection can be made and thus the cleaning apparatus can be taken from room to room. This enables tenants to use their own portable vacuum cleaning apparatuses if they have them, which is frequently the case in this day of their cheapness and compactness. Heat is supplied by a Mulhearn boiler and a Standard water heater, supplies the entire building.

This briefly tells the story of what the tenant expects and receives from the majority of builders of high-class apartments. In the construction of this type of house, little steel is used, but common brick enters largely into the item of construction materials. The New Jersey Terra Cotta Co. supplied all terra cotta used.

Floor spans as a rule are of reinforced concrete (2)* usually about six feet each and were done by Gustave Scharnberger. An innovation that Messrs. Davis and Cohen, of the Dacorn Realty Company introduced in this operation, and which they have also done in an operation they now have under way at 180th street and Fort Washington avenue, is that they put 2½x4 inch double bridged spruce studding between all partitions. This prevents the splitting of walls and by spiking a nailing strip into the brick side walls, gives the whole partition a steel-like stability and is in the end economical.

Another feature that is profitable in this type of construction is some good system of water and damp-proofing. In this case it was done by Herman Malkin, who gave each wall a triple coat of his preparation. A high grade of plastering was installed in this operation by Conroy Brothers. All the trim was done by the Empire City Woodworking Co. General lumber being supplied by the Vossnack Lumber Co.

I found that this fairly represents what the investor with $175,000 to $200,000 can expect to get and should provide to-day. He will find that for speculative purposes apartment house construction is a field in which he can quickly turn his money over, providing that, as he builds, he bears in mind the economy in the long run of keeping his tenants satisfied and installing little conveniences that please the women of the household. A pleased servant makes a good servant, and a good servant makes a contented housekeeper. A contented housekeeper seldom wants to move.

A 4TH AVENUE CORNER IN PROCESS OF TRANSFORMATION.

This was the appearance of the west side corners of 4th avenue and 25th street in the Fall of 1909. The white marble building is under construction for the Provident Loan. The vacant site is being excavated for the Milbank Building.

THE OFFICE BUILDING AT AN ORDINARY CROSSING.

The Question, "Is There Call for Such Building Outside the Great Traffic Zones?" Answered By Showing Fifth Avenue's Trend.

IT has been said that Fifth avenue, as a shopping centre, is in the knickerbocker stage. If the number of transformations from private dwellings to business buildings is any proof of this, the avenue has already fixed its destiny. But the question is, why are owners of property along this thoroughfare content to remodel their residences when the tendency to commercialize the avenue is so unmistakably apparent? Casual observers—and among them is no small number of investors—have noted this and continued their searches for what they thought, more desirable investments. They hold that the future of Fifth avenue has not yet been sufficiently defined to hazzard great sums of their associate's money in more extensive operations. But have they searched the facts far enough? Let us see.

Certain far-seeing men saw the future of Fifth avenue when the development began a dozen years ago, northward from 14th street. Today it is well up to 50th street. It will be a long time, twice twelve years perhaps, before the shopping district reaches to the Plaza. No one will be bold enough to say that it never will go further, because the northward march of business in the past has swept before it more supposedly impregnable residential strongholds than "Multi-Millionaires' Row" offers today. But it may be put down as a certainty that the onward march has been arrested as far as the acquisition of new territory is concerned and the development for the next score years will be in office, loft and stores, studio and showroom buildings. As this truth becomes more firmly impressed upon realty experts and, in turn, upon investors, more extensive improvements are being undertaken.

Contrary to some opinions, the successful office building does not necessarily have to be located at the centre of a great traffic zone like Fifth avenue and 42nd street, or at 23d street and Broadway, or at Third avenue and 149th street, although naturally the success of office buildings placed at those centres is assured from the start, providing of course, they are properly managed. There is room for them in any district where retail, wholesale or jobbing interests call people into congested territory, but the needs of the future tenants must be considered carefully. No better example of this truth could be found than by taking the case of Fifth avenue and 31st street.

Here, there are no big stores, no theatres, nor places of public assemblage. Great numbers of people do not pass the corner during morning or evening rush hours, and the number of persons passing from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m. is not greater than 125 per hour. Furthermore, there is a great tide of vehicular traffic, and strict traffic regulations enforced at that point do not permit of carriages or automobiles standing in great numbers at the curbs. Yet, on the northeast corner is the site of a 20-story office building that the "Fifth Avenue Investing & Improvement Company," of No. 1 Madison avenue, is erecting and which it plans to have ready by May 1. Here is an outlay of between $500,000 and $750,000 which might be called a venture on unearned increment, an investment, in other words, which, as the avenue develops, will bring richer and richer returns to its owners.

We shall try to show that there is a good field for an office and showroom building on a longitudinal street where a tendency or movement in any certain direction, has been well developed. In this case it has been shown that the tendency is toward retail shopping. Should we take Fourth avenue, it would be wholesale and jobbing; lower Seventh avenue, light manufacturing, and on its upper part, above 34th street, apartment hotels and restaurants. Or, taking certain cross streets, we find, for instance, the six-story loft building in 33d street, 31st street, 27th street, 24th street, 22nd street, all east and west, while 34th street is developing into a retail shopping centre of a little more fashionable standard than 23rd street. Through all this district Fifth avenue is the backbone, with Broadway a powerful chest plate pushing on this wonderful development. With all these contributary conduits of commerce centered on either side of Manhattan's spinal column, it is not difficult to see that there is room for bigger and better office building development on this thoroughfare than has until recently been the rule.

In the consideration of an investment of this kind the first requisite is an architect who has made a study of conditions here described, because the most must be made of a limited area. When Buchman & Fox, the architects of 11 East 59th street, were first retained on this operation they had a lot 56.9 x150 on which to work. Upon this site to-day stands a structure of modern French design, that not only architecturally graces the avenue but conforms as well to the most exacting commercial tastes and demands. The construction work is that of the Hedden Construction Company, which company, after the excavation had been completed by Patrick Norton, sank the open, or concrete, caissons to hardpan. Shortly afterward Post & McCord began the deliveries of steel, the entire structure being of steel fireproof construction, the National Fireproofing Company's tile being used.

The architects, to carry out the requirements for ornate expression necessary for a structure of that kind in such an avenue, carried the stonework up to the fourth-story course. This ribbed-tooled white limestone (5)* was cut by George Brown & Co., while the brick that surmounts it from the fourth to the thirteenth story was divided up between the Empire Brick and Supply Co. and Rufus Darrow's Sons. This part of the building is light buff up to the tin roof, put on by Coleman & Krause, through Sloane & Moeller.

All the floors in this structure are made of concrete (2)* laid in the Clinton system, Type B, in spans of five feet six inches each with Atlantic Portland Cement. This contract was held by Gollick & Smith (Inc.), which concern has done a large amount of high-class work in this and neighboring cities. On every floor the appointments will be as near perfect as it is possible to provide in a building of this sort. All the plumbing fixtures will be supplied by the Federal-Huber Co., while Monroe M. Golding will install it. Standard enameled ironware will be used in the lavatories.

Otis elevators will convey passengers and freight to all floors, which will be heated by a steam system installed by the Baldwin Engineering Co. The sprinkler system will be a modern one. The trim, supplied by Sloane & Moeller, will be of fine selected wood and all doors and windows will be of kalameined construction and furnished by this firm through A. J. Ellis, of West New York, N. J. The glass was furnished by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

The electric lighting system (1)* in this building was installed by L. K. Comstock & Co, which company also supplied and installed all switchboards and other electrical work. All steam and electric installation was superintended by Chauncey Matlock, C. E. The plastering was the work of McNulty Brothers. The waterproofing was done by the Tuttle Roofing Co., while the general contractors, the Hedden Construction Co., did the mason work. The tile work and marble (4)* was supplied by John H. Shipway & Brother (6)* while the ornamental ironwork came from the shops of the Hecla Iron Works in Brooklyn. The slate work was done by Arthur Wells, and the mail chutes were from the Cutler Mail Chute Co.

A glance about the neighborhood of this operation is illuminating. Save for the s e corner of Fifth avenue and 32nd street, and the Charles T. Wills Building at 286-288 Fifth avenue, opposite, there is not a modern office building near the one now in course of construction and facing upon the avenue. It is also significant that, with the exception of the new buildings of course, the only places where "to-let" signs are displayed are in the upper floors of buildings formerly used as dwellings but which have been transformed this summer into store and office buildings ranging 5 stories high. This is the character of shops, all of them small ones, in the vicinity, these being cited in order to show that they are not of such a type as to attract the ordinary shopping crowds to that neighborhood.

On the east side of Fifth avenue, between 30th street and 32nd —No. 291, Chinese art store; No. 295, Alice Lazarus, milliner; No. 297, Michaelian Bros., rugs; No. 299, Tel-Electric Co., pianos; No. 301, Fifth avenue Investing & Improvement Company's building, the subject of this article, on the northeast corner of 31st street; No. 307, John Wells, silver; Nos. 309 and 311 are residences; No. 313, Mason-Hamlin pianos; No. 315, Sohmer & Co., pianos, this building being of modern construction, 11 stories high.

West side, between 30th street and 32nd street—the class of store occupancy follow: No. 284, an 8-sty building occupied by Gilman Collamore & Co., crockery; Nos. 286-288, a 12-story modern stone and brick store and showroom building, called the "Charles T. Wills Building," which has just been completed; No. 290, Ph. Weinberger Son & Co., furs; No. 292, Mme. Naijla Mocabcob, importer of robes; No. 294, G. F. C. Boos, furs; No. 296, Francaise, robes; No. 298; Mauser Manufacturing Co., silversmiths; No. 302, Duveen & Co., furniture.

On the northwest corner of 31st street, opposite the building which is the subject of this article: No. 304, McLaughlin, furs; No. 306, Dr. E. A. Jaeger, underwear; No. 308, Grand Maison deBlanc, millinery; No. 310, residence, 4-story and basement; at 312, Ovington Bros., art dealers, and No. 314-16, Kaskel & Kaskel, jewelers, on the southwest corner of Fifth avenue and 32nd street.

In the side streets, evidences of commercial development are also seen, although not so conspicuously as in Fifth avenue.

Henry Korn, of 347 Fifth avenue, the renting agent, says that not only has he rented a large proportion of the rentable area, but that the inquiry for accommodation is also large. Most of the offices have been rented as showrooms to prominent concerns, not only from this city, but in other boroughs. It would therefore seem that there was a demand and a field for this class of office building in a longitudinal street, some distance removed from a heavy cross-traffic centre and that the field was being rapidly taken up by far-sighted investors with profit.

THE 12-STORY APARTMENT HOUSE AS AN INVESTMENT.

What $300,000 Will Do in the Way of Improving a Valuable Fifth Avenue Corner—Meeting the Demands for the Best of Everything.

THERE are two sections, at least, in Manhattan where the investor must start out with the idea that nothing but the very best must go into his operation, whether it be an office building, an arcade, an apartment house or a dwelling. One is on Fifth avenue, between 23rd street and 90th street, and the other is Riverside Drive. Both are show streets, both belong to the class rather indefinitely described as ultra-exclusive which, commercially, means that tenants able to rent in those sections are exacting in their tastes and demand the highest standards of excellence, whether it be in plumbing, brick work, fireproofing, parquet floors, tiling or trim. Architects have long realized this, and after great patience and effort have brought the truth home to their clients.

It is the purpose of this article to take up the subject of apartment houses of the twelve-story fireproof type already familiar to Riverside Drive, but comparatively new to Fifth avenue. As for the office building and arcade, suffice it to say at this time that the sentiment that only the best is good enough in Fifth avenue, is growing in exact ratio to the progress that that thoroughfare is making as the centre of the fashionable shopping district. Fifth avenue customers demand store or shop or office accommodations in accord with their accustomed

Thomas R. A. Hall, Owner and Builder

Fifth Ave., Southwest Corner 51st St.
Alexander M. Welch, Architect.

THE RELATION BETWEEN OWNER AND BUILDER.

What the Present Day Demands Upon the Constructor Are, and How He Studies to Give Perfect Satisfaction to His Client.

Of all the professions, that of the constructing engineer is perhaps the most exacting. He has a plurality of masters to serve and in satisfactorily doing that he requires abilities not generally recognized as business virtues, they being more frequently looked upon as matters of course; something to be expected. The part he has taken in laying down a profitable path for the investor to follow is too little appreciated, yet he plods on day by day, improving constructing methods here, perfecting a new system of organization there and accepting the crumbs that fall to him as the reward of his efforts.

But conditions are changing and when an owner of a desirable parcel determines to improve it, to make it earn the greatest income that it is capable of producing, he invariably seeks the help of two experts. One, of course, is the architect. The other, in this age of steel construction and scientific building, is the constructing engineer. What does he expect from this counsel?

Take for instance a builder whose record of achievement covers many types of buildings, from residences to office buildings, from churches to factories; whose services have been procured by such architects as Adam & Warren, Allen & Collens, Bannister & Schell, Donn Barber, Charles I. Berg, Carrère & Hastings, Clinton & Russell, Ditmars & Brite, D'Oench & Yost, Eidlitz & McKenzie, Hill & Stout, Hoppin, Koen & Huntington, Louis F. Jallade, Parish Schroeder and Charles Volz. Mr. Edwin Outwater, of 225 5th av, is referred to.

First, the owner expects fulfillment of contract. Delays cost money, they frequently cost friendship and clientele. To guard against that the modern builder must have a perfectly trained engineering staff in his organization. He must maintain that department whether times are good or bad. He must see that their efficiency is maintained and developed. He must keep abreast of the times. His personality and understanding of human nature must be acute and alert. When labor troubles threaten he must have a reputation of fair play and live up to it. Sometimes he must even sacrifice self for the benefit of client, whether he deals with the architect direct or through the architect with the owner.

Next, he must have his finger upon the material market so that he can not only have his materials arrive at the job when wanted, but he must have an all seeing eye upon the source of supply to enable him to be prepared to note advancing prices, or other contingencies, not always conducive to uninterrupted construction. He must know the financial responsibility of his sub-contractors, he must know what their reputations for living up to their promises are.

Lastly, he must have a personality that will give him entrée to the company of men of affairs, men who lead in finances, architecture and construction. This ensures him a standing in his profession that is an important factor in meeting the expectations of his client.

With this class of engineer and a good architect, it is a source of wonder why owners of valuable property persist in procrastinating in the matter of developing their holdings. The matter of financing, should that be a restraining influence, is negligible in this day of modern financiering. Owners, who consult with reputable builders, are frequently amazed at what can be done with property that to their opinion is limited in earning capacity.

When consideration is given to the fact that within another decade property will be assessed at 25 per cent., at least, more than it is listed at to-day, it seems to be little less than folly not to act now. The richest rewards will go to the owners who act to-day and now is the time to begin as building material will advance with leaps and bounds early next year. Last year at this time was the psychological hour to buy real estate. This is the psychological moment to develop it.

GETTING A RESPONSIBLE EXCAVATOR AND SHORER.

Profit in the Knowledge that the Primary Sub-Contractor of a Building is Able to Carry Out the Terms of His Covenant.

The average architect wants to be relieved of the details of construction as much as possible. Of course he must keep an executive eye upon each sub-contractor but when, in estimating, he can definitely state that this or that contractor will carry out the terms of his covenant to the very letter, that is the man he wants to engage, because he knows that he can put full trust in that man or company. Confidence is born of a kept contract. In that truism lies the secret of the success of Canavan Brothers Co., excavators and house shorers, of 518 West 56th st.

The life of a building is dependent upon the stability of its foundations, and they are absolutely predestined by the preparations made for them. They must be well built; they must be honestly built. The importance of the work done by the excavator in the erection of the giant architectural creations of the twentieth century is frequently overlooked in the admiration for the finished structure. In Manhattan where it is often necessary to carry the excavations down forty to sixty feet, owing to the peculiar nature of the sub-soil the engineering problems attendant upon this part of the construction work are tremendous.

The first essential to a successful fulfillment of a contract is proper equipment and expert knowledge of its use. A staff of competent engineers must be employed to work out such problems as that, for example, which arose recently in changing the foundations of part of the old Parker building to make way for the American Woolen Company's building. Forty feet of the fire wrecked structure adjoining was cut off. On this, forty feet of new foundations had to be set and the question was how to sustain the great weight while the excavations were in progress. This was met by Canavan Brothers Co. and preparations are now being made to set the foundation shoes. This citation only shows that this company is equipped both in engineering skill and in appurtenance to solve any problem in foundation excavation.

Another annoying feature that the architect finds eliminated in all Canavan Brothers Co. operations is the element of delay which is frequently costly both to owner and architect. "Never procrastinate; do the work to-day" is the company's banner motto, and the idea has taken among architects. This company has made records for hustling work through. For instance in the Hewitt-Bryce Building excavation, there was a site where the use of not only one but two steam shovels was feasible. The plot measured more than 230x200 ft. in which there was a preponderance of earth. About 26,000 cu. yds. of earth in place were removed and about 15 per cent. of that figure in litter, within a month. The best day's work was 300 loads of from 3 to 3½ cu. yds. each. There was also some drilling to be done. They put in and installed 3 boilers in one night, and used them the next day. Here is a case where the average excavator, without equipment equal to this contingent, would have fallen down on his contract. Canavan Brothers Co. actually did the work in less time than the contract called for despite torrid summer weather, on some days.

There is another instance wherein this company excelled and that is in the case of the excavations for the Fifth avenue building. It was a job requiring drilling through solid rock. This was another rush operation. Some of the recent operations, not already mentioned, are: The shoring of the Criminal Courts building, the American Geographical Society's building, 155 6th st and Broadway, the Globe theatre building, 99th st to 100th st, on Riverside Drive, for an apartment house; the Ethical Culture School site, at 64th st and Central Park West, the New Theatre, 62d and 63d sts and Central Park West, and 109th and 110th sts and Columbus avenue, where 45,000 yds. of rock were taken out in less than four months. Lastly, this company is not in any sense an up-start. It has been in the business long enough to win the confidence of the most conservative architects. All three brothers, David P., John F. and Maurice J. Canavan live up to their motto and deliver the goods in the Canavan way.

luxuriousness and lessees in demanding rennovation to their commercial establishments make this fact very plain, to both architect and owner.

While this is true in the commercial world, it is thrice true in the case of the homeseeker who can afford to and wants to live in the very heart of fashionable Gotham. Let us see, therefore, what can be done with a lot 36.1x121, the width facing on Fifth avenue opposite St. Patrick's Cathedral and the length facing West 51st street. Our prospective investor has between $200,000 and $300,000 to use in developing the property, which, of course, does not include the cost of the site or the expense of razing the four-story residences, which have become economically unprofitable. We will take for example the operation recently completed by Thomas R. A. Hall, owner and general contractor, and the design and appointments drawn and devised by Alexander McMillan Welch, the architect, of 11 East 42nd street.

As soon as the buildings had been razed by the Rheinfrank House Wrecking Co., in the latter part of 1907, Samuel Thomason, under the supervision of Rudolph F. Miller, the engineer, began the foundations which rest on firm hardpan about thirty feet below the level of the street. Then The J. B. & J. M. Cornell Co. began the delivery of steel. As this went up tier upon tier The Raritan River Clay Company's hollow tile was laid about the girders. The T. New Construction Co. did all the waterproofing. The stone (5)* foundations and bases then followed from the cutting establishment of B. A. & G. N. Williams, and granite, cut and delivered by J. E. Dutton. Then the speckled buff front brick from Fiske & Co. followed and within four months the entire structure was topped off and M. Harrison & Son had the slate roof in place.

The same standard of high-grade workmanship and materials went inside the building as out. In the matter of floors, for instance, they were made of concrete of Atlas Portland cement, laid in six-foot spans according to Adin C. Pierce's System A, Type 2, fireproof floor construction (2)*. In the matter of plumbing The John L. Mott Iron Works very best grade of nickle plated exposed piping was installed by George H. Creasey. This was another of many high-class operations where Rockland-Rockport lime was used for plaster and finish.

Galvanized wire cloth lathing (2)* was used entirely throughout the structure and the plaster work was done by G. A. Amos. All the trim was installed by Charles F. Albert and supplied by the Batavia & New York Wood Working Company. This was enameled by Maillard & Co., painters, as was all the painting in the structure. The wood was matched and selected so as to be free from blemishes and in consequence the interior, decorated in accordance with the wishes and tastes of tenants, is admirably trimmed and adds considerably to the impression of richness, throughout each of the twelve-room apartments.

The same can be said of the parquet floors (3)* installed by the New York Flexible Wood Flooring Co. They are rich in design, every room having a different pattern. The bathroom and kitchen are in white tiling (6)* done by Mart & Lawton. In the Butler's pantry separating the kitchen from the dining room in each suite is one of Anton Larsen & Son's refrigerators supplied with cold air by one of the Voss Ice Machine Works' central refrigerating plants. A central vacuum cleaner plant supplied by the Sanitary Devices Co. is installed in the building and is connected with every floor.

Entrance to the building is obtained under a marquise on the East 51st street side, toward the extreme western end of the building, through an ornamental iron grating and French plate-glass doors. Admittance is gained at once into the vestibule, which is rich in marble (4)* from Batterson & Eisele's. Electric elevators, of the Otis make, as are the sidewalk lifts, carry passengers silently and swiftly to any floors all of which are connected with the main vestibule by the De Veau House Telephone Manufacturing Company's equipment, which also connects with the New York Telephone Company's service by a switchboard, so that tenants may hold telephonic communication from their apartments with any part of the city. The Automatic Mail Delivery Company's shutes are on each floor.

Speaking of the telephone service, it is interesting to note that all the electric fixtures were supplied for this operation by Black & Boyd Manufacturing Co., and the installation (1)* was done by C. L. Eidlitz Co., under the supervision of Pattison Bros., electrical engineers.

Much is made of ornamental iron work in decoration in this apartment house and the effect is very pleasing and has proved popular. This work was done by J. B. & J. M. Cornell, Treu & Schaefer and the Manhattan Iron Works and is considered a rich example of art in metal work. Wood has been eliminated as much as possible in the structure, it being confined to floors and trim. The windows are kalameined and other sashes are covered with drawn steel, both of which were supplied by the J. F. Blanchard Co. In the matter of hardware the very best in the stock of Yale & Towne was specified and installed. The knobs, locks and all other similar supplies are of the finest material and harmonize well with the general scheme of interior decoration, which was done by D. S. Hess & Co. All glass used in the building is the product of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

The hall floors are mosaic (6)* and were installed by Batterson & Eisele and Traitel Brothers & Co. The mantels are also from Traitel Brothers & Co. The Prometheus Electric Co. supplied all the electrical plate warmers. The laundry appurtenances were installed by the Dryer Manufacturing Co., the gas ranges by the William M. Crane Co., and the steam engineer for the entire operation was Alfred R. Wolf. Douglass-Elliott pumps were installed.

It will be seen that nothing sensational has been attempted in the way of novelties. The tenant that can afford to pay from $9,500 to $11,000 a year for a 12-room apartment in the heart of New York city does not demand untried and experimental devices. He wants the very best that the market affords, every device that will give him comfort and ease but nothing that might be called "far-fetched." In the appointments and the contractors, who supplied materials for this operation, it will be seen that only the highest grade workmanship and materials were used, contractors of known reliability having been awarded the work.

This, then, is what from $200,000, the amount estimated for the cost of construction as stated in the building plans, to $300,000 will purchase today. The question will be asked, "How large is the field for an apartment house of this type?"

The question is easily answered by citing the rapidity with which apartments of this calibre are rented. The operation at Fifth avenue and 51st street has only just been finished, yet almost every apartment is occupied. We are informed that, at the date of writing, only two were vacant. An elaborately ornamented house is not required. Tenants of this class do not require that so much as a structure that is stately, that is well and safely built, comfortable both as to amount of sunlight and appointments and, last but not least, one that is well-managed.

Externally, the "Fifth Avenue and Fifty-first Street Apartments" fulfill every expectation of the talent. The owner, Mr. Hall, has exercised great care in the matter of tenants renting the two stores on the Fifth avenue front. One of these is occupied by Crechton Bros. of London, England, dealers in old gold and silver and by Gimbel & Wildenstein, dealers in old paintings. Its rich granite base, surmounted by soft buff brick and towering as it does over surrounding buildings with a parlor view of the magnificent St. Patrick's Cathedral with its wide lawn opposite, thus insuring sunlight in the morning until noon for all floors, not only commends itself strongly to the Fifth avenue dweller but insures to the owner a desirable neighborhood, free from the encroachment of skyscraping office buildings for years. This structure and others contemplated like it are forerunners of a transformation of this part of Fifth avenue into an apartment house section of the calibre herein described.

CHANGING RESIDENCES INTO PROFITABLE LOFT BUILDINGS

Simple Process of Reconstruction, Costing Little Yet Greatly Increasing the Earning Capacity of a Well Located Plot.

MANY owners of undeveloped property, while realizing that their holdings should be improved, hesitate to make the change for one reason or another. Generally it is procrastination, ofttimes it is lack of a thorough understanding of the tendency of the neighborhood in which the property is situated and consequent indecision as to how extensively they shall go into the enterprise; that of making his plot bring him greater returns. Years ago, the question of cost had great influence upon postponing this kind of improvement, but to-day, thanks to modern financial and construction methods, it should not be a deterrant, and thanks to the wide-awake real estate operators, owners of desirable properties are being made to see the wisdom of grasping the opportunities that are going begging for acceptance.

Take last year and this too, for examples. They embrace a reconstruction period following the financial depression yet the records in the Department of Buildings show that, despite financial uncertainty, more moderate priced renovation and remodeling was done in this borough than at any time since 1906. This was true as to the number of operations of the kind now under consideration, as well as to the total amount of capital expended for similar development. The fact that remodeling figures for 1909 will be considerably in excess of those of 1908 alone shows that property owners are finding this character of improvement, not only profitable, but appreciated by business men in search of modern, well located lofts and showrooms. One cause for this activity in Fifth avenue was the widening of that thoroughfare.

For the purposes of illustration, take the two 5-sty residences that stood at 581 and 583 Fifth avenue prior to July 15. They were in the path of the onward march of business on Fifth avenue. The owners, the City Investing Co., quick to see the present day needs of the neighborhood, decided upon a moderate investment of about $40,000 to improve the property and decided to change the residences into a 5-sty store and loft building. To begin with they had a plot 39 feet by 80. The old structure was removed, down as far as the double foundations upon which reconstruction began.

All municipal improvements are reported in the Record and Guide ahead of time.

THE RECORD & GUIDE CO., 11 East 24th Street

DWELLINGS ALTERED FOR MERCANTILE PURPOSES.

Nos 581 and 583 5th Avenue. J. H. Duncan, Architect.

Longitudinal steel beams, supplied by the Lenox Iron Works were set with wooden rafters over which good maple floors (3)* were laid. The front was done in enameled brick, supplied by the Sayer & Fisher Co. upon limestone (5)* cut by B. A. & G. N. Williams. The sidewalls were reconstructed of common brick from N. & W. J. Peck laid in Atlas Portland cement mortar with plastic slate roof put on by the Casemento Roofing Co. The facade was crowned with a cornice made and installed by the Leonard Sheet Metal Works and all the bluestone (5)* was supplied by the J. H. Scully Co.

When the architect, J. H. Duncan, of 208 Fifth avenue prepared the plans for this building, he sought at once roominess and light. To obtain the former he used iron columns to support the upper floors, and comparatively few of these. They are plain, about nine inches in diameter, so as to permit of the greatest possible floor loads, and were supplied by the Lenox Iron Works. For light he depended entirely upon front and rear windows, the only light shaft being in the rear where the fire escapes are located and running from the first floor to the roof. An extensive bay window on the lower floor rear is thus permitted. An Otis, electric elevator serves all floors, an entrance to which is obtained by a hallway, wainscotted in marble (6)* from the Toch Tile Co. and also by a door opening from the store. Wooden winding stairs made by the Rudolph Walter Stair Works also lead to each loft.

The mason and carpentry work was done by Murphy Brothers, the general contractors while the plaster contractor was the O'Rourke, McCabe Plastering Co. All the plumbing was installed by the T. J. Cummins Plumbing Co. The sand and broken stone contractor was Bernard Campbell.

The painting for this operation was done by Peter McKay while the trim was purchased from John H. Carl, and the kalameining from John W. Rapp.

The building is "Piped for Gas" and was wired (1)* for electric light and power from the Edison system by F. C. Farnsworth & Co., the fixtures being supplied by Blackall & Baldwin. The steam heating also was installed by F. C. Farnsworth & Co., steam being generated in a John L. Mott boiler and radiated by the Mansfield Ohio Brass Company's radiators. The plumbing fixtures of enameled iron and the vitreous china bowls were supplied by the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, of Pittsburgh. The water supply for the building is distributed throughout the building from a 2,000 gal. roof tank made by David Isseks of this city. All the glass used in the building supplied by W. E. Lawrance is of a high grade, the elevator shafts being protected by fine clear wire glass.

Such is the equipment of a building transformed from two residences and suitable for show room purposes. From the front it has the appearance of a modern business structure conforming to the architectural demands of a fashionable shopping district. The building stands in the centre of a block which has been changed from a residential one to stores and offices. The building has just been completed and is about ready to be tenanted.

The field for this kind of development in Fifth avenue is unlimited but it is not confined only to this thoroughfare. Such an improvement would be and has been proved to be almost as profitable on certain side streets. It bears investigation.

HIGH-CLASS CONSTRUCTION AS AN INVESTMENT.

Well Built Structures Always Bring Their Price on the Market—What Constitutes a Building of This Class—The Night-and-Day Bank.

IN the battle of adages the investor who goes in for building construction is confronted with two. One is old and familiar: "What is worth doing at all is worth doing well." The other, of more recent origin, but enjoying a large following in this city is: "What's soonest done is quickest begun." Let us see now, which best represents Manhattan construction, taken as a whole.

When S. Osgood Pell found a possible purchaser of the Night-and-Day Bank building at Fifth avenue and Forty-fourth street, owned by "The Forty-Fourth Street and 5th Avenue Building Corporation" (William H. Chesebrough, President), the American Real Estate Company, the prospective buyer, retained Mr. Charles H. Israels, of Israels & Harder, architects, to conduct a thorough analysis of the building and to give an exhaustive report on it. In the opinion which Mr. Israels handed down he made the statement that not only was the building an embodiment of the highest type of construction, but that there probably were not more than four or five structures in this city that were richer in appointment and finish without being gaudy.

It apparently shows that structures built upon the principle of the first adage are extremely rare, while structures hastily assembled are in the majority. Finish and appointment are too frequently sacrificed to speed in construction and quick tenancy.

"Does high class construction pay?" do we hear? It does, undoubtedly, but because of the greater amounts involved transactions are less frequent than in the opposing types and that is probably why the former are in the minority. For instance a structure like the Night-and-Day Bank building costs approximately $750,000. Next month, title will pass to the American Real Estate Company, Mr. E. B. Boynton President, the transaction probably involving a million dollars.

The man who contemplates an investment running into the higher six numeral column naturally wonders what sort of appointments go into a structure of this type and, what is more important to him, what houses supply this grade of appointments? Perhaps a personally conducted tour of the building will be enlightening.

We find that Henry Ives Cobb, the architect for the new Bryant Building in Nassau street, the Heidelberg Building at Broadway and 42nd street and the Newhouse Hotel at Salt Lake City, was also the architect for this structure, and that while E. Remington, who went west at the time of the San Francisco earthquake to help rebuild the city of the Golden Gate, was the advisory builder, the V. J. Hedden & Sons Company, of 1 Madison avenue, not only had most of the construction work under its supervision but also took some of the subs. It will be seen that high-class building counsel was obtained at the very start of the operation, in 1905.

The structure stands on a plot approximately 65x105, which was excavated early in July, 1905, by Canavan Brothers to a depth sufficient to permit of a basement and sub-basement. The foundations were laid by the V. J. Hedden & Sons Co., in concrete made with Atlas Portland cement, and the sand and broken stone being supplied by J. J. Duffy. All the forged steel work that went into the eleven stories was supplied by Post & McCord, with the American Bridge Co. fabricating. All this steel was protected from fire by National Fireproofing Company's hollow tile, with which material in ten inch blocks the floor slabs were built. These were covered with a high grade of fireproofed maple and yellow pine flooring. The halls, however, are wainscoted in marble supplied by Pottier & Stymus Co., and are floored with mosaic tile put in by the Robert C. Fisher Co. (6)*.

The north and west facades are done in South Dover white marble (4)* cut by B. A. & G. N. Williams, this material even forming the soffited cornice. This same firm cut the two huge columns forming the entrance to the bank which occupies the whole ground floor and basement. The whole exterior is an adaptation to the modern requirements of Greek Doric. The side walls to the south and east are done in white pressed brick supplied by the Sayre & Fisher Company. The street entrances and the large front windows are bronze done by Pottier & Stymus Co. The entire interior of the building was done in mahogany supplied by the V. J. Hedden & Sons Co. which did all the carpentry in the building. This rich mahogany finish used with pure white marble gives a luxuriant impression of chastity in the decorator's art.

Now we are ready for our personally conducted tour of the building, and about the first thing we wonder at is the walls. What kind of lathing (3)* went into these, is the question asked, and we learn that the Roebling Galvanized wire type was used covered with the United States Gypsum Company's Ivory cement plaster and Rockland-Rockport lime of the very best grade. This we find was applied by McNulty Brothers, who held the plastering contract.

Of course in a building of that kind more or less common brick is used and it is essential that we learn who the general mason was. In this case the common brick was supplied by the Empire Brick & Supply Co., while V. J. Hedden & Sons Co. had the mason sub-contract.

The question of plumbing is an important one, in viewing the appointments of a building of this character, and we find that in this case Griffin & Sedden did this work. This firm is no longer in existence. the partners having dissolved their company and gone into business each under his own name, those of Charles T. Sedden & Co., and James F. Griffin & Co. The Kenney Manufacturing Company's fixtures were used throughout the structure. These are high-grade enameled iron and nickel plate with the exception of the toilet bowls which are of good grade vitreous china. The stalls are equipped with "Flush-o-meters."

Having taken a general view of the appointments of the building, let us start from the roof and go through the entire building. Arriving upon the topmost floor, we see that one of the John Morrow Company's tile roofs has been laid in this building. A steel tank holding approximately 6,000 gallons is on a level with the pent house, which is occupied as an architect's office, but separated by a wall where part of the machinery for the three Otis electric magnet controlled elevators supplying all stories are installed.

Passing through the various floors, we find that from the seventh to the eleventh there are nine offices on each one, but on the third and sixth floors there are approximately 5,194 sq. ft. of rentable area without division. The fifth floor, also undivided, contains 4,723 ft. The fourth floor has 4,840 sq. ft., while the second floor offers 5,235 sq. ft. of rentable space, subdivided. A long court reaches from the top of the second floor to the roof and permits of an extra skylighted office on the first floor off the main vestibule.

In our tour through the building we have noticed that a very high grade of polished plate glass has been used. This is the product of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co., which also supplied the clear wire glass on the court side and on elevator shafts. We have also noticed, in admiring the ornamental ironwork at the elevator entrances, that the Cutler Manufacturing Company's mail chutes are an important adjunct to the equipment of the building.

Let us enter the basement to note what appointments are provided there for the comfort and convenience of the tenants. Heat, we find is supplied by four Heine Safety Boilers and diffused throughout the building by American radiators, all being installed by Blake & Williams under the personal supervision of C. F. Smith, steam engineer. Power is obtained by a 150, 175 and a 250 H.P. Flemming steam engine direct coupled with three Triumph Electric Company's generators, which supply all the light and power used in the building.

The system of switchboards was installed (1)* by L. K. Comstock & Co., and all the electrical fixtures came from the Black, Boyd Manufacturing Company. In this basement is also a Vacuum Cleaner Company's equipment, serving the entire building. Attention is called while we are in the basement to its perfect dryness. This is due in no small degree to the fact that all waterproofing was done by the Universal Compound Co.

The painting in the building was done entirely by W. P.

Nelson, while the hardware is of the highest grade obtainable from Russell & Erwin.

In March, 1906, the building was ready for tenants, having taken less than one year to construct. While there were no unnecessary delays, time was taken to insure good work in every detail. Take even the sidewalk lift, for instance, it is an Otis hydraulic plunger, but it is equipped with every safety appliance known to the elevator craft.

One thing in particular has impressed us as we have walked through the building, and that is the great amount of light that is obtained for each office. All the floors above the fifth will have permanent light on all four sides of the building, as the modern structures to the east, south and north, cannot be increased in height and these floors rise clear of them. A perfect circulation of air is also obtainable from this factor.

IN A GOOD LOCATION.

The building is directly opposite Sherry's and Delmonico's in the centre of the district embracing some of the best clubs, hotels, theatres and retail shops, besides being accessible to subway, elevated and to principal surface lines at short distance walks. Tenants in this building are also convenient to a bank that is open for business day and night.

Let us look through this establishment as we pass out. The interior is done entirely in polished white marble from plans drawn by Clarence Luce and carries out the Greek Doric type of architecture in more of its original purity than that of the exterior. Besides a private hall connecting the department bisected by the vestibule of the building, entrance to which is obtained only from 44th street, a luxurious stair case leads from the rear of the bank to this other department and also to the vaults in the basement. These embody some interesting features and we will enter.

Passing down a richly carpeted stairs, our approach is heralded by a bell adroitly concealed beneath the carpet. We pass through a massive bronze barrier reaching from the floor to the ceiling and face the huge vault the door of which alone weighs seventeen tons and operated by electricity. The vault, made by the Herring, Hall, Marvin Company, is lined entirely inside with jiggerred polished brass, giving, in the brilliant electric light, a suggestion of the wealth that is contained in the safes and deposit boxes ranged tier upon tier about the visitor. The very latest design of bolts and counter latches are embodied in these vaults. The flooring, it might be mentioned, of this vault is the most expensive obtainable. It is a green vitrified tile (6)* and was supplied by Pottier & Stymus.

In the storage department for priceless works of art, blue prints, trunks and other valuables, not in the class of securities, jewels and costly gems, still another architect was employed to work out the intricate details. Clarence True was engaged for this work, and his arrangement of this department is said to be the most perfect of its kind. It is not necessary to move costly paintings to permit prospective purchases to be viewed. A system of lighting, such as would be found in the Metropolitan Museum of Art is provided by special lights that can be adjusted and shaded to suit any painting.

Passing out of this chamber of riches, we again find our way to the street over the rich velvet carpeted stairway and as we feel that tinge of pleasure born of having inspected a high example of the builder's art, we do not hear the mysterious little bell announcing our departure.

GETTING MAXIMUM RETURNS FROM A CENTRAL SITE

A Close View of the Business Man's Expectations for Office Accomodation at the Hub of Manhattan—The "Fifth Avenue Building" a Model.

NEAR the close of the first half of the last century Madison cottage, a place of public entertainment, which stood at the corner of 23d street, Fifth avenue and Broadway, was the centre of attraction to tourists. It was the favorite turning point of the most popular drive of that day, which extended up the Broadway plank road, past the turn of the Bowery, through Greenwich village and beyond. Even then the building fronted on Madison farm, the old parade ground perpetuated in Madison square. About a half a century ago, roughly speaking, the Fifth avenue hotel opened its doors to the public and within its walls some of the greatest political movements in the history of the United States have had their beginning. During its existence it was a universally recognized meeting place for the famous men of the country. A little more than a year ago the celebrated old hostlery was swept aside to make way for another public building, but of a wholly different type. We New Yorkers already have become familiar with the transformation that has been wrought upon this historic site.

Madison Square is now considered "downtown" in Manhattan, not "way out in the country," as it seemed to be when the Madison Cottage was in its palmiest days, nor merely "uptown," as that center was referred to before it had half passed through its remarkable career. So we have in Madison Square to-day almost as many offices opening into that little plot of green as face upon City Hall Park, and the number is constantly increasing. As this tendency became more and more apparent investors constructed for the future. First the Metropolitan Insurance Company's additions, then the Fuller Building, the Brunswick Building to the north and recently the "Fifth Avenue Building," representing the latest ideas in construction methods and conveniences. Other skyscrapers are being planned in this vicinity and so the end is not yet. The structures that are going to rear their stony faces into the very clouds from this part of Manhattan must be built to meet future demands; they must embody not only the perfection of today but must anticipate that of tomorrow. This condition of affairs is born of the desire of owners of property in this vicinity to make their holdings bring to them the greatest possible revenue. The condition is accellerated by its being a transportation and shopping, as well as a commercial centre.

Madison Square is in the heart of the railway system of the city and suburbs. On the west the McAdoo tunnels bring thousands to and from New Jersey; on the east are the subways to the Grand Central station, the "Gateway of the West," the Battery, Brooklyn, where all Long Island finds an entrance into Manhattan; Harlem, the Bronx, with its home-building hordes; the Sixth Avenue Elevated, half a block away, offering quick transportation to that central upper Manhattan and Bronx territory which the subways do not tap, and from the Staten Island ferries; while surface cars bring thousands direct to that centre from Long Island and New Jersey ferries. The proposed subways in Broadway and 23d street, according to one plan, will meet at the Square. William M. Ivins once said that the future of a piece of property in New York was fixed by the rapidity and ease with which people could be dumped in that vicinity. If that be so, then Madison Square's future is fixed.

It is of interest therefore to investors and builders to study the most modern construction methods as a key to the situation of what the best construction of the day is. The day of cheap construction is passing, we find, if we are to take the "Fifth Avenue Building" as a model. Here is a structure that cost somewhere in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. There is not a stick of wood in its construction. The very highest type of material entered into it and the highest calibre of tenants occupy its offices. It embraces features that not only meet the requirements of the Building Department, but exceed them in point of perfection. One instance is the court, a transverse plan of which is shown. This is the idea of Mr. Julius Franke, of the firm of Maynicke & Franke, the architects who designed and planned the structure and carried it through to completion within one year from the day that the Rheinfrank Housewrecking Co. began to raze the old hotel building. Further reference to this court will be made later.

The Fifth Avenue Building is owned by the company which bears its name, of which Henry C. Eno, is president; Walter E. Maynard, is vice-president and secretary, and Henry L. Eno, is treasurer. The architects had every freedom for obtaining the best that the market afforded for this operation, so unhampered, they bent every effort to making it a monument of architectural beauty and utility. Its classic Renaissance facades rise fifteen stories on four streets; 239.8 outside, and 235.8 inside, on 23d street, 136 on Fifth avenue; 66.2 on Broadway; 264.2 outside, and 261.11 inside, on 24th street, and 98.9 plus 98.9 in an L in the rear, from street to street. The exterior is of white limestone (5)* on polished granite bases by Henry Hanlein & Son.

Nineteen Otis electric overhead traction elevators, with ornate bronze cages open upon halls of unusual width and light, each elevator being capable of making the round trip in thirty-eight seconds, or ninety-six trips an hour. The entire system permits 1,800 trips every sixty minutes. There are also three Otis electric sidewalk lifts. A special ice plant, installed by Karl Vesterdahl & Co., furnishes to each office sterilized ice water, thus saving the tenant the expense of individual coolers and the delivery of ice or bottled waters. The heating system, installed by the Thompson-Starrett Co. includes four of the Heine Safety Boiler Company, totaling 1,400 horsepower, with the Detroit Stoker and Foundry Company's stokers. Two Fitchburg steam engines, operate a pair of Western Electric Company's powerful generators, that distribute light and power throughout the building, wired (1)* by J. Livington & Co. This company also supplied all switchboards and other appurtenances under the direction of Pattison Bros., electrical engineers.

The building is constructed practically for all time. Its steel skeleton, fabricated by the American Bridge Co. and erected by Post & McCord, is built so as to provide for additions, should they be found necessary in the future and are built firmly into foundations installed by the United Engineering & Construction Co. All steel work in the building is protected by the National Fireproofing Company's hollow tile, and even the floors are constructed on the flat arch system, of 10-inch terra cotta blocks in spans of five feet each on every floor. A covering of fine cinder concrete made of Northampton Portland cement is laid upon this, and it also forms a backing for a baseboard. All the floors are of this construction, all the trim is of mahogany finish drawn metal, and the window casings are kalameined, all casings being the product of John W. Rapp Co. The mosaic hall floors (6)* were installed by Batterson & Eisele. It will thus be seen that there is no wood in any part of the building save that used in furniture and a fire could hardly spread from one room to another. All the electrical fixtures were supplied by the Black & Boyd Manufacturing Co. and Edward F. Caldwell & Co., and are of fine quality brass and combine ornamentation with utility.

In view of the popularity of limoid, or hydrated lime, it is interesting to note that this material was used in the construction of this building and was supplied by the Charles Warner Co., while the highest grade of Rockland-Rockport plaster went into the walls, the work being done by McNulty Brothers. The piping was the product of the Crane Co. and was installed by the Thompson-Starrett Co.

The several million of common brick that went into the rough construction work of this building was supplied by N. & W. J. Peck, while the mason work was done by the Hedden Construction Co., of the Metropolitan tower. There was no front brick used in this building and instead of enamaled brick, usually selected for the light court, marble faced terra cotta was substituted. A word here about this remarkable light court.

The accompanying cut represents a view toward the west. The court is made in cantilever and offset construction, thus insuring well lighted offices on each floor. At each offset skylights are used to shed light into the various apartments, and it is said that a volume of light equal to that on any side street is obtained. Above the 12th floor the width between walls is 60 feet, or as wide as 24th street. From the eighth to the eleventh story the distance is fifty feet, while from the fourth to the eighth story the court is 40 feet wide. Separate cut-off sky lights are given to the third and second floors. The rear L extension is shown. This is perpendicular but is covered with highly sensitized terra cotta, and the light in these offices is most brilliant.

The plumbing throughout the building is of the finest and was installed by C. H. Darmstadt, while the vitreous china bowls and basins came from the Meyer-Sniffin Co. All the vitreous china appurtenances, came from the J. L. Mott Iron Works. Special shafts carry the piping through the various floors, thus insuring exposed plumbing without being visible. The Kenney Manufacturing Co.'s flushing devices are supplied to the entire building. The tile work (6)* throughout the structure was the work of Batterson & Eisele, and is of the highest grade.

Heat is diffused in the various offices by American Radiators of a special design adapted to the needs of the offices in this building. All glass, and there are 4,216 windows, offering 105,000 sq. ft. of lighting surface, in elevator shafts and courts, was furnished by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. The slag roofing was done by the Tuttle Roofing Co., which company also did the waterproofing for the entire structure. The ornamental iron work was done by the Hecla Iron Works, of Brooklyn.

A word about the corridors. Entrance to the building may be obtained from three thirty-foot vaulted arches which lead to an arcade with marble (4)* of white and brown hue and supplied by Batterson & Eisele. This arcade is twenty-three feet wide and trisects the building in a domed rotunda at the central intersection. These arcades practically form a covered street leading from the different thoroughfares upon which they open and contribute to the imposing appearance and to the convenience of the building. In this corridor is one of the Tablet & Ticket Co.'s office building directories equipped with Willsons patent paper letters, which are gaining in popularity with many of the biggest office buildings of the city. Cutler mail shutes connect with each floor.

The cornices are of the same material as the walls of the building, limestone, (5*) but here and there there is considerable sheet-metal work that is not readily seen, but which plays its important part in the perfection of the building. This work was done by the John Morrow Co. Another important adjunct to this building is its vacuum cleaner system, which was supplied by the Spencer Turbine Cleaner Co.

The Garfield National Bank occupies the corner store at 23d street and Fifth avenue. There are some features about this store that seem to be part and parcel of the structure. The architect for the interior of this bank was J .B. Baker, and the fixtures were installed by Charles T. Wills, Inc. The Safety Deposit vaults were installed by Remington & Sherman Co.

Although the building was only thrown open for tenants on May 1 a little over 50 per cent. of the total rentable area has been taken. When it is considered that there are about 1,300 offices in the building, and 14 stores, representing a total rentable area of 500,000 sq. ft., the statement made earlier in this article that there is a demand for offices in this kind of a building seems to be verified. The average rent is about $2 per sq. ft., and the shortest term for lease is 2 years. Some tenants have signed for twenty years.

This then, is the type of building of the future. It represents the kind of office accommodation and convenience that the firm that is able to pay for it, wants, and this is the type of office building that will become more numerous in and about the Hub of Manhattan.

THE CITY AS A FIELD FOR INVESTMENTS.

BY JOHN L. PARISH.

THAT conditions have hardly reached the normal in the real estate market is shown by the comparative statistics of the last four years. In the boroughs of Manhattan and Bronx, the middle of December showed, in 1906, 31,336 conveyances filed for record; in 1908 the number had fallen to 16,353; this year they number 17,003.

Mortgage loans recorded in the same period amounted in 1906 to $433,000,000; in 1908, to $296,000,000, and this year to $349,000,000. Only in the volume of new building operations have the undertakings for the year now drawing to a close shown a decided advance, and here the advance is to a new high record.

In 1906 the investment in new buildings in Manhattan and Bronx was $135,000,000. In 1907 it fell to $93,000,000; in 1908 it recovered to $99,000,000, and for the current year the amount projected is $160,000,000, or $3,000,000 above the previous high record of 1905. This shows, of course, that not only are all the branches of the market well on the way to complete recovery, but that the professional element in real estate is so confident of the near future that it is discounting the market.

The course of the market during the panic of 1907-8 as indicated by these figures is indicative of its usual course under similar circumstances and conditions. While money is abnormally tight it merely slows down. It is never brought to any condition even remotely resembling collapse. Not, at least, since 1873. The panic of that year was, admittedly, largely a real estate panic. Not only in New York, but in all the cities of the country real estate speculation had been carried to an unprecedented extreme. As a consequence values crumbled when the speculative bubble was punctured, add they did not find a secure basis again for about twelve years.

Ever since, however, real estate values have had some approach to stability. The theory that property is worth what it can be made to produce in rents at the normal rate of rentals in the vicinity, capitalized at such rate, has come to be more generally understood and accepted as the scientific basis of values. So general is this conception that there is rarely any important deviation from it, and wherever such deviations are attempted they are usually unsuccessful. Therefore, in all the financial panics since 1873 the reactions in real estate, in New York City, have been only such, as have been observed here in the course of the last three years. This has manifested itself chiefly in a quieting down of the usual market activities without any loss of value of importance, and a gradual but steady resumption of activity and further advance in values after the crises of the financial stringency has passed.

All of which seems to bear out in theory what all active brokers and dealers affirm from experience and observation: That New York City real property affords at all times not only the safest but the most profitable of all fields of investment. New York City's advantages are based upon natural conditions—the conditions which have established her undisputed precedence among the cities of the Western world, and are fast building her into the position of precedence among all the great centres of population and industry of all the world.

These are her high and dry setting in a nearly perfect sanitary position; a harbor capable of floating all the navies and fleets of all the world; an inland waterway to the heart of the continent, and unlimited sources of supply of pure water and fuel, and of all the supplies and materials required for the sustenance of the population and the profitable pursuit of her varied occupations. Some other of the world's great cities enjoy some of these advantages equally with New York, but none of them possesses all of them in anything like equal measure. All are deficient in some one or more of these particulars. And this fact gives New York City superior natural advantages forever, over all other cities, for the pursuit of the infinite multitude of industries and occupations which collectively constitute the world's work.

Since real property is a prime requisite of every industry, it follows that a city so endowed ought to present a profitable and safe field for real estate investments. And so it has proved. Some of the world's greatest fortunes have been made by investment and reinvestment in real property in New York City. This fact is notorious and calls for no bill of particulars here. But the fact that opportunity is just as good now as ever in the past may to some minds need a demonstration. The values of lands and their rental income are based entirely on demand, and that demand would cease and desist unless the population increases steadily. In New York the population has increased steadily from the beginning of its history as a centre of civilization. And its growth is more rapid and substantial now than ever before.

The condition of things is unimaginable that would lead to any change in the orderly progress of the city along these lines. So long as the city continues to furnish to the alert, the ambitious, the intelligent and industrious of the world better opportunities than they can find elsewhere, it will continue to grow, faster with every year. It is only four years since the hundred million dollar mark was passed in new construction, and now it is past the one hundred and fifty million mark. And it is a vastly more substantial and enduring city that is being built, over the foundations of the old, and beyond its former confines.

And the municipal spirit reveals itself in a definite purpose to better and better prepare the city for the continually successful waging of the unending competition with all other cities in the doing of the world's work. Hundreds of millions for new water supply, new rapid transit railroads, new bridges, new municipal buildings, new schools and colleges, all testify to the purpose of the municipality to be prepared for the future which awaits it.

—Two new skyscrapers are probabilities for the financial district, one at the northwest corner of Wall and Nassau, and the other at Nassau, Pine and Cedar sts. The "Liberty Tower" is the only giant building under construction at the present time in that centre, and business seems dull to builders when compared with the times of 1905 and 1906, when there were enough skyscrapers running up at the same time in that district to make a spectacular race. Another important development of the week in building affairs was the purchase of the Fourth Avenue Presbyterian Church site (at the northwest corner of 22d st) for a new business building for Mills & Gibb, who are prominent in the wholesale dry goods trade on Broadway. The church was built in 1856, of brownstone after the Gothic manner, and it was long in charge of the Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby. The determination of such an influential firm as Mills & Gibb to leave Broadway is a matter of high importance to 4th av real estate interests, and significant of the new feeling that a Broadway location is no longer considered indispensable in this line of trade.

A BODY OF CENSORS PROPOSED.

APROPOS OF SOME OF MAYOR-ELECT GAYNOR'S RECENT SPEECHES.

(Reprinted from the Record and Guide of 1888.)

THEORIST.—Is it not a defect in our institutions that there is no organ calling the attention of our people to their own deficiencies? The politicians flatter the people, the business of the Fourth of July orators is to set forth the glory and strength of the country and the superiority of our institutions over those of other nations. The press ought to hold the mirror up to nature and be the censor of public morals. But newspapers are business enterprises, and the aim of editor and publisher is to cater to popular passions and prejudices and not correct public evils.

SIR ORACLE.—I have long believed that we ought to have had in this country a body of men and women known as censors. They should devote themselves to the unpopular task of showing up whatever evil influences there were in our institutions with a view to their correction. They should have their representatives in every legislative body—local, State and national. But their business would be to report and recommend what action should be taken by the body of the voters. They themselves should give up all hope of holding places of power or profit.

THEORIST.—There are traces of some such institutions in many countries. The prophets under the Jewish regime were critics, and very stern ones, of the shortcomings, both of princes and the people. There are public censors in China today, but they often degenerate into mere spies, as their reports are made, not to the public, but to the ruling powers. One of the vaguest chapters in Roman history is that which relates to the censors, who during one period of the republic, were very powerful. In periods of corruption they were authorized to revise the polling list, and they often disfranchised large masses of voters. They could declare that certain candidates were unworthy of holding high office. The censors themselves sometimes became rulers in Rome. The Appian Way was built by and named after a famous censor. But the rise and fall of that useful institution is shrouded in mystery.

SIR O.—It would be a great benefit to our country if there was an organization of voluntary censors in every large city. The press claims to represent public opinion on all the great questions of the day, and to be on the side of right as against wrong. But the business interests of the journals often array them on the side of corruption and popular prejudice. Take the monstrous abuses of our pension systems. The politicians dare not call their souls their own in face of the soldier vote. The press declines to represent the public conscience in this matter, and has no word of rebuke for the $80,000,000 spent in pensions annually more than a quarter of a century after the civil war closed. The newspaper editors know of course that fully $60,000,000 of this vast sum is a pure steal. But while they will yelp like curs at a few thousands in a doubtful appropriation for an indispensable river and harbor bill, they say nothing about the hideous waste of these pension bills.

THEORIST.—A body of voluntary censors, such as you propose, would be very unpopular,—that is, if they did their duty and told the truth about public men and public measures. Then, what guaranty would there be that they would be always right in their criticisms and strictures?

SIR O.—Of course they would be wrong at times; but if they entered upon their work with a pledge that they would never hold office of profit personally, they would give a guaranty of disinterested conduct. They themselves would be so sharply criticised by the powerful interests they would assail, that they would be forced to be prudent and lean on the side of justice.

THEORIST.—But would it be feasible to organize such a body? Are there men and women in every community willing to sacrifice themselves for the good of the state?

SIR O.—Every free state that has appeared in history has developed men and women willing to sacrifice their own ease, and even life, for the public good. Men who died on the battlefield were often inspired by pure love of country. The case of the Abolitionists and other reformers shows that certain people are always ready to become martyrs so that humanity may be served. I think if it was clearly shown that a body of censors, such as I have designated, would be useful to the public, there would not be wanting plenty of volunteers to help correct the great public evils.

THEORIST.—What national obliquities and shortcomings have you particularly in mind which need correction and abatement?

SIR O.—To begin with, we are a vainglorious people, and to correct this defect, we need frequent reminders of our shortcomings. Take our system of popular education, for instance; we are far in the rear of Germany or Switzerland, and in the present rate of retrogression Great Britain and France will be ahead of us in time. Yet is it not many years since our public-school system was the best in the world. Then our legal machinery is in a deplorable condition; we have more law and probably less justice than any other modern civilized nation. Our political methods are exceedingly defective. We elect a congress in one year which does not commence to legislate for a year and a half afterwards, and this in an age of steam and electricity. An English Parliament assembles immediately after a general election, and hence responds to the public opinion of its day. Then the frequent Parliamentary elections in England serve to inform the Cabinet as to the drift of opinion in the political constituencies. The permanently hostile attitude of our press towards the laboring classes is a very serious matter, and may sometime result in a catastrophe. Then the censors could canvass our list of candidates at every election, and warn voters against the black sheep. It is now impossible for us to tell the unworthy from the worthy we vote for on the several tickets. But it would take a book to cover this ground. It is very certain that the press does not fulfill its mission, except in a very inadequate way, as a censor of public morals or a corrector of popular delusions. If a new Christ was to be sacrificed, so eager is the press to represent the passions of the hour, that it would be unanimous in demanding his crucifixion. I confidently predict that somehow or other there will arise a body of men and women who will do for us what the censors did for Rome, and the prophets for the people of Israel.

AN INTERNATIONAL CONNECTION.

The American Group of the Societe des Architects Diplomes par le Gouvernement decided at its annual meeting to hold during the coming year an international exhibition of architectural drawings, representative of the modern work being done abroad and in the United States. It was thought that an exhibition of this kind would be of interest to the profession and to the public in general.

A committee was likewise appointed to take up the matter of competitions, constituting itself a "Bureau on Competitions." Its purpose, as outlined, was to co-operate with the American Institute of Architects, and particularly to take cognizance of the competitions that are being held abroad.

A delegate to the parent society in Paris was elected, with instructions to acquaint the society with the architectural movement in this country, and to keep in touch with the general trend of art matters abroad. It was decided to continue the meetings of the group in the form of monthly luncheons as heretofore.

The following is the list of officers: Joseph H. Freedlander, president; Cary S. Rodman, vice-president; Francis A. Nelson secretary; Julian Clarence Levi, treasurer. Executive Committee: Joseph H. Freedlander, Lloyd Warren, Donn Barber, Francis A. Nelson, Hugh McLellan. Delegate: Charles Butler.

Contractors to Get a Dividend.

With the moving of the Police Headquarters from 300 Mulberry st to the new building at Grand and Centre sts, an interesting epoch in building matters was reached. To those who are familiar with the facts existing at the time of suspension of work by the original contractors and the diverse interests of a number of the creditors of the concern, it is rather a matter of surprise that the Headquarters' job was completed, as it has been, and it is satisfaction to be able to state that a substantial dividend is to be declared to those who completed their work. This is the first instance, so far as our attention has been called to the matter, where a trustee in bankruptcy, with the aid and assistance of the sub-contractors upon the work, completed a contract to the satisfaction of the City, the architects and the sub-contractors.

After the failure of the contractors and the appointment of Leo Oppenheimer as trustee in bankruptcy, Messrs. Eidlitz & Hulse, as attorneys for the trustee and for the Police Headquarters' creditors, prepared an agreement for the completion of the building by the sub-contractors on the job, upon the understanding that all of the sub-contractors would share pro rata in the proceeds of the work. This contract was approved by the United States District Court and work proceeded in accordance therewith.

When Architect F. L. V. Hoppin, of the firm of Hoppin, Koen & Huntington turned over the building to Commissioner Baker, he said: "It is with great pleasure that the architects turn over this building to you, Mr. Commissioner, and they desire to note their indebtedness to the committee of creditors, the trustee and their attorneys for the valuable assistance that has been rendered to the architects and their appreciation of the able work which has been performed unselfishly for the City of New York."

The Committee of Sub-contractors referred to by the architect consisted of A. Klaber & Son, McNulty Brothers and John L. Hamilton & Sons.

All efforts to revise the building code before the end of the present administration have ceased, and the old code as interpreted by the superintendents of buildings in their respective boroughs will hold sway for awhile longer. There was a chance that the two principal interests affected by the proposed revision would reach an agreement, but other interests were so strongly opposed to the ordinance that the Building Committee soon preceived that it would be impossible to enact any legislation.

ADVANCE REPORTS.

The Mills & Gibb Building Project.

4TH AV.—The Record and Guide was informed on Wednesday by a member of the firm of Mills & Gibb (dry goods), 462 Broadway, that nothing had yet been determined with reference to building details, plans, or the selection of an architect for the new business building which this concern proposes to construct on the site of the Fourth Avenue Presbyterian Church, at the northwest corner of 4th av and 22d st, to cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. The property was conveyed to them on Tuesday for $660,000 by a building committee appointed by the trustees, consisting of Charles N. Taintor, George H. Marston and Frank Lugar. The negotiations were conducted by Henry R. Dwight, of 253 Broadway. The corner is one of the most desirable plots for business improvement in that section of 4th av, having a frontage of 114.2 ft. on 4th av and 100 ft. in 22d st. The land was purchased in 1853 by the trustees of the old Bleecker Street Presbyterian Church, which was organized in 1825, for $45,000. The present church was built in 1857. The church committeemen state that no definite arrangements have yet been made for the purchase of a new site, but it is understood that something regarding a new edifice in the uptown section of the city will be announced in the early future. The Rev. Dr. Walter Buchanan, is pastor. While the plans of Mills & Gibb are not fully complete, it is probable to suppose that the new building will contain at least 15-stys. Details of this operation will be announced in later issues.

Particulars of Manhattan Trust Co. Plans.

WALL ST.—There is much speculation in building circles as to the future improvement of the old Gillender Building, situated at the northwest corner of Wall and Nassau sts, purchased this week at a total price of $1,500,000 by the Manhattan Trust Co., of 20 Wall st, for its future home. The structure is 19-stys in height and contains 1,825 square feet of space. It has been announced elsewhere that the present building is to be torn down and a skyscraper office building erected. The plot now covered takes in about three-fourths of a city lot, fronting 25 ft. in Wall st and 73 ft. in Nassau st. Immediately adjoining is the Stevens Building, which has been leased to the Bankers' Trust Co., for a term of sixty-three years. On this site, which includes Nos. 14, 16 and 18 Wall st, the Bankers' Trust has already completed arrangements for the erection of a 20-sty office building to occupy a plot 70x112 ft., with a plot 27x23 extending through to Nassau st. plans have been prepared by Messrs. Trowbridge & Livingston, of 527 5th av, the facades to be of Renaissance style, of granite, to cost approximately $1,500,000. The general contract has been awarded to Marc Eidlitz & Son, building operations to be commenced as soon as the lease on the property expires, which is still in force. Since the Manhattan Trust Co.'s purchase it has been predicted that in the end the two trust companies might merge the properties and construct a larger building covering the entire plot. To this the Manhattan Trust stated on Friday that no definite plan has yet been determined whether they would or would not rebuild. (See issue Oct. 30, 1909.)

So far as could be learned, no architect has yet been officially commissioned to prepare the working plans. The structure, of course, will be of the best fireproof type, with a facade of light-brick, terra cotta and limestone. The location is immediately opposite the 12-sty apartment house for the Broadway and 113th St. Company, on the northwest corner, from plans by Geo. and Edward Blum, to cost $1,500,000.

NASSAU ST.—The Fourth National Bank, 14 Nassau st. has tentatively formed plans for the construction of a new building, to cover the entire frontage in the east side of Nassau st, between Pine and Cedar sts. The bank increased its capital stock and surplus with $2,000,000. It was recently rumored that the Fourth National was to be merged with the Hanover National, which has a building of its own at the corner of Nassau and Pine sts, diagonally opposite the Fourth National Bank, but this report was flatly denied by officers of the Fourth National. The directors are Cornelius N. Bliss, Robert W. Stuart, Richard T. Wilson, William S. Opdyke, Eugene Delano, T. Frank Manville and Thomas H. McKittrick. At the offices of the bank on Friday it was stated that operations will not be undertaken for an indefinite period, and that the selection of an architect had not been officially made.

Sloane (carpets), at the northeast corner of 5th av and 47th st, from plans by Jno. B. Snook's Sons, 73 Nassau st, and the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, at Madison av and 47th st. Material Market Improving.

The building material market was much stronger this week. Brick moved up a quarter and was strong at $6, although sales ranged from $5.75. There was a better tone in the Portland cement market due to the fact that all companies are striving to place those 400,000 to 500,000 barrels of Portland cement to be used on the Fourth Avenue Subway construction. These contracts may come out before the first of the year. Although the National Association met here, nothing, of course, was done regarding price changing for the local district, that association not having jurisdiction. The statement was made at the session that more than 8,000,000 barrels of American Portland cement was used this year than ever before. This semi-official statement is bound to have its effect upon the price situation.

The Record and Guide's market reports contained recently a statement that prices of certain building stone would advance on or about the first of the year. Some interests took exception to the prophecy at that time. In verification of this paper's statement a change upward is very likely to be ratified before that date, the matter being in abeyance now. Marble is steady and granite is showing more activity than at any time this fall. There and a Forecast of the Year 1910

The Real Estate Year 1909

The Evening Post will, for the fifth time, devote an entire section of its December 31st edition to an annual review and forecast of the Real Estate world, modelled after its famous financial review.

CONTENTS THIS YEAR

Special articles by qualified experts in every branch of the market giving their views of the present and future, will make this section valuable and interesting to owners, prospective buyers, brokers, operators and builders.

Laymen generally will also find it interesting, for the steadfast position maintained by real estate in New York City and its environs has caused many, who heretofore have disregarded it, to consider the making of investments.

Real estate ownerships have increased extensively in recent years and they are now regarded as one of the most popular forms of employing capital because of their stability and non-fluctuating nature.

Every feature of interest associated with the almost marvellous growth of the city, structurally and in a rapid transit way, will be outlined in detail.

The favorable condition of money, making possible the undertaking of new projects, both locally and in the suburbs; the attitude of the public in auction sales, and other significant features, point to a new era of development throughout the metropolitan area.

Each borough of the city will be reviewed under seperate captions, as will suburban sections.

Copy for advertisements in order to obtain insertion in this section should be in hand by 2 P. M. Thursday' December 30th. There will be no increase in the advertising rates for this issue.

Orders for copies of this edition should be placed with newsdealers or this office in advance, as the edition will be limited. Price by mail 5 cents per copy.

is a general feeling that the new Municipal building will be in this material. Congressman Charles N. Fowler, president of the Rutland Florence Marble Co., 90 West st, this week bought ten acres of marble property in Northern Vermont. Cores taken from the property show a grain of marble, it is said, similar to the finest Italian varieties. The property will be developed at once.

Lumber was in better demand, retailers having shown a disposition to order part of their Spring supplies now. Hardware continues to rule strong on finer grades. Hollow tile is easier, but the prospects for better conditions are good. The market in brief follows:

BRICK.—Strong and higher.
CEMENT.—Undertone improving.
IRON.—Prices steady; market dull.
STEEL.—Active in Structural.
STONE.—Unsettled over prices.
TILE.—(Hollow) demand easier.

Model Plumbing in a Model Restaurant.

The Board of Directors of the United States Restaurant and Realty Company, owners of the model Cafe De L'Opera, in Broadway, near 42d st, gave a complimentary dinner to a company of New York news and trade paper men in honor of the formal opening of the very luxuriant dining place on Tuesday evening. The host of the evening was Henri Pruger, president and general manager, and as part of the evening's entertainment the guests were taken through the entire establishment.

One of the features of the refectory that caught the eye of the visitor was the excellence of the plumbing equipment. It is of a practicable yet durable type and was installed in "The Cornell Way" by the W. G. Cornell Company, of the Everett Building, which structure it also equipped, by the way. The tour through the building included all departments, and especially the large dining-rooms, elaborately decorated and fitted up. The part that the W. G. Cornell Company played in this operation was pre-eminently vital, as is the plumbing equipment of any restaurant. The devices used to keep the dishes and viands warm, the steam tables, the dish washing supply pipes, toilets and their rich accoutrements, all of the finest grade and of up-to-the-minute types, were set by this company which offers the "owner, architect and builder the facilities and services of an organization capable of installing the complete mechanical equipment of any building." This operation, as all others done by the company, had the personal supervision of an official of the firm, which is composed of W. G. Cornell, president; Edward Slosson, vice-president, and George W. Simmons, secretary and treasurer.

National Portland Cement Makers Meet.

William S. Mallory, President of the Edison Portland Cement Company, was elected president of the Association of American Portland Cement Manufacturers at the annual convention held at the Hotel Astor Dec. 13, 14 and 15. He succeeds John B. Lober, who had held that office for six years and who retires because of ill health. R. W. Lesley, President of the American Portland Cement Co., of Philadelphia, presented him with a gold watch on behalf of the organization.

Mr. Ernest R. Ackerman, president of the Lawrence Portland Cement Co. was elected treasurer of the association, and Mr. Percy H. Wilson was elected secretary. This is Mr. Wilson's third term. He may be addressed at the headquarters of the association, 1329 Land and Title Building, Philadelphia.

An executive committee meeting was held on Monday night, at which the situation as to Portland cement consumption throughout the country was thoroughly canvassed and was found to be favorable. A change in the by-laws reducing the number of meetings from four to two a year, retaining the annual convention in New York in December and holding one in the West in June was later approved.

Reports for the year showed an approximate consumption of 8,000,000 more barrels of Portland cement used this year than ever before. This verified a prophesy made by the Record and Guide in its weekly market review of recent date.

Five new members were added to the executive committee: Bethune Duffield of the Wabash Portland Cement Co., of Detroit; A. H. Criney, Jr., of the Union Sand & Material Co., St. Louis; W. C. Kent, of the Virginia Portland Cement Co., but a resident of New York, and Charles H. Zender, of the Alma Portland Cement Co., of New York.

Four papers were presented. Professor Spencer B. Newbury, of the Sandusky, Ohio, Portland Cement Co., spoke in lieu of Mr. R. L. Humphrey, President of the National Association of Cement Users and discussed the scientific side of increasing the use of Portland cement. Mr. Logan W. Page, Chief of the Bureau of Highways, discussed the possibility of use of cement in roadway construction; Mr. Benjamin A. Howes, constructing engineer of this city, spoke on the details of the construction of concrete houses, which he illustrated with lantern slides and Mr. R. W. Leslie translated the transactions of the German Association of Cement Manufacturers.

This association has nothing to do with the question of prices, its sole purpose being to expand the market for American Portland cement in this country. There were 121 delegates present, from as far West as Colorado, south as Oklahoma and north as Michigan. Opinion among the delegates was to the effect that 1910 will be a good business year.

THE WEEK.

WITH reports of two sales of the seven-figure variety and a third for which details cannot be given at this writing, and seventy other completed transactions, it can be fairly stated that the market is in a normal condition.

The sale of the Gillender Building is, of course, the leading item of the week's business. The property was held at $1,500,000, and while that figure was not obtained, the price at which it actually sold was enough over a million to make the square-foot price between six and seven hundred dollars; that is, assuming that the building is of no value to the buyer, and that it will be torn down and the lot improved in connection with the adjoining plot. This, we are reliably informed, will take place.

The nearest approach to this figure was the sale in 1905 of the southeast corner of Broadway and Wall st, which sold for $700,000, and contained 1,253 square feet, which would make the square-foot price $558.65. There are only three other instances of real estate in this city selling for over $300 a square foot. The southeast corner of Broad and Wall sts sold in 1872 for $348.67 a square foot; it contained only 717 feet; the southwest corner of Broad and Wall st, containing 508 square feet, sold for $330.70 a square foot in 1882, and the northeast corner of Broadway and 34th st, with an area of 1,154 square feet, brought $324.95 in 1901.

The sale of two modern Broadway buildings for a price said to be in the neighborhood of $3,000,000, to an investor, is another evidence of good business conditions.

Fourth av, below 23d st, is also represented in the week's reports. Mills & Gibb, who were for many years at Broadway and Grand st, have purchased the northwest corner of 4th av and 22d st for improvement with a building which they will occupy.

There is a slight slowing up in the Twenties and Thirties, west of Broadway, but that was to be expected after the rush of the past month.

THE AUCTION MARKET

THE voluntary offerings at the Vesey street salesroom met with indifferent success. One thousand and eighty 5th av, offered by Samuel Goldsticker, was withdrawn, there being no bid above the upset price of $300,000. The six parcels offered by Samuel Marx were either withdrawn or bid in, and Joseph P. Day had no better success on Thursday. Bryan L. Kennelly had a successful sale of forty-five lots at Oakdale, L. I., owned by W. K. Aston. They realized a total of $4,375. For the coming week there is only one voluntary sale scheduled, that of 38 West 12th st, which will be offered on Monday at the stand of Byran L. Kennelly.

Y. M. C. A. LECTURE.

In a lecture on "Appraisals" before the Real Estate Class of the West Side Y. M. C. A., 318 West 57th st, last Tuesday night, Edward J. Gilbert, of J. Edgar Leaycraft & Co., told of the rapid depreciation of non-fireproof buildings. He said:

"A 6-sty non-fireproof loft building may be worth $50,000 to-day, and to-morrow or next day or a year or five years hence the fire insurance companies may raise rates to such an extent that no tenant will occupy it or anyone buy it in preference to those fireproof. Here is a contingency to be considered. What is the general disposition of the community in contemplation of our preposterous fire losses? Is there not a growing determination to exclusive fireproof constructions? Review the legislation on the subject with reference to what buildings shall or may not be fireproof. To what extent would the non-fireproof building suffer in value as an investment, in view of expressed tendencies concerning fireproofing?"

Speaking of subways, Mr. Gilbert said: "An entirely new problem has recently arisen out of the building of subways—where it may be sought to acquire a right of way over private property under the surface. A man's ownership of his land below the surface to the earth's centre, and above the surface to the sky, is unquestioned, so far as I know, and ownership means the right to exclusive use. The State has the power to take away that use or any portion of it only through police power, or by condemnation for public purposes; which latter case he must be paid a just and fair compensation based upon its market value.

"Let us start, as usual, with the land unit of value and calculate the market value of his holding which it is sought to cross. That being ascertained, we are to consider the easement of the proposed right of way as a restriction or encumbrance placed upon the property limiting its full use to him.

"Now, although a man does own to the center of the earth, he seldom uses his property in this community, below a certain depth under the surface, and if a tunnel of the subway pass over his property at a depth so great that the reasonable use of the property for all probable purposes is interfered with, his damage is clearly small. But it increases in proportion as it invades the cubic area which he or his heirs and assigns may probably require the use of, or as it may restrict the character and extent of such a structure as would be likely in the future to exhaust the rent producing capacity of the land."

The firm of G. Tuoti Co., real estate brokers, have removed their offices from No. 206 Broadway to Rooms Nos. 1006-7-8 in the World Building. Connected with Mr. Tuoti are Mr. L. L. Hiller, formerly of Pittsburg, Pa., and Mr. Joseph Friedberg, of New York. These three gentlemen are prominent in the Industrial Land & Improvement Company, whose activities are devoted to the development of suburban properties adjacent to New York City. At present they are developing a tract of ten thousand acres at Richland, N. J., between Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

RECORD PRICE FOR MANHATTAN LAND.

WALL ST.—The Gillender Building, a 19-sty structure at the northwest corner of Wall and Nassau, was sold by Charles P. L. Huston, of Huston & Asinari, for Mrs. Helena L. Gillender to the Manhattan Trust Company, which occupies the basement and the first, second and third floors. The lot, 25x75, was purchased in 1849 for $55,000, by George Lovett, grandfather of the present seller, and what was known as the "Union Building" was erected on the site. The present buyers once occupied quarters in that building. Jay Cooke also had an office in the building until his failure in 1873. The property has been held at $1,500,000, and while that price was not obtained, the actual price paid was enough over a million dollars to make the price obtained per square foot between $690 and $700, a record for New York City property. The highest price previously obtained was for No. 1 Wall st, at the southeast corner of Broadway, which contained 1,253 square feet, and sold in 1905 at the rate of $558.65 per square foot. The Gillender Building was erected in 1897 from plans by Charles I. Berg, and Charles T. Wills was the builder, the cost being about $500,000. The plans were originally drawn and filed to get ahead of a law which it was expected would be enacted limiting the height of buildings in this city, but the owners thought the improvement would pay and went on with the operation. In this connection, the property makes another new record, the increment in the land being enough in the short space of twelve years to allow of its being torn down. This will be its fate, as we are informed that the corner will be included in the operation of the Bankers' Trust Co., which adjoins it on both Wall and Nassau sts. When the present building was erected the land was valued at $625,000, the building cost $500,000. It might be added that this is the second instance (the Windsor Arcade being the other) this year where the increment in the land has been great enough in the space of a few years to allow of the tearing down of a substantial building, and for which Charles I. Berg drew the plans.

The Broadway and Leonard st structure, opposite the New York Life Building, is 10 stories high on a plot 61x175. The ground floor is occupied by the New York Central Railroad Co. The Franklin st cor measures 50x150, with a 12-sty office building recently completed. The ground floor is leased by a large typewriter company, while one of the floors is used by the Southern Pacific Railroad for its general eastern passenger office. Both buildings have the advantage of light on three sides, the rears being on Benson st and Cortlandt alley, and are of the best type of steel construction with every modern improvement. The two properties have an aggregate annual rental of about $250,000, and will be held by their new owner as an investment. The Leonard st cor was for many years occupied by E. S. Mills & Gibb Buy a 4th Avenue Site.

4TH AV.—The 4th Avenue Presbyterian Church, familiarly known for many years as Dr. Crosby's church, was sold this week for $660,000 to the dry good importing firm of Mills & Gibb. The cor occupied by the church is one of the most desirable plots for business improvement in that section of 4th av, which has seen marked changes in recent years in the removal of old landmarks to make way for business. The 4th Avenue Presbyterian Church has a frontage of 114.2 ft. on 4th av and 100 ft. on 22d st. The land was purchased in 1853 by the trustees of the old Bleecker St. Presbyterian Church, which was organized in 1825. The property was then beyond the northern limits of the city, and the price paid, $45,000, to Philip Kearney was considered a good price for that outlying part of the city. The present church was built in 1857 and the church was then incorporated as the 4th Avenue Presbyterian Church. A committee appointed by the church consisting of Chas. N. Taintor, George H. Marston and Frank Lugar, signed the contract Tuesday for the sale, which was negotiated by Henry R. Dwight, of 253 Broadway, at the law offices of Bennet & Cooley, 60 Wall st. The sale will be ratified by the congregation at a meeting on Dec. 29, and application will then be made to the court to ratify the transaction. The title will be closed Feb. 1, 1910. While the plans of Mills & Gibb are not fully perfected, their new 16-sty building will cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. This is probably the most important of the many recent removals to the 4th av district. In 1880 the firm moved into its present home at Grand st and Broadway, going from 408 and 410 Broadway, its former headquarters being at 44 White st, where the firm was established in 1865. North of the church, on the cor formerly occupied by the Young Men's Christian Assoc., stands the 11-sty building of the United States Realty & Impt. Co. It is on a plot fronting 83.3 on 4th av by 175 in the st, and was sold by the Young Men's Christian Assoc. in 1903 for $700,000. They bought it in 1867 for $142,000.

TORRENS SYSTEM VICTORY.

APPELLATE DIVISION UPHOLDS IT IN A TEST CASE IN BROOKLYN.

The law putting into force in this State the so-called Torrens system of registering land titles was upheld by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. The proceedings were brought by Thomas F. Duffy against Thomas F. Shirden and others to test the law, but it is understood that the action was inspired by title insurance companies.

The test was made on the registration of the title to property in Decatur st, Brooklyn. The case will now be taken to the Court of Appeals.

"This decision," said M. E. Finnigan, who is official examiner of titles under the new law in Kings County, "is a big victory for the Torrens system, to which, we hope, the public will soon become educated."

At a meeting of the dinner committee it was decided to hold the 14th annual dinner of the Real Estate Board of Brokers at the Waldorf-Astoria on Wednesday, Feb. 16, 1910, at 7 P. M. Mr. Joseph T. Mulligan, the chairman, reports that over 200 seats have already been subscribed for.

The executors of the estate of Henry Marquand loaned $100,000 for five years on property at Lexington av, 131st st and the Harlem River.

Huston & Asinari have secured from the New York Life Insurance Co. a loan of $265,000 for five years at 4½ per cent. on the property at 450 Riverside Drive.

W. W. Astor, of London, England, takes title to Nos. 14-16 Vesey st (Real Estate Exchange), which was sold at auction for $307,500. It is assessed at $260,000.

Supt. of Bldgs. P. Reville, of the Bronx, has taken title in the name of Reville-Siesel Co., to Intervale av, northwest corner of 163d st, 125x—, which they will improve.

Jesse C. Bennett & Co., real estate brokers on the upper West Side for many years, has opened offices in the Night and Day Bank Building, 527 5th av, corner 44th st.

Robert W. Goelet took title on Dec. 10 to 297 Lexington av, northeast corner of 37th st; it is a 4-sty dwelling assessed at $51,500; he owns no other property in that vicinity.

Plans were filed in Brooklyn for a hospital to cost $40,000, at the northeast corner of Atlantic av and St. Andrews pl. Orphans Asylum and Society of the City of Brooklyn, owners.

A. C. & L. A. Marks have obtained for the Charles Buck Construction Company a building loan of $300,000 on the property 153 to 157 West 23d st for the erection of a 12-sty mercantile building.

A partnership has been formed between the firms of William Henry Folsom of 927 Broadway and the firm of Folsom Brothers of 835 Broadway under the name of Folsom Brothers, Incorporated.

Trustees of Wm. Astor gave title to Amsterdam av, northwest corner 108th st, 100x100, to Irving Judis Bldg. & Construction Co., and they borrow from Lawyers Title Ins. & Trust Co. $200,000 at 6 per cent.

The City of New York recorded this week to Rosa Schleissner eleven transfer of tax liens on property in the Dyckman district. The total liens due the city were $3,108.67 for which the interest varied from 7 to 11 per cent.

The Forty-Fifth St. Exchange took title to 45th st, Nos. 141 and 147 West, 3 and 4-sty brick buildings, and which is next to the new Lyceum Theatre. Perhaps they contemplate the erection of a hotel or an apartment house. They are assessed at $152,000.

William Henry Folsom was the first president of the Real Estate Board of Brokers, and has been one of the moving spirits in the board ever since. The secretary of the new company will be T. Monroe Davis, who for a number of years has been connected with the firm of Folsom Brothers.

OWNERS' ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS.

The House and Real Estate Owners' Association of the 12th and 19th Wards held its annual election of officers at Turn Hall, corner Lexington av and 85th st, on Dec. 10. Engel, Henry Hersh, Wm. H. Mehlich, Louis Moeschen and B. H. Strauss. The finance committee consists of Rudolph Troest, J. Fred Boss and Chas. Rausch.

SEASIDE PARK MATTER LAID OVER.

The question of the acquisition of a Seaside Park at Rockaway Beach was considered by the Board of Estimate on Friday. In view of the uncertainty with respect to the title of the land to be purchased the Board deemed it advisable to proceed slowly in the matter, and it was laid over. Although there are many who assert that the proposition will come up again in another form, it is believed by those more familiar with the details that the question is now settled.

Everything has been done to impede the progress of the proposed purchase of land at Rockaway. Both small and large property owners in Manhattan and the Bronx have been bringing pressure to bear against the approval of the project. Prominent among the opposition may be mentioned the Allied Real Estate Interests and the West Side Taxpayers' Association.

Speaking for the latter body, Louis Schrag, of 142 West 23d st, said:

"The members of our organization are not in favor of the purchase. We are not alone in the belief that the expenditure of such a large sum for the purpose required would be inexcusable extravagance when the West Side of Manhattan is suffering for transit and other improvements."

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given.

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

Vol. LXXXIV. DECEMBER 25, 1909. No. 2180

IT is not too much to say that the new municipal administration starts with a fairer chance of being useful to the city than any administration of recent years. Although its members were elected on different tickets, they are all of them disinterested and public-spirited men, and they have exhibited a commendable disposition to ignore past differences and to unite upon a common platform of devotion to the interests of the whole city. They have a difficult and a complicated task ahead of them—more difficult and complicated than that which faced any of their predecessors. They are committed to a policy of subway construction at the earliest possible moment, and, if necessary, at the public expense. They will be obliged to continue the policy of undertaking those public improvements which are an inseparable adjunct to the increase of the city in population and business. At the same time, they are also committed to a policy of in some way economizing both the city's regular appropriations and its extraordinary expenditures on the capital account. Such a policy is forced upon them, not merely by their ante-election pledges, but by the actual financial condition of the city. The tax-rate has been increasing steadily of late, and it cannot keep on increasing without seriously injuring the business growth of New York. The increase in the assessed valuation of real estate will not average during the next few years more than $300,000,000 a year, which will mean an increased income at the existing tax-rate of about $5,000,000. In one way or another the increase in the budget will have to be kept down to that figure, and considering the growing needs of the city in certain important respects, it may be doubted whether the increase in the annual appropriations can be confined to the limits mentioned without the saving of some of the existing sources of waste. A similar condition will confront the new Board of Estimate in relation to the problem of capital expenditures. Leaving subways out of consideration, they will be obliged to keep the increase in the net debt down to about $30,000,000 a year, and they will not be able to do this without rigid economy. But their task, although difficult, is far from being impossible, and the new Board of Estimate will have one advantage in managing the finances. The new borough presidents are men of unusually superior quality, who have been elected on reform tickets, and have every reason to redeem their pledges. There is a good chance, that they will be willing to co-operate with the rest of the board in the attempt which must be made to secure for the city five dollars worth of value for every five dollars expended.

OF all the financial and administrative questions which will be pressed upon the attention of the new Board of Estimate that of subway construction is most important. Every member of the board is explicitly and emphatically pledged to improve the existing means of communication, and yet rapid transit is precisely that aspect of the city's business affairs, over which the Board of Estimate has least control. In this region its jurisdiction is shared with the Public Service Commission, and hitherto these two bodies have systematically adopted different opinions as to the proper policy of the city in respect to subway construction. How, then, is the new board going to redeem its pledges in this all-important matter? There is only one way in which such a result can be accomplished. They must seek to reach some preliminary agreement with the Public Service Commission as to the routes to be constructed, and the terms by which their construction and subsequent operation shall be determined. The two boards must in some way "get together," and the way in which this act or process of getting together can best be accomplished, has already been outlined by the new president of the Board of Aldermen, Mr. Mitchel. He has recently suggested in a public speech that a standing sub-committee be appointed by the Board of Estimate, whose especial function it should be to confer with the Public Service Commission to discuss possible points of difference, and to reach the main planks of a platform of subway construction, upon which the two commissions can stand. This is an admirable proposal, and it is very much to be hoped that the Board of Estimate will act upon it. There is no assurance, of course, that even such a sensible way of anticipating possible disagreements will prove to be successful. The distinguishing characteristic of the Public Service Commission hitherto has been a jealous insistence upon every scrap of authority which could possibly be extorted from the law, and an equally stubborn disposition to attribute any opposition to its policy to the worst of motions or to the height of unintelligence and misinformation. If the Public Service Commission continues to behave in its accustomed manner, no sub-committee of the Board of Estimate will be able to prevent a continuation of the cross-purposes and disagreements which have done so much in the past to hinder subway construction. But it is certainly up to the Board of Estimate to make an attempt to reach an agreement, and if the attempt fails their hands will at least be washed free of responsibility. The jurisdiction of the two Boards in the matter of subway contracts is co-ordinate, and they should do their best to unite on a common policy, and so avoid the delays that would inevitably result from the lack of some initial understanding.

ANOTHER suggestion made by the new President of the Board of Aldermen, Mr. Mitchell, in the same speech, is also well worthy of adoption. He recommends that a comprehensive system of subway and elevated routes be prepared for the whole city, and that no contracts for new subways should be let unless the new subway has its proper place in such a comprehensive plan. It is very much to be hoped that the other members of the new Board of Estimate will agree with Mr. Mitchell in this respect, and will urge upon the Public Service Commission the importance of preparing such a comprehensive scheme. Over seven years ago ex-Mayor Low pointed out clearly and emphatically its necessity, and the old Rapid Transit Commission did a great deal of preliminary work towards its preparation. The Public Service Commission has, on the other hand, never shown any interest in laying out a complete system of rapid transit routes. When it assumed office it committed itself immediately to the construction of the Broadway-Lexington avenue route in Manhattan, and the Fourth avenue route in Brooklyn, and both of these subways violated the idea upon which systematic subway construction should be based. In the case of the Manhattan route it merely duplicated the existing subway for a large part of its course; and in the case of the Brooklyn route it subordinated immediate and pressing to more remote and less essential needs. The preparation of a systematic plan of rapid transit construction, coupled with the classification of the several routes as more or less immediately necessary, will make the commission of similar errors more difficult in the future.

IF THE existing real estate market continues throughout the winter and spring, there is no doubt that during the course of its activity a great many records will be broken. It appears certain that the chief characteristic of the general situation will continue to be the permanent appropriation of peculiarly desirable sites for business firms or corporations, which need the advantages of such a location. This process, which long ago had been carried very far in the financial district, has of late years been conspicuous along upper Fifth avenue and Broadway, and the high prices which had come to prevail on those thoroughfares tempted one to forget that when corners on Fifth avenue are worth $200 a square foot, corners in the Financial District must be worth correspondingly more. The recent sale of the Gillender Building, at the corner of Nassau and Wall streets, indicates that the Financial district is as far as possible from losing its pre-eminence as the locality in which the value of real estate soars to its highest point. If the figures given out are approximately true, and if the Gillender Building is torn down to make way for a 52-story skyscraper, the ground value of the corner will be somewhere about $700 a square foot, and this price will have been paid for a decidedly larger parcel than the few hundred square feet at Wall and Broad streets, which hitherto established the record until the year 1909, when the corner of Broadway and Wall street sold for $598.65 a square foot. This one transaction has doubled the record price which stood so long for unimproved Manhattan real estate, and the record has been paid for a very sizable lot, which already contained an independent modern building. One cannot help wondering what the appraisal would be for the plots at the corners of Broad and Wall streets.

CONSTRUCTION operations have proceeded so far into the winter season with comparatively little interruption. A report to the Record and Guide from the Consolidated board of delegates of the building trades gives the assurance of the prevalence of good employment as the general rule. A large amount of work is in hand, and will be prosecuted as vigorously as the weather will permit during the winter. A large amount of excavating for new work is going on, and new jobs are starting every day. Work may be said to have started on the annex to the Whitehall Building, at the Battery, this week. The estimated cost of the work is $4,000,000. A loan of $4,250,000, on the whole property, was made by the Mutual Life Insurance Company to the owner, which is a corporation styled the "Battery Place Realty Company," which in turn is controlled by the United States Realty and Improvement Company. The O'Rourke Engineering Company has started to lay the foundations, and the Geo. A. Fuller Company will erect the huge superstructure, which is to rise thirty-one stories high. Early in the week bids were opened for the construction of another wonderful structure, the Municipal Building, which will exceed twelve million dollars probably before it is finished, furnished and occupied. At this point the court interfered and commanded the Commissioner in charge to show the people that the form of contract is a proper one, and if the foundations are to be firm and sure. The fact appears to be that at the north end of the works bedrock is beyond the reach of caissons, which must now be stopped at a moderate level, and their bearing surface must be enlarged. One of the significant facts of the time is the relative growth in numbers of 8-story apartment houses. This height of structure represents the maximum for 60-foot streets. The best lateral streets on the Bloomingdale center are now getting this type, with twelve story houses for the avenue. Plans were filed this week for a group of eight 6-story houses to be erected in 124th street, west of Amsterdam avenue, which is in the Claremont center, where there has been considerable activity this year. No doubt the erection of the New Union Theological Seminary buildings has heightened the desirability of the section. All the seminary's holdings on Park avenue have been disposed of except a plot of 50 feet, and as soon as the present buildings are vacated the site will be covered with private residences. A plot 100x175 out of the Evans block on Broadway, at the north corner of 89th street, was sold this week and probably be the scene of a building operation before long.

CROSSTOWN COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the Record and Guide:

NOW, that discussion is again at hand in reference to the construction of additional subways, some consideration should be given to the question of communication between the East and West Sides of the Borough of Manhattan. Perhaps too much attention is paid to subway connection with the other boroughs and the remote parts thereof, and little or none to facilities for transportation between the two river sections. A citizen writing to the New York Times on the 16th inst., says:

Outlying parts of this city are benefited at the expense of the middle section of Manhattan, which in taxation really pays a large part of the cost of transit construction without corresponding benefit. As subway routes are extended northward and eastward the central part of the island becomes depopulated. One need only walk through that part of this borough which is north of 59th st, east and west, and he will observe the great number of stores and apartments vacant.

In the other boroughs there are much better facilities of transit between the east and the west than here, and this lack of crosstown communication may be in part responsible for the many vacant places. There is but one crosstown line between 59th and 110th sts—or really 116th st—to wit, the 86th st line, because the so-called 110 st line can hardly be called one. Then, too, the elevated stations are not on streets through which these surface cars run, and in many instances the stations are on narrow streets.

Subway stations on the proposed new routes should be on wide streets and not on narrow ones; for instance, on 57th, 72d, 79th, 86th, 96th, 116th, and 125th sts, and provision made for spurs or crosstown connections from these streets east and west.

Central Manhattan is entitled to consideration, and provision should be made for crosstown service and for stations on wide streets. A CITIZEN.

New York, Dec. 16, 1909.

It is time the people of Manhattan, particularly those interested in the central portion thereof, awoke to the fact that while the greater part of the cost of construction of these new subways falls on them, the benefit is wholly in favor of the remote northerly section and the Long Island boroughs. Values of properties in middle Manhattan have decreased, taxes increased, and in many instances, rents lowered.

It was no doubt the intention of the authorities when they laid out the wide streets that the same should be used as and for surface transit routes. Surely there can be no objection to underground routes through wide streets, even those where the owners have heretofore objected to surface cars. The Public Service Commission should take up this subject and give it their careful attention. CITIZEN.

THE NEXT SUPERINTENDENT OF BUILDINGS IN THE BRONX.

Joseph Harris Jones, who is to be the next Superintendent of Buildings for the Borough of the Bronx, has been engaged in building in the High Bridge and Central Bridge sections of the Bronx. He has also shown an active interest in public affairs in The Bronx, is a forceful speaker and is known throughout the borough as an energetic and sincere advocate of any cause to which he gives his support.

He is especially active in the North Side Board of Trade and has represented it before Government officials on numerous occasions. Mr. Jones gives Abraham Lincoln as the inspiration for his Americanism.

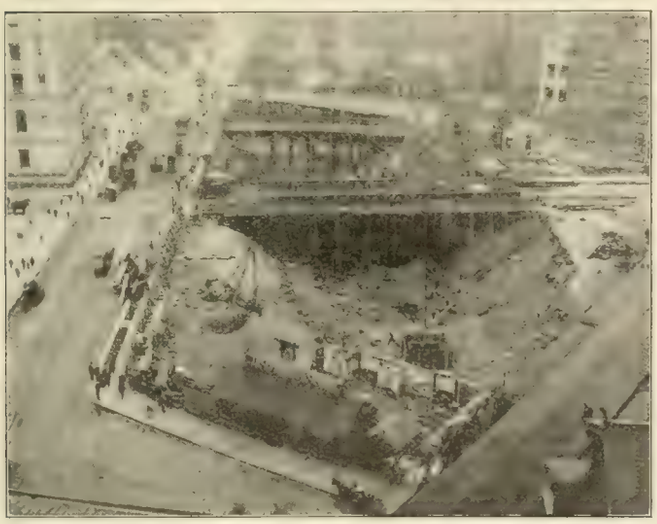
At the annual meeting of the North Side Board of Trade to be held on Wednesday evening, Dec. 29th, a president will be elected for the ensuing year. Mr. Jones has received the regular nomination, and as there is no opposition ticket, he will be elected unanimously.

Mr. Jones was born in Ireland, June 25, 1864, and comes from a family of four girls and eight boys, six of the latter coming to America. At fourteen he started to make his way in the world as a conductor on a buss in Liverpool, England, and in that city he was for a time in the employ of his uncle, a builder.

He came to New York in 1883 and for ten years was in the employ of a structural iron company. He moved to The Bronx in 1885 and in 1893 was married to Fannie L. Morell, and has two daughters.

A NEWER METHOD.—Considerable interest attaches to some experimental work in the way of reinforced concrete construction which is going on at Fort Myer, Va., under Captain Frank B. Edwards, of the coast artillery corps, who is detailed for duty in the quartermaster's department. The buildings under construction are a stable of one story, about 180 feet in length, and a storehouse, which is of smaller dimensions, being about 60x100 feet. The new method involves constructing the walls by means of steel forms placed flat on the ground, the completed wall after hardening being lifted to its proper position. It is expected that a building such as either of those under construction at Fort Myer can be completed inside of a week, where it would take perhaps several months to do the work by the old process. In addition to this, it is believed there will be a great saving in the cost of such construction as compared with the older methods. There is every promise, indeed, that the new method will revolutionize the construction of certain buildings at army posts. Captain Edwards is in charge of the work, which is being done by the purchase of material and the hire of labor.

—Mr. James H. Cruikshank, who contributes to this issue a valuable account of the regeneration of Greenwich Village, is one of the largest builders in that section. Last week he sold the new 6-sty fireproof mercantile building Nos. 483 and 485 Greenwich st, on a plot 43.6x90 feet, to Bleecker & Simons. In payment he took a plot of eight lots on the south side of Vermilye av, 100 feet north of Dyckman st. He bought last week the 3½-sty tenement house, No. 65 Varick st. The size of the parcel is 22x63 ft. On that site Mr. Cruikshank will build a modern 6-sty business building.



CONSTRUCTION.

THE SUBSTRUCTURE OF THE MUNICIPAL BUILDING.

Caissons Sunk to Great Depths—Methods of the Engineers—Objections of the Citizens Union to Awarding Contract for Superstructure.

THE erection of the new Municipal Building at City Hall, Manhattan, is part of the general scheme of extension of the Manhattan Terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge, and will provide a terminal station for transfer to practically every line of transportation in the city, including all proposed subway lines. The building will cost approximately $8,000,000, and when completed will provide ample quarters for almost all of the city departments. The various departments which it has been decided to place in this building are to-day paying $453,593 annual rent. Not only will this annual rental be saved, but it is expected that ample accommodation for many of the principal courts will be found, thus relieving the present congestion.

Pursuant to the laws of 1907, the Commissioner of Bridges was authorized subject to the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, to provide for the erection of the Municipal Building upon land already acquired for the extension of the Manhattan terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge. Through the recommendation of the Mayor, the architectural work was to be awarded after competition—the contestants to select their own jury. Twelve designs were submitted by the competitors on April 15, 1909, and after a very careful consideration by the jury the design of Messrs. McKim, Mead and White was selected. This design provides for a twenty-five story building surmounted by a tower ten stories in height. The total height of the building, including the tower, will be 550 feet, making it the third highest in the city. It will have a frontage of 381 feet on Centre st, 168 feet rear on Park Row, and 158½ feet deep. The total office area exclusive of corridors and shafts will be more than 600,000 square feet. By far the most difficult part of the construction of this building will be the foundation work, owing to the unprecedented heavy column loads and great depth to which the caissons must be sunk. The contract for the foundations was submitted for competitive bidding and was finally awarded to The Foundation Company, 115 Broadway, for $1,443,147, the lowest of seven bids. This company is admirably equipped to carry on this difficult foundation work, having sunk to date over 650 pneumatic caissons in all parts of the country. The foundations for the Municipal Building will consist of 125 pneumatic caissons to be carried down to an average level of about 130 feet below the Park Row curb.

OPENING BIDS FOR THE SUPERSTRUCTURE.

When the proposals for the construction of the superstructure were opened on Monday, by the Commissioner of Bridges, Mr. Stevenson, it was found that the Thompson-Starrett Company, at $5,895,000, with either hollow-tile or slag filling, was the lowest bidder. After the bids had been opened the Commissioner was served with a court order which had the effect of restraining further proceedings.

The objections of the Citizens Union to the awarding of the contract for the construction of the remaining portion of the work are in part owing to faults which it has found in the form of contract. The counsel for President Schieffelin in the taxpayers' suit which he has brought, is J. Hampden Dougherty, who explained his point of view in this way:

OBJECTIONS OF MR. SCHIEFFELIN.

"The proposed contract delegates to the Bridge Commissioner independently of the Board of Estimate discretionary power over construction which the Legislature never intended to give him alone. The statute authorizes him to employ an architect to prepare plans and specifications, not to supervise or control construction; yet this last is what the contract proposes that the architect shall do. The statute put the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in control; the contract reverses the statute and places the Bridge Commissioner in control.

"The charter forbids the payment to any contractor of more than a specified percentage of work done at any time, and these payments may be made only upon the certificates of the surveyor and the chief engineer of a department. The contract in question would permit the payment of a larger percentage than the charter allows and its payment upon a novel and unauthorized basis, with the result in several instances, notably in the case of granite and steel, that the contractor may be paid upon the mere delivery of the material at the site, just as though he had actually incorporated the material into the building. Furthermore, the charter requires every contract to reserve thirty per cent. of the value of the work done until a building shall finally be completed; this contract reserves but ten per cent.

"The contract and specifications in several instances are so drawn as to PREVENT FAIR COMPETITION. There is a specification requiring that all wood used in the building shall be chemically treated by some process satisfactory to the architect to render it fireproof. Only the architect or some favored bidder knows what process will be satisfactory; this should have been plainly stated in the specifications.

"Similar criticisms apply to various other clauses; for example, to the conduits for electric light and power, which must be of some make satisfactory to the architect; but no one can tell in advance what make will be satisfactory.

"The question of hollow tile arch construction plays an interesting part. The discrepancy between cost of fire-proofing by hollow tile arches and by concrete slabs in the case of all but the lowest bids, confirms the claim of Mr. Schieffelin's complaint that one is a cheaper form of construction than the other, and that the concrete specifications are so indefinite as to allow several kinds of concrete work instead of one standard kind.

"If, as the Bridge Commissioner says, the city will lose money every day that the work is enjoined, the fault lies with city officials in approving contracts and specifications palpably illegal. Fairer competition will result if the injunction stands, and new specifications are drawn.

THE SUBSTRUCTURE.

"The substructure of the building plays no part in the suit, but that is an interesting chapter. Serious doubt exists in engineering minds WHETHER the caissons for the foundation actually descend to SOLID ROCK or NOT. Mr. Martin, the engineer of the Bridge Department, was recently asked whether the work of building the foundations was proceeding on the theory that bedrock was reached at a depth of 150 feet, and further whether later borings had not gone to a greater depth without reaching bedrock. He admitted that one had gone to a depth of 177 feet before bedrock was struck, but claimed that this boring was outside the foundation space. Surely it is of importance that this subject should be thoroughly investigated and temporary delay in letting the contract for the superstructure ought to give an opportunity to let light in upon it."

DIFFICULTIES AND DANGERS.

The pneumatic work for this building exceeds in magnitude that for any other single building yet erected in this city. Owing to the great depth, over 130 feet below the street level—the greatest depth of any foundation in the city—and air-pressure may have to be used in the caissons which will exceed that required in the great river tunnels and approaching very closely to the limit of human endurance. Furthermore, surrounding the lot there is a subway, elevated railroad structure, the bridge terminal station and other very heavy buildings like the Hall of Records, the World Building, having shallow foundations. This and other features make this job a very precarious piece of work and will require the very closest attention to details.

A physician and his assistants are kept in attendance on the work day and night, and every effort is being made to protect the men and provide for every possible comfort. An hospital air-lock and a house for the caisson workers (commonly known as sandhogs) are provided, containing wash rooms and rest quarters, also where they can secure hot coffee at any time.

At present, although the work is not yet in full swing, about 500 men are employed each day.

A great many improvements are being introduced by the contractors on this work for the first time, which will not only increase the economy and speed with which the work can be carried on but many novel features are being tried providing increased safeguards for the men.

The first caisson, that in the southwest corner of the lot, has just been carried down to solid bedrock at an elevation of about 132.5 below the outer curb. This caisson and two others have already been carried down 2 ft. into the bedrock, the same carefully leveled off and inspected by Mr. T. K. Thompson, the inspector of caissons for the city. This is now ready for the laying of the cornerstone, the ceremonies for which will be carried on by the Mayor and other city officials on Monday, Dec. 27, at 2 p. m. (A view of this caisson is shown in process of sinking.)

PRESIDENT REMINGTON EXPLAINS THE SITUATION.

The facts of the case as regards the foundations, as the Record and Guide is authoritatively informed, are that the usual preliminary borings were actually made by the engineers of the Department of Bridges before the award of the contract for the foundations, and it is not to be inferred from some published accounts that no preliminary borings were made at all. The examination of the site indicated that bedrock would be found at an average depth much less than has been found to be the case, and the contract was taken on that supposition. The Foundation Company's engineers, contractors for the sinking of the foundations, have learned in the course of their work that about one-third the number of caissons would be unable to reach bedrock.

This discovery was made at the north end of the works. That part of the site where bedrock is beyond the reach of the caissons represents one-third of the whole area. It is said that the normal depth at which caisson work can be done under compressed air is 110 feet, and in some of the borings already made bedrock has not been found at two hundred feet.

"It has been a matter of a great deal of study as to what was best to be done," said Mr. Remington, "on the part of the engineers, and the conclusion was reached that the best plan would be to INCREASE THE AREA OF THE CAISSONS AND STOP THEM AT A HIGHER ELEVATION. At this level there is gravel and coarse sand, which is a very firm material, and will carry a very heavy load. The area of the caissons will be enlarged, so that they will carry only six tons per square foot, in place of fifteen tons, as originally laid out on rock.

"In our opinion," added Mr. Remington, "this will make a perfectly safe foundation. There will be no settlement and no cause whatever for any fear concerning the stability of the building."

Except at this north end, representing, as has been said, about one-third of the whole area of the site, the caissons will go to bedrock, at an average depth of about 132 feet.

TESTIMONIAL TO SUPT. MURPHY.

Edward S. Murphy, the Manhattan Superintendent of Buildings, received a superb present on Thursday, the gift being a complete dining service of silver with a large gold-lined loving cup in addition, the latter in itself a token of which any recipient might prize for its beauty and meaning. The silver was enclosed in a handsome chest of rosewood and was a testimonial from all the employees of the Bureau, over which he has presided, for the past four years.

The presentation was made in the main assembly room of the Manhattan headquarters at 220 4th av, by Bernard J. Gorman, the Chief Inspector. Mr. Murphy entered the assembly room wearing his usual pleasant smile and greeted his staff with cordiality. He accepted the present in the following neat speech:

"I thank you sincerely for this beautiful testimonial and desire to say that whenever I look upon it in the future it will remind me of the happy days that I spent with the men of the Building Department. I hope that at the end of the next four years the same good fellowship will exist between the new Superintendent and the men. I again thank you, and wish you all a very merry Christmas. I would add just one word, and that of advice: You are going to have your annual ball next month. I advise you all to go there and enjoy it fully. Get together in your admirable benefit association and stick together, and no harm can come to you in the future."

The silver set was then spread out in its entirety for admiring examination and afterward removed to Mr. Murphy's residence to be cherished by his family as a souvenir of his term of office. No successor to Superintendent Murphy has yet been named, and it is reported at the department that none will be named until the last day of the year.

COST OF FIREPROOF CONSTRUCTION.

In connection with the relative expense of fireproof as against mill construction, Mr. Pratt, of the American Steel & Wire Co., reports an interesting condition which he found in Providence last week while witnessing a test on the floors of the "House of Good Shepherd," on which structure the firm of Murphy, Hindel & Wright, of Providence, R. I., are the architects. Mr. Hindel, of the above firm, stated that this building was constructed at a cost of less than 16 cents per cubic foot, which is considerably lower than many non-fireproof structures have been built for.

The "House of Good Shepherd" is an institutional building with concrete footings and brick walls, steel girders and beams encased in concrete and floor slabs reinforced with Triangle mesh reinforcement, style No. 24. These slabs rest on the steel I-beams which are placed on 8-foot centres and are made of cinder concrete 5 inches thick, 1-2½-5 mixture.

The building was designed to carry 75 lbs. live load and the floor slab was tested with a uniformly distributed load of 310 lbs. per square foot. The test showed a deflection of 5-64 of an inch, all of which was regained after the load had been removed.

A FOUR-YEAR PERIOD.

This has been a year unequaled in building projects, but next year is likely to surpass it in actual work done. A special Manhattan building report for the period from January 1, 1906, to December 1 last, which was compiled by James W. Spencer, of the Building Department, shows that that construction record has never been surpassed in any similar period in the history of building operations in the city.

The number of buildings planned was 4,149, and the total cost was $388,788,000. The largest part of this construction work comprised high class apartment houses, multi-family flathouses and tenement houses.

There were also filed with the department plans for structures in the same classes which will call for a further expenditure of $176,240,400 before 1912. Most of those buildings are designed for the upper West Side, including Washington Heights, Riverside Drive, Morningside Park and Cathedral Parkway.

In 1906 the amount of $57,372,000 was spent on 965 buildings; in 1907, $27,081,000 on 309 buildings, this being the panic year; in 1908, $25,925,000 on 210 buildings, and this year, $65,891,000 on 428 buildings.

The second place in the amount of capital invested belongs to the office class of buildings, of which there were 181 planned in the four years, representing a capital investment of $84,940,000. Next to the office buildings rank loft and store buildings, which numbered 595, calling for a capital investment of $61,231,000.

VERTICLE OR HORIZONTAL T SQUARE.—Here is a device for making full-sized drawings of an engine or an extra large drawing of a building in much shorter time than heretofore required. It is said to insure absolute accuracy. There is practically no limit to the size of the drawing it is possible to cover. The Buyers' Bureau, care Record and Guide, will supply information if a two cent stamp is sent with inquiry to the Record and Guide.

REGENERATION OF GREENWICH VILLAGE.

Trinity Corporation Improving a Number of Sites—Nature of the Improvements—"New York's Most Indulgent Landlord."

THE departure of Trinity Church Corporation from its former policy of inaction in regard to its vast realty holdings in the lower West Side is of decided import and advantage to that section. It is quite some years since Trinity improved any of its property, but in the last six months the corporation has started the improvement of a number of sites for tenants obtained prior to starting operations.

Among these improvements is the northwest corner of Hudson and Vestry sts, a plot 61x150, on which an eight-story building is being erected for Parke, Davis & Company, wholesale druggists of Maiden Lane. The northeast corner of Greenwich and Spring sts, 100x125, is being improved with a five-story building for Cornell & Underhill, iron pipe, of Hudson and Beach sts. At No. 16 Debrosses and 119-21 Watts sts, the Wheeling Corrugating Company will be housed in a six-sty building, 34x175 feet. At the northeast corner of Broome and Clark sts, the Beitinger Company, confectioners' supplies, will have its new six-story business home on 5,000 square feet. Trinity is also improving the block front 200x160, on Hudson st between Vandam and Charlton sts, with eight-story buildings.

TRINITY'S NEW BUILDINGS.

It is understood that several other large plots have been leased and will be improved by the Corporation. The buildings which Trinity is erecting are of the best type of modern, great weight-carrying, loft buildings, for storage and manufacturing. These new high-grade buildings, displacing antiquated eyesores, give a new and pleasing character to the locality. They will shortly be occupied by some of New York's best firms from the lower part of the city, who will naturally be followed by others in the same lines of business, as well as by varied other lines.

The increase in values in the lower part of the city, necessitating higher rents, is responsible for the coming migration to this section, WHERE VALUES ARE LOW, shipping facilities are excellent, and an immense section of land is in the hands of New York's most indulgent landlord, the much maligned and defamed Trinity Corporation, which organization is willing to improve its property for good tenants at exceedingly fair rents. In the course of a few years this section from Franklin to 14th st, and from Varick st to the North river, will be New York's great fireproof-building-district of low rents.

SALES WHICH MEAN NEW IMPROVEMENTS.

In addition to Trinity's welcome improvements there has been considerable selling, which has attracted but little notice, but which has borne and will bear fruit in the improvement of a large number of both small and large plots, both for occupancy by owners and for speculation.

Among the firms that have either bought and built, or will build for occupancy, are the John Lucas company, paints (of Maiden Lane) now at No. 542 Greenwich and 521 Washington sts, six stories, 25x150. The International Coffee Company (of Front st) at northeast corner Greenwich and Vandam sts, seven stories, 25x100 feet. Messrs. H. P. Kirkham & Sons (Produce Exchange) will build on a plot 40x80 at No. 96-98 Gansevoort st. Adam Cook's Sons, lubricants (now at 313 West st) will build at No. 708-710 Washington st, on 46x80 feet. Fleishman Company, liquors, have built an annex on 63x97 at Nos. 140-144 Perry st.

E. D. Depew & Company, wholesale grocers, formerly of Franklin st, are now at the northeast corner of Greenwich and Canal sts, on a plot of 6,000 square feet. Habicht & Braun, wholesale grocers(No. 22 Worth st), will improve 50x100 at the southwest corner of Hudson & Laight sts. The Union Drawn Steel Company has added a plot 50x100 feet at the northwest corner of Washington and Watts sts, and now has 100x123 feet.

Near by Hugh Getty will improve his latest purchase, the northwest corner of Desbrosses and Washington sts, 82x75 feet. Strohmeir, Arpe & Company, wholesale grocers, from 64 Pearl st, are completing a ten-story building, 57x100, at Nos. 139-141 Franklin st. Comptroller Metz's chemical firm leased an additional new building at No. 34 Beach st and No. 39 North Moore st, 27x175 feet. E. L. Spellman & Company have located in THE NEW WINE AND LIQUOR DISTRICT, and in a new warehouse, 40x70, at 792-794 Washington st. T. Duche & Sons, importers, of Beaver st, are now at No. 556 Broome st.

BUILDING OPERATORS ACTIVE.

In speculative operations, Greenwich st seems to be the favored street. Among the new buildings are: No. 448, six stories, 21x80 ft.; Nos. 483-489, 87.6x90, six stories; Nos. 537-545, 100x100, six stories; Nos. 491-493, 44x90, six stories; Nos. 547x549, corner Charlton, six stories, 50x75; Nos. 708-10, six stories, 50x90; Nos. 719-21, six stories, 37x86; Nos. 802-804, eight stories, 42x65; Nos. 818-20, six stories, 42x92.

Other speculative work was No. 433 Washington st, six stories, 20x80; Nos. 792-4 Washington st, 40x70, six stories; Nos. 32 Laight and 11 Vestry st, six stories, 30x175.

The builders are Greenwich Holding Company, Greenwich Investing Company, Staple Realty Company, Newtown Construction Company, Becker Realty Company, Teichman Engineering & Construction Company, and the St. John's Park Realty Company.

The regeneration of the old Greenwich Village west of Varick st, and running south to Franklin st, has begun and will steadily progress, a consummation devoutly to be wished.

THE LIEN LAW ASSAILED.

How Sub-Contractors Fare Under Its Provisions—Amendments Being Prepared—What is Said in the Building Trades.

THE general dissatisfaction among sub-contractors and material men as to the protection afforded by the lien law of this State, has found recent expression in an effort on the part of some of those interested in the building trades, to prepare amendments to the lien law so that it will furnish more adequate security. The law firm of Thompson, Warren & Pelgram, 49 Wall st, New York City, has been retained to prepare these amendments, and when asked what was being done in this regard, Mr. Moses Allen Warren, who has charge of this matter, gave the following explanation to the Record and Guide:

"Several of our clients for some time past have felt that the present lien law is inadequate, and they have consulted us with regard to preparing amendments that will give them proper protection. As anyone well knows who has examined the mechanics' lien law of other States, a sub-contractor or material man is much more fully protected in most of the other States than in the State of New York. The Legislature of this State recognized at an early day the propriety of enacting laws for the better protection of laborers, and material men with the result that a law was passed which was probably adequate for the needs of that day and generation when building operations were much smaller.

UNSUITED TO MODERN CONSTRUCTION REQUIREMENTS.

"With the introduction of steel and reinforced concrete construction," continued Mr. Warren, "it has become possible to carry on building operations of a character and magnitude beyond any conception of the original framers of the basic theory of our present law. At the present time we are accustomed to see a general contractor, and almost any number of sub-contractors, engaged in the erection of the same building. Each sub-contractor may recover, upon the foreclosure of his lien, not more than the amount due or to become due from the owner to the general contractor, and if his contract is not with the general contractor but with a sub-contractor, whose rights in turn are derivative through contracts with possibly several intervening sub-contractors, he cannot recover more than the amount due or to become due to his immediate predecessor in the chain, and in the event of dishonesty, or abandonment of any intervening sub-contractor, the rights of the lienor are greatly prejudiced, if not absolutely wiped out, and this through no fault of his own.

WHAT OTHER STATES HAVE DONE.

"Some of the other States have proceeded upon a different theory and have made the owner liable directly to any sub-contractor, laborer or material man who performs labor or furnishes materials for the improvement of his real property. Others have provided that in the event of a notice being served upon the owner by a sub-contractor, stating the amount due the sub-contractor, the owner may hold out from the general contractor a sum sufficient to pay the sub-contractor serving the notice and may, if he desires, pay it to him directly. Both Illinois and Michigan have adopted the latter procedure, and we are informed that after a practical trial, these provisions work very satisfactorily for the protection of sub-contractors and material men, without entailing hardship to the owners."

VIEWS OF NEW YORK BUILDERS AND CONTRACTORS.

Before proposing any changes Counsellor Warren attempted to obtain an expression of opinion from as many as possible who are engaged in the building trades in New York City, with the result that he found the prevailing sentiment to be very strongly in favor of a law giving greater protection, and he was very glad to receive many practical suggestions from those who thus expressed their opinion.

Mr. Warren further said:

"An owner who makes a contract to place a building upon his real property desires to pay the money he has agreed to pay, and would be very glad if he could protect himself by seeing that the amount so paid by him was used for the payment of materials and labor which go into his building, and one of the primary objects of our proposed amendment is to bring about this condition without placing any hardship upon the owner, or changing the theory of the present law. As soon as the amendments we proposed to ask for are drafted in their final form, we expect to have them introduced in the Legislature."

THE BRONX.

Comparative statement of plans and specifications for NEW BUILDINGS filed and acted upon for eleven months of 1908 and eleven months of 1909, to Nov. 30th:

THIRTY ELEVATORS FOR WHITEHALL BUILDING

Work began this week on the construction of the Whitehall Building addition in Washington st, near Battery Park. The O'Rourke Engineering Construction Co., of 345 5th av, set its boilers and air exhausts in position and will probably be ready to sink the pneumatic caissons within two weeks. The representative of the company on the job said this week that his company expected to try for a record in sinking this foundation, which will go down 40 to 65 feet, as near as can be ascertained at this time. The Geo. A. Fuller Company, Flatiron Building, made the borings and found that hardpan is unevenly distributed about the site, which measures 109x240. The building will be thirty-two stories high.

Contracts were closed this week by the Otis Elevator Company for thirty high-speed electric traction elevators, which will be installed in this building. Mr. M. S. Baldwin, of the Otis Elevator Co., 17 Battery place, said that the mechanical equipment for these lifts will be of the very latest model, embracing several new safety devices and controls recently perfected by his company. The question was asked as to whether this is the largest elevator equipment in any building in this city. Mr. Baldwin stated that such was not the case. The Hudson Terminal buildings, 30 and 50 Church st, have thirty-nine, all of which are of the Otis make.

The work of razing the old brick structures in Washington st, adjoining the rear of the present Whitehall structure, is being done by Edward Waixel, of 1019 Boston road.

NOVELTIES.

DOOR CHECK THAT WILL KEEP DOORS OPEN.—A widely known building hardware company is on the market with a new idea in a door check. The device not only closes doors but holds them open when desired. This is convenient in summer. Take a hot humid office, as an example. The occupant wants a current of fresh air. He opens his office door and proceeds to business. Up springs a thunder storm and the sudden rush of air pushes aside the floor wedge or other prop, the door slams and the glass panel is broken. If he has one of the latest devices of a standard company on his door, he sets a lever at the position he wants the door open and there it stays. To have it perform its other function as a quiet door closer he simply pulls a release attachment and proceeds to forget all about his former door annoyances. This is a good thing for architects to know about. There are a thousand uses for this much needed improvement. The Buyers' Bureau, care The Record and Guide, will supply information regarding this device if a two cent stamp is enclosed with inquiry.

FIRE RETARDING DOUBLE HUNG WINDOW.—There is inestimable value in having every window in a building a fire retardant. This is entirely possible today even in a double hung window. It is made under the supervision and inspection of the National Board of Fire Underwriters and is made strongly of galvanized iron or copper. They come complete in polished plate, ribbed wire or rough glass including all necessary hardware. The best kind of insurance is precaution. Send a two cent stamp with inquiry for further details to The Buyers' Bureau, Record and Guide.

A PUMP WITH A CHARACTER: RELIABILITY.—Every pump on the market has its distinctive feature, but there is one company in this city that is featuring a device under this head that is said to have a "character." In other words, it can be safely trusted. Left alone it will do the work that is assigned to it without hesitation or halt. This feature is an important one and seems to be something that architects have been seeking for installation in tall buildings where an auxiliary tank water supply is essential. It is in no sense a cheap pump. Its name would be familiar to many pump users but improvement in design and efficiency have brought it prominently to the front of late. The Buyers' Bureau of the Record and Guide will put inquirers in touch with its maker for a two-cent stamp.

COMPACT AIR COMPRESSORS FOR STEEL ERECTORS.—A novelty that appeals to the steel erector is in the shape of a direct or alternating current dynamo that a local company is putting on the market and pushing vigorously. The innovation, however, is mostly in a motor that is direct connected with the compressor. The iron worker will tell you that the strength of the finished steel skeleton depends entirely upon the way the rivets are driven. Good air permits the tool holder to hit while the iron is hottest and he gets therefore a good firm "bite." But he needs good, steady air pressure to do it with. This device bears investigation. The Buyers' Bureau, care The Record and Guide, will give inquirers further particulars for a two-cent stamp.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is installing concrete roadbeds in its tunnels between New Jersey and Long Island. It is planned to bury all but the surface of the ties in concrete. A layer of concrete three feet deep, consisting of one part sand, three parts cement and five parts stone, will be spread for the roadbeds. If the results anticipated are obtained, the railroads will be able to utilize larger engines, run their trains at higher speed and with greater safety, and save in the cost of ties the additional outlay required for concrete roadbeds.

Brief and Personal.

The name of the building at the southwest corner of 4th av and 25th st, at first known as the "Milbank Building," has been changed to "The 334 Fourth Avenue Building."

A. J. & J. T. MacManus, architects, 44 Court st, Brooklyn, are about to remove their business to larger quarters, at No. 215 Montague st, Suite 611, before the first of the year.

Plans have also been filed for enlarging the one and three story office and shop of the Hinkle Iron Works, at Nos. 534 and 536 West 56th st, adding an annex 50 feet front and 83 feet deep.

The Otis Elevator Company, of 17 Battery place, has just opened an emergency station and branch sales agency in Brooklyn, at 363 Jay street. Telephone, "Main 5439," for day and "Chelsea 6400" for night calls. Mr. Harry Wale is in charge of the latest addition to the Otis emergency system. Branches are now maintained at 25 William st., Newark, and at 26th st and Eleventh av, this city, in the latter a night and day service being maintained.

In reference to the proposed building at the northeast corner of 23d st and 4th av, owned by Joseph Milbank, we are informed on the highest authority, that the owner has no idea at present as to just what form of improvement he will erect upon the property; indeed, that is an undecided question at the present time. Present leases expire next May, and the property may be carried without tenants until a decision in relation to the kind of improvement is reached.

On November 1, 1909, several draftsmen organized a Draftsmen's Club, the object of which is to form a permanent organization to promote the interests and sociability of draftsmen of this city, to organize a bureau for draftsmen out of employment and to discuss the building and tenement house laws. In order to bring the draftsmen of the several offices together, a reception and ball has been arranged at Alhambra Hall, 126th st and 7th av, on January 26, 1910. Matthew F. McQuillan, 308 West 121st st, is secretary.

"I believe," said the Advertising Solicitor to the Material Man, "that advertising originated in a kitchen. The cook wants cinnamon. She goes to the shelf on which she knows it ought to be, runs her eye over the labeled jars until she finds it. Somebody wants cement, brick, metal trim, cut stone, lime or plaster. He picks up his R. & G., runs his eye down its columns until he finds the firm he thinks best able to deliver the goods; then orders. Get me?" "I'm there," replied the smiling M. M. as he lit his cigar, conscious of the pulling qualities of both his ad. and his weed.

The Baker Taylor Company, publisher, 33 East 17th st, has issued the second volume of "A History of Architecture," by the late Russell Sturgis. This volume presents with abundant and beautiful illustration the architecture of India, China, Japan and Persia, the early Christian monuments, the Byzantine and Moslem architecture, and concludes with an exhaustive treatment of the Developed or Later Romanesque. The third and final volume will be written by Arthur L Frothingham, A. M., Ph. D., who is thoroughly in sympathy with Mr. Sturgis's point of view, and will be ready in 1910.

The Edison Portland Cement Co. will issue from its main offices, 935 St. James Building, this city, on January first the initial number of a magazine devoted to the progation of "Edison Portland 10 per cent. Finest Ground" gospel throughout the land. The publication, which will appear monthly, will be edited and compiled by Mr. F. B. Marsh, the advertising manager for the company. The text will contain illustrated descriptions of large and small operations in this kind of building material in the thousand and one fields of its application and utility, besides other interesting reading matter for the layman as well as the building expert. Those who wish to keep up with the progress being made in cement construction should send their names to Mr. Marsh, with a request that they be put upon the mailing list, for which no charge is made.

S. Shanker Gets Big Contract.

The S. Shanker Metal Ceiling Co., of 520 5th st, recently closed a conspicuous contract for approximately 100,000 sq. ft. of metal ceiling for a big auditorium and meeting-hall at 195 and 197 Chrystie st. The building is eight stories high and each floor will be equipped with this fire-resisting material.

This company has been expanding rapidly within the last year, having taken and completed some important contracts not only in this city but in Brooklyn, where it has an office at 1234 Myrtle av. To meet the demands of the trade in Bay Ridge another office is located at 359 Court st, where E. P. Backie is the local representative.

The manager of the 5th st headquarters is the local representative of one of the biggest stamping mills in the country situated in the West, and because of his option on any quantity of that company's output he is enabled to supply his customers here quickly and satisfactorily. A large part of the New Jersey business is also coming to this company, and indications are good for an early Spring business from this quarter, according to Mr. Shanker.

Dover White Marble Co. Announcement.

The Dover White Marble Co., of 500 Fifth avenue, corner of 42d st, sent out announcements to the trade and to architects, builders, cut stone producers, monumental marble dealers and contractors, this week, stating that it is in a position to furnish pure white, cream white, tinted and artistically marked marble for exterior and interior construction. The firm also states that it will furnish at popular prices fine grain, non-absorbant building marble possessing great crushing strength and remarkable heat and frost resisting qualities.

The Dover White Marble Company has quarries in operation within two hours ride from this city (at Wingate Station, Harlem division of N. Y. C.), where it has installed a modern electrical quarrying and lifting equipment, enabling it to fill orders up to 2,000 cu ft, per day. The quarry is on a side hill, and self draining, enabling the company to operate it with astonishing economy.

Baltimore's Municipal Docks.

A description of Baltimore's municipal dock improvements has been published in an illustrated pamphlet by the Raymond Concrete Pile Company of New York and Chicago. In the opening pages the methods employed by the city for financing the improvements are described, after which the engineering features of the work in general and more particularly those employed in the construction of piers 4, 5 and 6 are taken up in detail. The last named piers, which are of steel and concrete, after the designs of Oscar F. Lackey, harbor engineer of Baltimore, are being constructed by the Raymond Company. One of the noteworthy features in their construction is the concrete sheet piling that is being employed in the work to the extent of some 220,000 surface feet. In addition to the municipal docks, the concrete bulkheads now under construction by the Raymond Company for subsidiaries of the Standard Oil and International Harvester companies are described and illustrated.

BUILDING MATERIAL AND EQUIPMENT

EXIT 1909—1910'S OUTLOOK.

This week practically closes the business year. From now until January first the building material market, if it follows the precedents of former holiday seasons, will be dull and uneventful. About 95 per cent. of the building material firms will find that they have had a year that has measured fairly up to expectations, although full satisfaction has not been attained, with the possible exception of the steel and iron interests.

Taken as a whole, the year was a good one, all things being equally considered. The cutstone interests were the worst sufferers, the spurt taken on of late not making up for earlier backwardness. Brick had a disappointing year, while cement had a contradictory one. While 8,000,000 more barrels were sold than ever before, the prices obtained for it, especially in this district, were so low as to discount practically the entire benefit that might otherwise have been derived from the boom.

Building lumber had only a fair year, referring, of course, to consumption in this city and vicinity. The year opened weak, gained strength in the early Summer, fell back again at the beginning of Autumn, and then took a spurt that it maintained even up to the present week at stiff prices and good demand.

Building hardware is reported to have had a year's business approximately equal to 80 per cent. of that of 1906. Lime has been extremely active, the local market consuming quantities considerably in excess of what manufacturers had anticipated at the beginning of a year following a serious financial depression. Sheet metals have done very well since August. Hollow-tile is reported to have met a market in excess of what had been expected, while architectural terra cotta has had a steady demand at even prices all the year, but especially since June.

NEXT YEAR'S OUTLOOK.

A change has come over the building material market in its views regarding next year's business within the last fortnight. While there is considerable optimism, it is not of the extravagant kind noted on or about the first of the month. Then it was argued that a boom would come immediately after the first of the year, would be fairly well developed by March 1, and that the middle of May it would be at its height. The theoretical prosperity schedule has been revised, however. The building material world does not look for anything startling until March first (this is based upon recent weather prognostications for a severe winter), and it does not look for the biggest orders until about the middle of April, or the first of May, and that by the middle of June or the first of July those timid persons who have filed plans but who are waiting for tangible evidence that the time is ripe to go ahead, will be ready to start work. Some figures are enlightening.

In 1908 the total value of new buildings erected in Manhattan and the Bronx amounted to over $100,000,000. This year the total amount of new buildings in the same territory is considerably over $162,000,000. The buildings already projected for 1910, and practically ready to go ahead, involve a total expenditure of more than $72,000,000, which is about $28,000,000 less than the total amount spent in new construction work in 1908, and the new year has not yet dawned. This year the total amount of projected buildings in Manhattan and the Bronx, as shown by the Record and Guide's statistical tables, did not total even as high as $70,000,000 until May first, while it was October, 1908, that the total value of projected buildings reached $71,000,000. Building material men are fond of referring to the business done by them in 1905, and particularly of that in 1906. That next year's business promises to even exceed the total volume of both of those years is indicated in the fact that it was June 2, 1906, before the total amount of new buildings reached $73,000,000, and it was June 16, 1905, before the projected buildings aggregated in value $71,000,000.

The figures for suburban development, such as New Jersey, Brooklyn and Queens, show almost the same approximate volume for the various years, with the exception of New Jersey, which shows a greater development for this year than for any of the preceding ones. The indications are for a big year in building materials there in 1910. For detailed list of the principle buildings to be erected in 1910, the total value of which aggregate $72,509,000, see page 1114 in last week's issue of Record and Guide. Out of the eighty-five buildings listed, only twenty-five contracts have not yet been awarded, and of this latter number architects are now figuring on four.

These are facts that should definitely settle any doubts among building material men as to whether 1910 will be a good year in their particular specialties. There is to be a period of legislative peace both in this State and at Washington, if we read the signs of the times aright. The Record and Guide's advice to building material dealers is to anticipate Spring needs now while prices are low. Movements are afoot among all producers to advance prices early in January, and the wise man will be who quickest gets under cover. The week's summary follows:

BRICK—Prices moving up.
CEMENT—Better undertone.
HARDWARE—Prices strong—demand fair.
IRON—Dull—prices stand.
LIME—Demand lighter.
LUMBER—Price tendency upward.
STEEL—Quiet—much business pending.
STONE—Buying light—prices stiff.

Brick.

Hudson River common brick moved up another twenty-five cents this week, ruling prices now ranging from $5.75 to $6.25. Raritan Rivers now bring between $5.75 and $6. The demand is now about equal to the supply in Hudson River commons, while Raritains are holding their own in the local market.

The last Hudson River tow left Kingston on Wednesday morning, it was reported, and the probabilities are that no more cargoes will come in from points beyond Newburgh. This was the statement issued by the Cornell Towing Company this week to its customers. Transactions for last week follow: Leftover, Dec. 11, 26; arrived, 65; sold, 62; leaving 29 on hand on Monday of this week. Of this number, eight were covered, leaving 21 for sale. Prices on covered cargoes are not being made at present. The local dealers are well fixed for the winter, no difficulty being expected in getting all the brick needed.

Cement.

The Portland Cement market was featured by two important events this week. One was the sale of the Canada plant of the Lehigh Portland Cement Company, local offices of which are at 261 Broadway, and the other was the slicing of the Americain Portland Cement Company's dividend from 6 to 2 per cent. This company has never before paid less than six.

At the offices of the local agency of the Lehigh Portland Cement company verification was obtained of the reported sale, but it was said that details of the transaction had not been received. The price obtained was reported to be a substantial one. The purchasers were Canadian interests who were willing to purchase the plant at almost any price in order to harmoniously carry out certain business plans for the new year. The sale will have no effect whatever, it is said, upon the American plant and will have no effect upon the local price problem that has been a thorn in the flesh of many companies since spring.

Following the announcement of the drop in dividends this stock dropped $13.50 a share in the Philadelphia exchange on small transactions. The statement issued from the Philadelphia headquarters of the company is significant:

"The present year has been the worst ever known in the cement industry. The mills of the country have been run to about 60 per cent. of their capacity, and the production has been marketed at the lowest prices ever known, in many cases at or below cost."

Lime and Plaster.

The situation in lime is reported to be pretty fair for this time of the year, although plaster has a better call. The demand for the former material fell off somewhat this week, although it has held up exceptionally well during the last two months. There is a large volume of business in lime going into the Bronx, but finer grades do not lead in this. In the Bay Ridge district, however, the better kind is more in demand. As for plaster, the demand has been somewhat beter of late, and in consequence prices are stiff. Hydrated is holding its own. Prices follow:

Lumber.

"Lumber developed an unusual December business and has kept it up remarkably well," said a representative of one of the biggest companies specializing in pine, this week. "We look for an early resumption of business after the holidays, and if the winter is open, even part way," as he expressed it, continuing, "we hope to start next year at a good pace and to increase the gait as we progress."

As for prices, another dealer, who has extensive yards across the East River, said that he looked for a general advance soon. "Prices now," said he, "are not what they should be. The retailers don't seem to have the confidence in what 1910 will bring them, that distributors in other lines have."

Hardwoods have a good call, but the early Autumn rush is over now and the mills are catching up on their orders. The possibility of car shortages is having a beneficial effect upon many of the mills which are shipping orders as quickly as possible and as soon as they can get suitable cars. There is no change in current prices.

Pig Iron.

The pig iron market continues unchanged. It is extremely dull and prices are just about holding their own. New business and inquiries are reported light. Foundry grades are easier and small concessions are being made on competitive small orders. Basic has developed a scarcity for early shipment. The prices current for the week just closed follow:

Steel.

Steel has entered the usual dull period incidental to the holidays. Prices are steady. There is a large amount of work reported to be pending, but negotiations are being held in abeyance until after January 1. Many of the manufacturers are making preparations for handling larger contracts when business resumes its normal activity, while jobbers are anticipating their spring requisitions and are laying in large assortments. Bruce & Cook, Eggleston Brothers and Abeel Brothers are leaders in this movement.

Structural interests are reported to be fairly active for this time of the year. Levering & Garrigues took 700 tons for a Springfield, Mass., operation. The Hudson Structural Steel Company took 400 tons for the Bronx theatre, while the Passaic Steel Works will fabricate for an apartment house in this city to be built by the Consolidated Realty Company, and which will require 600 tons.

The injunction issued this week postponing the awarding of the structural general contract on the new Municipal building will pull down the total tonnage average for December. The Thompson-Starrett Co. was the lowest bidder, and it is probable that the business will yet go to this concern. The steel specifications call for a steel skeleton faced with granite twenty-five stories in height and surmounted by an eight-story tower. The total height will be 550 feet, five feet lower than the Washington Monument, and about 25,000 tons of steel will be required. An early adjustment of the difficulties attendant upon this award are looked for.

Stone.

The stone situation remains unchanged, that is to say, it is hanging in the balance as regards prices of certain grades of stone. Prices, if anything, are stiffer and are being met by a frigid attitude upon the part of the cutters who are holding back on purchases excepting on those that are absolutely necessary. The stone situation, therefore, cannot be said to be strictly harmonious, but an early peace pact is anticipated when the long promised rush of business appears soon after the first of the year.

Miscellaneous.

The demand for good grades of hardware fell off somewhat this week, but there was enough current business reported at the various wholesale houses to warrant a characterization of "fair." Suburban business seemed to rule in largest volume, several big orders coming in from Jersey City to local jobbing houses. The outlook for the year in this department of building equipment is said to be good, there being a large inquiry on foot and considerable business on operations now about to finish is pending. The plumbing supply houses have found little diminution of business up to a week ago.

THE WEEK.

WHILE there is a falling-off of nearly twenty-five per cent. in the number of sales reported this week from last week's total, and a loss of the same percentage from the corresponding period last year, this should not be taken as an indication that the market is going back; there is a distinctly strong tone to the market. Reports of the past month show that a number of the operators who have been out of the market for a year past are again buying, and the brokers generally predict that the winter and spring months will be active.

In this week's budget there are sixty-five sales, all of moderate size, with the section in the Twenties and Thirties west of Broadway still active; of the latter there are eleven sales, seven of which are west of Seventh avenue, this being the largest number reported west of that thoroughfare in the present movement.

There were nine sales of dwellings, No. 8 East 72d street and No. 21 West 85th street, being the most important. There were three sales of vacant property on Riverside Drive, West End avenue and Broadway, south of 110th street for improvement. Of the dozen Bronx sales seven were improved, most of these being small dwellings.

THE AUCTION MARKET

AS was to be expected in a week preceding the Christmas holidays, there were few offerings and very little interest shown in what was offered. There were only fourteen parcels offered, one of these being voluntary. On Monday Bryan L. Kennelly offered 38 West 12th st, Jeremiah J. Campion, a party in interest bought it for $28,000; Joseph P. Day had one sale, a tenement, at 218 East 9th st, which the plaintiff secured for $18,000, some $600 less than the encumbrances.

On Tuesday, Mr. Day offered six properties. One was withdrawn and the others went to parties in interest. James L. Wells Co. were to have sold 747 Madison av, but the sale was adjourned to December 28.

On Wednesday, there were sales by Joseph P. Day, D. P. Ingraham & Co., and Jacob H. Moyers. Five parcels were offered and all but one were sold. The sale of 179 Wooster street was adjourned to January 5.

Of the six parcels offered on Thursday Joseph P. Day sold two and Samuel Marx, one of the others were adjourned on 66 and 68 West 10th st, was adjourned to December 30, and a Bronx parcel was withdrawn.

THE NEXT REGISTRAR OF THE COUNTY.

MAX S. GRIFENHAGEN.

Max S. Grifenhagen, as the next Registrar of New York County, will stand in a very important relation to the real estate interests. Mr. Grifenhagen has lived here about thirty-five years, and was born in Chicago. His father died when Max was only five years old and his mother lost all her possessions in the Chicago conflagration of 1871. As a lad, he had to help maintain the family by working before and after school. He was graduated from the Henry Street public school in New York.

Mr. Grifenhagen started in his present business, as a dealer and broker in bottles, in the smallest way, and has been very successful. He is also a real estate owner. He has served as Alderman, representing the Washington Heights District from 1903 to 1907, and was the chairman of the Building Committee in 1907, which appointed the commission to revise the Building Code, the record of which is on file in the Board of Aldermen.

Mr. Grifenhagen was also the chairman of the committee of the Board of Aldermen which investigated the Department of Street Cleaning under Commissioner Woodbury, of which committee Mr. Wm. F. Ivins was counsel.

Much other legislation of importance as to Washington Heights District and to the city as a whole was introduced by Mr. Grifenhagen and passed through the Board of Aldermen and Board of Estimate, which is also a matter of record.

Mr. Grifenhagen was nominated for Registrar of the County of New York by the Republican Party and later endorsed by Mr. Hearst on the ticket headed by that leader. Mr. Grifenhagen is a director of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum and is interested in many other charities.

NEW YORK MORTGAGE AND SECURITY COMPANY DIVIDEND.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of this Company, held at the Company's office on this date, the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, That out of the undivided profits there be and is hereby declared a quarterly dividend of three per cent. (3%) on the capital stock of the Company, payable January 3, 1910, to stockholders of record at the close of business on December 27, 1909, and that the transfer books be closed at 3 p. m. December 27, 1909, and reopened at 10 a. m. January 4, 1910."

WILLIAM N. HARTE,
Treasurer.

PRIVATE SALES MARKET

SOUTH OF 59TH STREET.

PEARL ST.—The Charles F. Noyes Co. has resold for Isadore Goldberg the 5-sty store and loft building at 297 Pearl st, covering lot about 17.7x100.4. The entire building is leased to the New York Consolidated Drug Co. for a long term of years. This is the fourth time the brokers have sold this same property, the three last sales having been made during the past year, and all at substantial profits.

1ST ST.—Baumann & Osorio have sold for Morris Levine 61 and 63 1st st, near 1st av, a 6-sty and basement building, with stores, on plot 41.1x75x irregular.

13TH ST.—Duross Co. have sold for D. O. Haaren 217 West 13th st, the 3-sty and basement house on lot 20.10x75. The house is opposite school No. 16, and will be altered to a business building to be occupied as a wholesale plumbers' supply house.

In One Family 76 Years.

22D ST.—James N. Wells' Sons have sold for estate Josephine L. Wells the 5-sty dwelling 402 West 22d st, which came into the market by the recent death of Miss Wells. This is the first sale of this property in 76 years, Miss Wells having inherited the property from her father, James N. Wells, who purchased the land in 1833 when the Clement C. Moore farm was laid out in building lots.

25TH ST.—Elizabeth Boylan and Catherine Roach, respectively, sold to Irving I. Kempner 211 and 213 West 25th st, two 3-sty dwellings on a plot 42x98.9. Mayer S. Auerbach recently bought 215 and 217, adjoining.

REAL ESTATE NOTES

The Title Guarantee & Trust Company loaned this week to the John H. Scully Construction Company, on first mortgage, $105,000 on the 5-sty brick and stone property located at 463 to 467 West 159th st. The mortgage is for 5 years at 4½%, a loan of $35,000, being made on each house.

Arnold, Byrne & Bauman, have secured from the Title Insurance Company of New York for a client, a building loan of $382,000, covering 300 feet on the south side of 181st st, between Fort Washington and St. Nicholas av, which property is to be improved with three 6-sty elevator apartment houses.

Mrs. Mary Adelaide Yerkes has transferred the house and art gallery at 5th av and 68th st and the stable 150 East 69th st to Charles C. Burlingham, receiver for the property in New York of her husband, the late Charles T. Yerkes. This transfer was in pursuance of the agreement Mrs. Yerkes recently made with L. S. Owsley, executor of Mr. Yerkes's will, and her husband's heirs whereby she relinquished all her claims to the New York and Chicago properties in lieu of dower allotments as widow in the realty, of one-third of the personal estate and $400,000.

Frank N. Hoffstot, president of the Pressed Steel Car Co., is the buyer of the buildings at Broadway and Leonard st and Broadway and Franklin st, sold last week by Louis M. and Thomas W. Jones, through L. J. Phillips & Co. The Pittsburgh properties given by Mr. Hoffstot in part payment are a brick building, on plot 130x100, at 9th st and Duquesne way, and three acres of vacant land at Wightman and Beacon sts, in the Squirrel Hill section. These properties, which are free and clear, are said to be valued at about $310,000. The Broadway buildings carry mortgages amounting to $1,835,000.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has secured on mortgage $510,000 at 4½ per cent. for five years for the Aurora Investing Company (Fleischmann Brothers). This loan covers two apartment houses, $265,000 being loaned on Hispania Hall, which occupies six lots on the northwest corner of Broadway and 156th st, overlooking the buildings of the Hispania Society of America, and $245,000 on Audubon Court, covering five and a half lots at the southwest corner of Broadway and 157th st, overlooking Audubon Park. The 157th st corner was recently traded, the buyer, Albert L. Silberstein, giving in exchange two apartment houses on 111th st, west of 7th av.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has also recently secured a loan of $30,000 at 4½ per cent interest to cover the property at 228 Pearl st. The money for this loan was furnished by the Republic of Panama.

The weekly mortgage report of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company shows the sale last week of 134 mortgages aggregating $1,678,850. This remarkable sale of mortgages occurs at the time of year when most lenders have exhausted their funds and are waiting for the dividend disbursements that occur early in January. It seems to indicate that when people begin in earnest to look for January investments, the demand for mortgages secured by New York City real estate will be more than usually heavy. Both borrowers and lenders seem to have tacitly agreed on 4½% in Manhattan and 5% in Brooklyn and the Bronx as a proper rate for mortgage loans. Notwithstanding a somewhat plentiful supply of money, there seems to be no tendency whatever toward a lower rate.

Wm. A. White & Sons have placed for the Realty Holding Co. with the Title Insurance Co. of New York, a loan of $400,000 on their 12-sty and basement store and loft building, 121-127 West 27th st; with the same company for the Aurora Investing Co., a loan of $200,000 on the 12-sty store and office building, 115 and 117 West 27th st; they have also placed for the Loft Realty Co. with an estate, a loan of $200,000 on their 12-sty and basement store and loft building, 135-139 West 26th st; a loan for the Hamilton Building Co. with another large estate of $265,000 on the 10-sty office building on the southeast corner of Greenwich and Thames sts; for the St. Nicholas Construction Co. with the Title Insurance Co. of New York, a loan of $190,000 on the 6-sty and basement elevator apartment house on the east side of St. Nicholas av, 284 feet 4 inches north of 155th st; a loan for the De Leon Realty Co. with a savings bank of $160,000 on the 6-sty and basement elevator apartment house on the east side of St. Nicholas av, 25 feet north of 159th st, and a loan of $110,000 on a downtown business building in the neighborhood of Chambers st.

COUNTY CLERK ELECT WILLIAM F. SCHNEIDER.

William F. Schneider, County Clerk-elect, was born in the old Ninth Ward in 1864. He was educated in the public schools and studied at the College of the City of New York for three years. In 1881 he entered the employ of the H. B. Claflin Company, and remained there twenty-one years. In 1902 he became a member of the firm of M. M. Smith & Co., dress manufacturers, of which firm he is still a member. Mr. Schneider was elected a member of the Board of Aldermen in 1897, and re-elected in 1899. He was secretary of the executive committee of the Greater New York Democracy, and is now chairman of the executive committee of the Cleveland Democracy.

TO END A LOCAL NUISANCE.

The continued depredations of hoodlums that are said to infest the east and west sides of Manhattan have begun to be a source of concern to owners of real estate within the effected territory. To such an extent have these nuisances proceeded of late that the matter has been taken up by the Real Estate Owners' Protective Association of the 12th and 19th Wards, which has appointed a committee to call upon the Police Commissioner with the view of putting a stop to the evil.

It will bear repeating that the organized property owners constituting the membership of this organization have done good work in the past by establishing a more intimate union among owners of real estate. It is in just such instancees as previously referred to wherein the real value of a property owners body is disclosed. Not only is the association in question interesting itslf in local matters but it stands for its members against all abuses arising from unjust legislation, excessive and unequal taxation, and arbitrary interference on the part of municipal authorities and corporations.

THE WIDENED FIFTH AVENUE.

ANY person who will take the trouble to study the plan of the "Fifth Avenue Association" relating to the proposed improvements along that thoroughfare will be forced to admit that the scheme is timely. In fact it is considered singular that the movement for bettering the condition of so important an avenue was not begun at an earlier date. Having been recently widened, it is but natural that other and equally necessary changes be effected as expeditiously as time will admit. At least this is the opinion of many of the property owners along the thoroughfare.

As the situation stands, Fifth av is badly in need of more light. It also requires a better regulation of traffic and such modifications in the police rules as will serve to prevent the unnecessary crowding of pedestrians. If there is any doubt in this regard it will be quickly dispelled by investigation, especially during the present season of the year.

With this in mind the Fifth Avenue Association has planned to co-operate with other associations and individuals in bringing about the needed change. Among the matters now under consideration is one relating to the restoration of the so-called "islands of safety," such as previously occupied the space at the intersection of 23d st and Fifth av. It is pointed out that such isolated places will prevent many accidents besides rendering the work of traffic regulation much simpler.

Included in the general plan for improvement is a proposition to increase the width of the roadway of 23d st, which will doubtless meet with ready approval. At present the congestion caused by the increase of automobiles and other vehicles in 23d st west of Fifth av not only interferes with shopping in that section but is a menace to the lives of pedestrians as well.

Other questions that will be taken up by the improvement association relate to the bettering of conditions at Broadway and 33d st, since it is becoming apparent that a radical change will soon be necessary at that point in order to properly cope with the increasing traffic. It is thought that in meeting the problem it will be necessary to entirely eliminate Greeley Square.

TAXPAYERS CONSIDERING MOVING PLATFORM

The Manhattan Central Improvement Association is about to take up in earnest the question of the widening of the roadway in 34th st, and with this in view a committee will shortly be appointed by President Isidor Straus to investigate the subject.

In the meantime, the report of the Committee on Moving Platform is anxiously awaited. Although it cannot be definitely stated as to whether the committee will favor the project, enough information is at hand to warrant the statement that many of the leading property owners along 34th st are enthusiastic over the proposition. Frequent conferences are being held in relation to the matter, and Chairman Isadore Saks is in close touch with both the Public Service Commission and Inventor Max E. Schmidt.

The improvement association, although only recently incorporated, has already stepped to the front as an important civic factor. Its object is to aid in the development and protection of the property included within the district bounded by 31st and 37th sts and the East and Hudson Rivers.

In an interview with the secretary, C. J. Allen, it was learned that circular letters are now being mailed to the owners of real estate along 34th st with the view of obtaining an expression of their opinion regarding the matters referred to. "We are anxious to secure from property owners and lessees information as to any matters within the scope of the association's objects," said Mr. Allen, "especially as to complaints regarding existing conditions which should be remedied."

WANT SPEEDWAY FOR GENERAL USE.

On the theory that there exists no level road of direct communication between the Dyckman section and Harlem, property owners and residents of the upper end of Manhattan are now discussing the advisability of making application to the authorities to use the Speedway for this purpose.

It will be recalled that this elaborate roadway was especially built for the speeding of fast horses, no carriages or business vehicles being permitted. Until within a few years ago the Speedway was well patronized by the driving fraternity, but of late there appears to have been a sudden falling off in its popularity, due in all probability to the astonishing increase in the use of automobiles.

With this in mind, the owners of realty in that locality have gone so far as to bring the matter to the attention of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, which body has taken up the subject in earnest and intends to do its share in securing the evidence in support of the contention. Moreover, it is argued by those interested in the project that from a financial standpoint the Speedway is now a loss to the city, since its maintenance by the Park Department involves the unnecessary employment of a superintendent, laborers and horses.

MORTGAGES

NOTE.—The arrangement of this list is as follows: The first name is that of the mortgagor, the next that of the mortgagee. The description of the property then follows, then the date of the mortgage, the time for which it was given and the amount. The general dates used as headlines are the dates when the mortgage was handed into the Register's office to be recorded.

Whenever the letters "P. M." occur, preceded by the name of a street, in these lists of mortgages, they mean that it is a Purchase Money Mortgage, and for fuller particulars see the list of transfers under the corresponding date.

The first date is the date the mortgage was drawn, the second the date of filing; when both dates are the same, only one is given

Subscribers will find mortgages in this list with the wrong block number attached. The block number we give is taken from the instrument as filed.

Mortgages against Bronx property will be found altogether at the foot of this list.

Dec. 17, 18, 20, 21, 22 and 23.

STANDARD FOR ROADWAY AND SIDEWALK WIDTHS.

The Board of Estimate and Apportionment of New York City considers it desirable that the various boroughs of the city adopt a uniform rule for fixing the widths of roadways and sidewalks, and has proposed the following standard under which the streets should be in the future designed.

It suggests that the roadway between curbs be of the full width of the street (less the space occupied by the curb) where the street is less than 20 ft. wide. For streets between 20 and 50 ft. wide the roadway should be 60 per cent. of the total width of the street; except that in streets where there is a single-track railroad the minimum roadway width should be 30 ft., and where there is a double-track railroad the minimum roadway should be 40 ft., these exceptions applying also to streets of all widths. In streets from 50 to 60 ft. wide the roadway should be 30 ft. wide. In those from 60 ft. to 66 ft. 8 ins. the standard measurement for the roadway is one-half the total width of the street. In streets more than 66 ft. 8 ins. wide the roadway is 80 per cent. of the street width, less 20 ft.

These rules are for streets having sidewalks on both sides of equal width; consequently, the sidewalk width would be one-half the difference between the total width and that of the roadway. These widths are shown in tabular form as follows:

ROADWAY AND SIDEWALK WIDTHS FOR VARIOUS WIDTHS OF STREET.

	Roadway width			Effective sidewalk width.
Street width.	Street not occupied by a railroad.	Occupied by single-track railroad.	Occupied by double-track railroad.	Street not occupied by a railroad.	Occupied by single-track railroad.	Occupied by double-track railroad.
50	30	30	40	10	10	5
60	30	30	40	15	15	10
70	36	36	40	17	17	15
80	44	44	44	18	18	18
90	52	52	52	19	19	19
100	60	60	60	20	20	20
120	76	76	76	22	22	22

The standard calls for curved curb corners at street intersections where the interior angle is 30 degrees or more, the radius of such curvature to be either 5, 6, 8, 10 or 12 ft. The radius to be used is determined for each case as being that which is nearest to being 10 per cent. of the width of the wider of the two streets intersecting; provided, however, that in case the interior angle is less than 80 degrees, the radius is to be not less than 20 per cent. of the distance between the building line corner and the point of intersection of the curb tangents. Where the interior angle of intersection is less than 30 degrees, instead of one curve a piece of straight curbing is inserted between the two curb lines and at right angles to the line bisecting the interior angle; such piece of straight curb being at a distance from the building line corner (measured along the bisecting line), equivalent to the width of the wider sidewalk of the intersecting streets; curves having a radius of 6 ft. to connect this short tangent with the two main curb lines.

It is to be expected by the Board of Estimate that cases will frequently arise requiring independent treatment to avoid unnecessary damage to existing improvements and it should be understood that special ordinances could be adopted for each. Such ordinances could also be used to govern street improvements where it was not desired to include the entire width of the street, and by adopting this method it would be possible to exclude from an improvement a portion of the sidewalk space adjoining the street line, thus practically accomplishing the same result as was proposed under the original ordinance in the permission to property owners to retain such a strip for park treatment.

GROWTH OF QUEENS.—The building movement in Queens Borough is a striking sign of the times. A large part of the growth centers in East Williamsburgh, over an area of about one hundred and fifty blocks, beginning at the borough line. The improvements consist mainly of two and three-story tenements, and the houses are mostly constructed of brick. Builders are making money both by renting and selling, as the houses net twelve to fifteen per cent. on the cost when fully rented. The Paul Stier Company, which has been a large builder, has had plans prepared by Lewis Berger for two and three-story brick houses, and work has been started. Schmidt & Berkhard, who bought the old Ridgewood Park property, has built on seven blocks more than one hundred 3-sty brick houses, for three and six families each, costing from $9,000 to $12,000 for inside houses and $16,000 to $17,000 for corners.
